Charles Bowers, a newspaper man, formerly employed in Harrisburg and for the past few months on the staff of the Washington Times, was drowned while swimming in the Juniata river three miles below Mifflin, on Sunday afternoon.

Memorial Day at Centre Hall.

Memorial Day in Centre Hall was again fittingly observed, on Saturday, with appropriate exercises in the cemetery, at six o'clock. The parade of the veterans, the American Legion, children, Red Cross, and members of other organizations started at the Reformed church. The graves of the departed soldiers were decorated by the remaining "vets" and an innovation in the ceremony was the erecting of a monument to the unknown dead and the decorating of that monument. Rev. R. R. Jones made a few very appropriate remarks concerning the establishing of this hitherto neglected practice, and plead for its having a part in all future Memorial Day exercises.

Rev. C. F. Catherman was the orator for the day and delivered a decidedly interesting address, which held the closest attention of all present. Rev. Catherman is a forceful speaker and his arguments in favor of a League of Nations, upon which he touched in the latter part of his talk, were based on sound reasoning. Revs. Bingman and Drumm offered prayer, the school sang the National airs, and male voices sang "Cover them over with beautiful flowers", which won favor with the veterans of the war of '61, who locally number seven, and who were all present. They are: Messrs. B. D. Brisbin, Capt. G. M. Boal, W. H. Bartholomew, Alfred Durst, James Smetzler, W. E. Tate, and W. A. Krise. Owing to his utterly helpless condition, Prof. Krise is unable to attend any public functions, but a great effort is made each year to have him present at the Memorial Day exercises, which affords him the greatest pleasure.

Horner-Corman.

Harry W. Horner and Miss Ruth Margaret Corman were united in marriage at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Horner, near Linden Hall, last Thursday evening. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. W. Horner, of York, a brother of the groom. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Corman, of Spring Mills. Their friends extend congratulations.

Meyer-Sinkabine.

At the Lutheran parsonage at Aaronsburg, by Rev. J. J. Weaver, on Sunday afternoon, Harold S. Meyer and Miss Alta M. Sinkabine, both of Spring Mills, were united in marriage. The groom is a motor mechanic and a son of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Meyer, of Spring Mills. Miss Sinkabine is the accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Sinkabine, of Penn Hall. After a wedding journey to cities in Western Pennsylvania, the young people will be at home to their friends at a home to be announced later. Their host of friends wish them much happiness.

Health School—4th Lesson.

(Issued by the Department of Health, Harrisburg, Pa.)

Question 1—Are children born with consumption, or do they catch it from contact with those who have it?

Answer—They catch it.

Question 2—What precaution should consumptives take to protect others?

Answer—They should cover, use a sputum cup, wash their hands frequently, avoid shaking hands and kissing, particularly children, boil their dishes after use and should not occupy crowded houses especially where there are children.

Question 3—What makes the material coughed up by a consumptive dangerous to others?

Answer—It contains the germs which cause the disease.

The answer to the second question is given in greater detail than is expected on the papers turned in. Any two of the points cited will be considered satisfactory as an answer.

The subject of the next lesson will be adenoids. Someone has said: "adenoids open the door to the insane asylum." This is perhaps exaggerated but the fact remains that the presence of adenoids is invariably accompanied by a stunted growth and dull mentality, often to a marked degree, and their removal is usually followed by rapid restoration to the normal. Four percent of all school children are afflicted with adenoids. The condition may be easily corrected. Therefore knowledge on this subject is worth while.

Dog Owners, Take Notice.

We, as County Commissioners, are forced by the State Secretary of Agriculture to bring suit against every person owning or harboring an unlicensed dog. All Constables and Police Officers are notified to make a house-to-house canvass, starting June 15, 1920, and bring suit against persons owning or harboring unlicensed dogs.

The fine for owning or harboring an unlicensed dog is $100.00 or three months imprisonment.

Any Constable or Police Officer neglecting his duty will be prosecuted.

To avoid any prosecution you should secure licenses for all dogs from the County Treasurer.

Dwelling House on C. W. Luse Farm Burned Tuesday Night.

Awakened by the cracking sounds of a fire nearby, Mr. and Mrs. Clement Luse made the discovery that their home was doomed when they became fully aroused from their slumber on Tuesday night about twelve o'clock. The Luse farm is located a short distance east of Centre Hall, and with no fire fighting facilities at hand, Mr. Luse at once set to telephoning his neighbors while Mrs. Luse engaged herself at removing the furniture from the house, and succeeded in removing practically everything excepting a bed-room suit in an upper room where the fire is thought to have originated, from a defective flue, it is presumed. A calm night and the fact that an iron roof was on the building prevented the flames from making any rapid progress for a time, although it was too much for the two people to combat successfully. Their son William had returned that day from a trip to Altoona but had got only as far as the home of his uncle, George Heckman, when he heard the report of the fire. A large number of neighbors soon gathered, but all they could do was to continue the work of removing articles from the house and this was done with much dispatch, so that even the cellar was practically cleared of its contents. However, after the upper floor was once fully ablaze, the structure burned fiercely and in an hour's time the foundation wall alone remained. The barn is located quite a distance from the house and at no time was in danger of a similar fate.

Mr. Luse carried only a small insurance on the property.

Since the Luses are noted for their progressiveness in erecting houses, it is reasonable to presume that a new dwelling house will soon appear on the burned site, and until that time kind neighbors are opening their homes to the Luse family.

Another Barned Burned.

The third barn to be destroyed by fire within the past several weeks in Centre county was that on the Calvin Krebs farm, one mile west of Madisonburg, which was totally destroyed on Sunday afternoon during the absence from home of the tenant, Charles Harter, and family. There perished in the flames three horses, a bull, a heifer and a sow with pigs; also all the farm machinery excepting a corn planter. The origin of the fire is a complete mystery, and the loss to both owner and tenant is heavy.

Flower Contributors.

The following named children provided flowers on Memorial Day for the decoration of the graves of the soldier dead, in Centre Hall:

Margaret Rudy, Grace McClenahan, Lee Meyer, Marion Meyer, Madaline Emerick, Thelma Brungart, Miriam Emerick, Edith Moltz, Elizabeth, Bartholomew, Dorris Moltz, Bertha Sharer, Sarah Runkle, Katherine Glaxner, Ollie Glaxner, Bud Coldron, Donald Coldron, Jack Coldron, Lorane Brungart, Emele Brungart, Lottie Keller, Anna Eccles, Dorothy Emerick, Grace Brubaker, Dorothy Odenkirk, Ruth Grove, Margaret Luse, Geraldine Powell, Philip McClenahan, Richard S. Memorial Exercises.

P. O. S. of A. No. 889 Memorial exercises will be held June 6th, as follows:

Tusseyville, 2.00 p. m.

Centre Hall, 6.30 p. m., in Camp room

Membership will move to the cemetery at 7.00 p. m. and decorate last resting places of brothers of Camp 889 and other camps, and then repair to the Methodist church, where a sermon will be delivered by Rev. Catherman.

All members are requested to participate at both points. Camps in surrounding towns are also invited to join with Camp 889.—Committee.

NAVY ELECTRICAL SCHOOL.

Taking machines apart to see what makes them tick is just as interesting as making them go after they're put together.

In the Navy gas engine school shown above, some of our future aviators are investigating the ignition devices on an airplane engine.

The sailors get a thorough training in the gas engine and have lots of opportunities to perfect themselves in this specialty during a four years' enlistment. They are paid during the entire course, and when they finish their enlistment period they can either continue in the service or go back to civil life, well qualified to do high class garage work.

There's no telling what will happen when a novice carpenter is set loose on a nice pine board.

The Navy's trade schools teach everything from boiler making to watch making. Carpentering is one of the most popular of the trades, and it is one of the most profitable with which to return to civil life.

A three or four years enlistment will give a man time to become a master carpenter, providing always that he is serious and really applies himself to his work.

Five or six years from now some of the above men will be earning good money building houses. Others will be in the service at advanced pay and still improving their knowledge of the trade.
