Last Night's Dreams -What They Mean

DID YOU DREAM OF FRIENDS?

TO SEE friends in a dream is a good sign on the whole. If you simply dream of seeing an absent friend it means, according to the mystic authorities on such subjects, that there is pleasure ahead for you; probably you will receive good news soon. For people in tove it foretells marrlage, and to dream of absent friends is a sign of their speedy return, or that you will take a trip to the absent ones; at any rate that you will soon see them again. As to the proper manner of comporting yourself when you meet friends in a dream the authorities differ. But the consensus of opinion seems to be that you should not laugh and disport yourself with them, as hilarious behavior with friends in Dreamland is apt to take the sedge off the good fortune which seeing them would otherwise bring you, may even subject you to some slight, temporary troubles. Shocking as it may appear though, it is considered by the seers to be lucky to see yourself taking a drink with them. That is, it has been considered heretofore, but probably future oracles will cut this sign out. At any rate be careful and don't take but "just one," for otherwise yest might become sportive and hilarlous with your dream friends and nullify your good luck. (Copyeight.)

SCHOOL DAYS

THE ROMANCE OF WORDS

"WHIST."

MANY persons, in seeking the derivation of the name of the popular card game, have come to the conclusion that it originated in any one of the popular elaculations calling for silence or attention—the Latin "s," the German "hist," or the Scotch "whist." This explanation sounds logical, but there are others who as stoutly maintain that the name was derived from the fact that trumps "sweep" or "whisk" the board, a contention which is supported by a study of at least three of the languages which enter into the ground-work of English.

Thus, in German, we find "wisch," meaning a "mop." In Danish, the equivalent of the verb "to wipe" is "viske" and in Scotch it is "wiska"-all of which bear a striking resemblance to the English "whist." Another form of the same word may be found in the term "whisk-broom," meaning a broom which whisks or flecks or wipes particles of dust from clothing and the like.

"Whist," therefore, instead of signifying silence or attention, takes its name from the use of the trump-suit and naturally dates back to the days when the "no trumps" declaration was unknown.

By JESSIE ROBERTS

TABULATING YOURSELF

ANY firms and big businesses Man a way of tabulating people who come to them for employment, so that they have a notion of the physical and mental characteristics of the applicants before accepting them.

It is rather a good idea to do some of this tabulating yourself. Often you can get a better hint from this than you will get from doctor or teacher. And if you work to bring yourself closer to par, where you find you are below it, such a tabulation will pay you well.

It is easy to get hold of charts where different qualities are given points to show their relative value. Get one of these and start measuring yourself,

One such chart, which sets out to show the qualities most valuable in a good citizen divides these qualities into 25 separate items, totaling up to 1,000 points. The highest number of points for any one item is 85. This item is Assuming Responsibility. There is one 70, for honesty and reliability, and two sixtles, co-operation and helpful initiative. Taking care of health and grasp of fundamentals, each get 50; courtesy is given 45, and loyalty, promptness and choosing good associates each have 40.

Of course, simply knowing where you are weakest is not enough to help you much, though it is better than ignorance. Once you know that you fall behind, say, in initiative or co- cided fondness for a grate fire." operation or courtesy, it is up to you to do some personal development work, to engage in self-training. There is no better way to start making the best of yourself.

And there is a lot of fun in tabulating your friends! (Copyright.)

TIGHT CORNER

Trapper Tells How It Feels to Be Trapped.

Bear Hunter Experienced Uncomfortable Night in Snare He Had Prepared for Ferocious Old Grizzly.

"Old Mose" was one of the most ferocious bears in the Rockies. He was a notorious "bad actor," according to Mr. A. L. Corson in the Wide World Magazine, and foiled all attempts to shoot or trap him. Indeed, he seemed to have a charmed life.

On one occasion a man named Hancock tried to trap him. In placing the bait inside the trap, Hancock accidentally touched the trigger, and the logs came down and imprisoned him.

He tried to pry the heavy timbers apart, but found that he could not shift them an inch. From one side of the trap to the other he went, unconsciously imitating the movements Bruin would have made in hunting for a weak point. All his efforts were fruitless.

The pangs of hunger were now com ing on, and night was near. Hancock scraped up some chips and twigs, made a fire and roasted part of the deer that he had brought to bait the trap with. Being lightly dressed, he suffered keenly from the cold night air. He lay down on the ground, but suddenly he heard sniffing sounds outside and detected, by the dim light of the moon, a dark form gazing through the chinks between the logs. Hancock felt safe, although his gun was standing by a tree some distance from the trap; Mose-for it was no otherseemed to realize the fact.

Knowing his savage nature, Hancock withdrew to the other side of the trap as the big form rose up on his hind legs. He could feel the bear's hot breath surging through between the logs upon his face; and, fearing, that the brute would thrust his claws in, he kept moving from side to side, Daylight came at last, and Mose trotted off. Again Hancock built a fire and cooked the rest of the deer meat. He almost decided to set one end of the trap on fire and burn his way out. But what if he were unable to control the blaze? If he could reach his rifle, he would be in a position to shoot his way out, for he had a belt full of cartridges.

His borse, tired of standing round, had long ago made for home.

The next morning, the neighbors, seeing Hancock's horse in the yard, surmised that the "outlaw of the Rockies" had secured another victim. Seveeral cattlemen started out in search of Hancock. In the middle of the afternoon they beard shooting, but at first they could see nothing.

Hancock had torn his shirt into strips, making a rope about 20 feet long. He had then tied two stones to a string about a yard long and fastened one end of the long line to the middle. Then he threw the stones out between the cracks of his prison toward the rifle. After two hours of practice he was able to drag the gun within reach. He then tried desperately to at his way out by shooting holes through a log about a foot in diameter. Before he got very far his comrades had located the shots and released him.

Had Feared the Worst.

It is a sad thing to have to relate, but Mr. Spongedry came home the other night "wet." Not externally, but internally; he had drunk wine or spirits or beer!

With uncertain footsteps he climbed the stairs, with itchy, nervous fingers he unclothed himself, with swimming head he lay down in his bed.

Mrs. Spongedry had, however, heard his anti-catlike tread. Thinking to frighten him, she covered her head with a sheet and approached his bed. Spongedry sat up in bed and gazed in wonder at the spook.

"Who is that?" he asked. "I am a ghost!" came the answer from the sheet. "Oh, that's all right, then: But you

One cold hight he shivered in the living room while the members of the family held a discussion on their pet hobbics. One said that she "dearly loved great paintings," another professed a fondness for "great works of literature" and the third spoke eloquently on "great works of sculptors."

Finally it came the guest's time to converse. He shivered a minute and then gave a feeble smile. "Right now," he said earnestly, "I have a de-
