

THIRTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Paragraphs of News Taken from the Files of the Reporter of 1885.

October 21, 1885.
The Modocs, of Boalsburg, killed a deer last week which dressed 280 lbs. Chas. Glenn has moved his photograph car from Spring Mills to Tusseyville.

George Emerick's two horse team hauled 680 lbs. of sand from the railroad station to town.

Pumpkins are so plenty in the cornfields that you can step across a field by stepping from one pumpkin to another.

John F. Heckman, of Georges Valley, is one of the fortunate farmers this year. He raised from 16 acres 500 bushels of Fultz wheat.

Another house is going up at the lower end of town. John Krumbine has purchased two lots and has already broken ground for a new dwelling.

The public schools in this place will open on Monday, 26th. Messrs. M. Shires, A. C. Ripka, and James Lohr compose the corps of instructors.

The large stable of D. C. Keller, at the lower end of town, was burned on Sunday night, 18th. Two horses, three cows, a calf, a lot of implements, tread power and threshing, with hay and other feed, were burned. Dr. Alexander and H. Booser, living close by, were on the ground soon enough to let out the hogs and pull out the carriage and buggies.

Mr. Ketter's loss is no less than $2000, with slight insurance. Mr. Keller was away from home at the time of the fire.

Samuel Krumbine, who is employed in the government printing office in Washington, arrived home on Tuesday evening, a few hours prior to his mother's death, yet in time to be recognized by her.

HEALTH SCHOOL

Pennsylvania State Department of Health.

Questions.
1. Name three milk products.
2. What is Pasteurization?
3. Name two diseases which may be carried by milk.

MILK

Old Eph Brown, long haired, lean and given to argument was holding forth to an open-mouthed group of loungers. "Ye may talk as ye please about pasteurized milk, ye can't have it in winter time fur there's no paster for the cows to eat. An' I leave it to Doc. George over there if it ain't so."

"I am afraid Mr. Brown has misunderstood," smiled the Doctor. "The word 'pasteurize' has no relation to grass or meadows, but has reference to a certain treatment of milk that was advised by a celebrated scientist, named Pasteur, who discovered that if milk were heated to 145 degrees and kept at that temperature for a half hour, disease germs it might contain would be rendered harmless, while the food value of the milk would not be lessened."

"Well I'll swan," said Eph. "The doctor added, 'To be of value, pasteurization should be done soon after milking. Germs multiply rapidly and throw off poisons called toxins. Late pasteurization, while it destroys the germs, does not destroy the toxins. Such milk is not good for any person and is particularly unsafe for babies.'"

Eph interrupted, "Say, Doc, I've raised children and grandchildren, and none of 'em ever had pasteurized milk, as you call it."

"That shows what strong children can stand, but it is no argument against making milk safe."

"Over in Blain township there was a farmer who kept a few cows and peddled milk in Avergeton, four miles away. He didn't groom his cows, he didn't wipe their udders with a damp cloth before milking, and he did not pasteurize his milk. He regarded such practices as 'new fangled foolishness.'"

"One hot summer day his grandchild took suddenly sick. When the doctor came, he said, 'bad milk.' As he picked up a milk bottle and gave it a sudden twirl, numerous specks were seen moving about the bottom."

"The grandfather was hard to convince, but when the laboratory report showed an extraordinary high number of germs present and when a dozen other babies along his route sickened, he believed. He told me the other day that it almost cost the life of his grandchild to convince him, but you should see his place now. Clean cows, which have been tested for tuberculosis; clean stable; clean hands for milker's; clean buckets and pans, always cleansed in boiling water or by steam; a small pasteurization plant; clean milk bottles and clean caps. After the milk has been pasteurized it is kept at a low temperature."

Dr. George went on his way, but he had sown seed in fertile ground.

Eph Brown started immediately on a campaign of education—his methods were neither diplomatic nor elegant, but he kept at it. It wasn't long until the whole community was talking milk. The Woman's Club, composed largely of young mothers, called a meeting and invited an expert to speak to them.

He told them the food value of milk was greater in proportion to its cost than anything they could buy. That housewives usually measure the food value by the depth of the cream line on the bottle. This, he said, was unreliable in milk that has been pasteurized, but is of some value in raw or untreated milk.

State laws regulate the amount of cream or fat in milk and prohibit the use of adulterants.

"Every town," he said, "has the power to pass ordinances requiring milk men, not only to have a license to sell their product, but to conform to the sanitary regulations concerning the handling of milk, which have been laid down by the State Department of Health."

"Typhoid fever, diphtheria, scarlet fever, and other diseases may be transmitted through milk, which has been infected either from the hands of the milkers, from flies, from the water used in cleansing utensils and in numerous other ways. The remedy is intelligent supervision, the enforcement of the milk ordinances, which includes, of course, pasteurization to destroy the germs."

He advised the appointment of a live committee to supervise the milk situation of the community and to make sure of the enforcement of the laws which were made for the protection of the people.

He spoke of the nutritional value of milk products such as butter, cheese, and ice cream, and advised a pint, or more, of clean, wholesome milk daily, for each growing child.

Public interest did not cease with the close of the meeting. The committee appointed were active and on the job. The babies of Greensward are going to have a chance, and it all came about because old Eph Brown thought cows on pasture gave pasteurized milk.

Catarrah Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrah deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrah deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced, and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrah, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Medicine acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrah Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Medicine. Circulars free. J. H. Druggists, 75c.
