"I Was All Broke-up With Cold in My Head and Ached All Over."

"I'LL TELL YOU HOW I CURED MYSELF"

"I was all broke up and stuffed up with a cold in my head and I ached and felt miserable from my head to my heels. My bowels were out of order and felt worn out. Gee! but I felt sluggish mornings, and had no appetite and nothing tasted good to me. I couldn't sleep nights, and then was when I found out how to cure such troubles quick and for good. I got hold of a bottle of Earle's Hypo-Cod and it is the real thing. I feel fine. Cured myself fine and dandy in just a few days. Felt like a new man. Eat hearty—sleep like a top and my head was soon clear as a bell. Since then friends of mine have taken Hypo-Cod and it does the work every time. It tastes so nice even children like to take it, so I don't see why everybody doesn't keep a bottle in the house or somewhere handy," declared Charles C. Rehmet, 811 Hanover St., Baltimore.

Thousands of people know that by taking this newer, more modern and powerful tonic they get results days and weeks sooner. It is nice to take, too, and is made of the very finest ingredients. Hypophosphites, cod liver oil extractives, malt, wild cherry bark and iron. It builds you up just fine. No one should risk sickness by remaining weak, rundown now. * All druggists have Earle's Hypo-Cod. Get a bottle tonight.—Adv.

TRAILS ABOUND IN ROMANCE

Written Testimonial of the Trials and Triumphs of the Men Who Fashioned Them.

Nothing is more romantic than the trail, remarks a writer in the Los Angeles Times. It is the artery of trade and life itself. On land it moves about the bases of the mountains, out of the lowlands, winding through the chaparral, along the easy grades of the canyons, never forcing its way, but definitely avoiding the slippery rock face and the poison oak; upward into the fresh air that breathes through the pass; on, through the pass and into the unknown beyond, into the valley of heart's desire it carries the laden mule and the traveler with his pack.

Across the great deserts the trail is a caravan route, seeking the shades of cliff and avoiding the shifting dunes; stretching unerringly toward the next water hole. It is the written testimonial of the trials and triumphs of the men who have gone before. It is the only pathway of the devout pilgrim, as of the warlike Bedouin. Every habitation of man that has ever dominated one of these great trails has made history and has been in its day a treasure house.

Appropriate Peril.
"We had a narrow escape when we turned suddenly on that narrow path along the cliff they call the Razor."
"Yes, it must have been a close shave."
Live cheerfully, watch against anger, say little, and reform much.

FELT SOMETHING WAS WRONG

Youngster's Experience Made Him Doubt Whether His Prayers Were Really Acceptable.

In the smoking room of La France, on a cool, rough, windy day, George Gould said:
"These winter passages are unpleasant, but they're never dangerous."
"One bleak December day I was sitting, wrapped up in furs and rugs, in a sheltered corner of the promenade deck of a Cunarder. The seas were mountains high. The good old boat seemed to stand on her head one minute, and the next she reared right up on her hind legs."
"A tiny tot of a boy made his way cautiously to the young and pretty matron seated next me. He staid himself against her deck chair and said:
"Mamma, is it wrong to pray that we get home safe?"
"Of course not, darling."
"Well, he went on, 'I've been kneeling on a locker trying to pray that we arrive safe in port, and each time I begin the ship heaves up and throws me on the deck.'"

No Sunday Walk.
"I don't like the way Mr. Wadleigh pussyfoots into church."
"You don't think he's a hypocrite, do you?"
"Probably not, but he pussyfoots into church the same way he pussyfoots into a directors' meeting. He might at least alter his gait on the Sabbath."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

CASH AND SPORT FOR FARM YOUTH

Lucrative Fur Crops Ready for Harvest by Rural Dwellers During Cold Weather.

PROPER TIME FOR TRAPPING

Denizens of Forests and Streams Outwitted While King Winter Spreads White Mantle Over Greater Part of Nation.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Winter brings out the best fur on animals and at the same time gives the farmer and his boys idle days and the zest for following a line of traps, say specialists of the biological survey, United States Department of Agriculture.

It is the season when the rural dweller in nearly any part of the United States can harvest a crop to which he has devoted no other labor.

Trapping Looks Easy.
Wild-animal trapping looks easy to most farm boys until they have tried and failed. Success demands knowledge of the animals and their habits.

The red fox, for instance, must be caught by wiles as cunning as his own. Traps and the ground where they are set must be free from human scents. Steel traps are cleaned by boiling with pungent twigs or by burying or leaving in running water for a day or two, after which they should be handled only with leather or waxed cotton gloves. Breeding grounds, hunting grounds and peculiar habits of the animals should be well studied beforehand. Traps are sometimes set in springs that do not generally freeze over. A little island is built up some time before the trap is set. A No. 2 or No. 3 steel trap is imbedded in the soil with a piece of moss covering the pan. A bit of tanned meat, preferably game, is used for bait.

In making a land set, a shallow hole is made to conceal the trap and the stake and chain which hold it. The earth removed should be placed on a cloth, and all that is not used should be carried away. The trap is covered with dry earth, free from anything which would clog the jaws.

Foxes often follow paths or trails and, taking advantage of these, the trap may be set where the fox is stepping over a log naturally would place his foot.

Muskrats live in ponds, streams and marshes, and may be detected either by their houses of mud and weeds or by holes in mud banks. They may be caught in No. 1 steel traps set in the runways which they make through the weeds. A piece of carrot, parsnip or sweet apple, suspended over the trap, forms an effective bait.

Minks are caught in No. 1 steel traps set in holes in the banks of small streams or in driftwood, with a chicken or rabbit head, a fish, or a piece of muskrat meat placed beyond the trap. Skunks are usually trapped with No. 1 or No. 2 steel traps set un baited at the entrance of their dens. Care should be taken to fasten the chain so that the skunk cannot get back into his hole. They also may be caught in box traps and drowned without being removed. A trapped skunk may be approached slowly and killed without disagreeable consequences by striking it a sharp blow across the back with a stick.

Raccoons are caught in No. 2 or No. 3 steel traps set at the entrance to their holes and baited with meat. They also may be caught in traps set slightly under water close to the bank of a stream, with nothing more than a small mirror or piece of bright tin fastened on the pan to attract their curiosity. Rabbits are easily captured in box traps or snares.

Skinning the Catch.
Fox skins should be stripped off whole like a glove, and stretched fur side out. Mink and weasel skins are stripped in the same manner and "cured" fur side in. This is also the best method with skunk skins. Raccoon and muskrat skins are dried flat, fastened to a board. Care should always be taken to cut the skin as little as possible in getting it off. All flesh and fat should be removed and the skin stretched as tightly as possible. Useful bulletins on the subject can be obtained from the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington.

MOVIE REVEALS BOLL WEEVIL AS VILLAIN

Two-Reel Film Shows Activities of Little Insect.

Calcium Arsenate Plays Important Part in Destroying Pest and Saving Southern Farmers Thousands of Dollars Annually.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
"Good-by, Boll Weevil," is the title of an entertaining and instructive two-reel film just released by the United States Department of Agriculture. Mr. Boll Weevil, destroyer of American crops to the extent of many million dollars a year, is the "heavy" villain. He appears several times individually in the course of this lively production, but the principal part is devoted to the activities of the hero of the sketch, Mr. Calcium Arsenate, who is aided and abetted by the department in his efforts to bring about Larva of Weevil in Boll of Cotton.

Mr. Weevil's overthrow. "Cal" descends upon Mr. Weevil from a battery of horse-drawn machines, of which 40 are shown in one spectacular scene taken in early summer. Work is shown in the department's laboratories at Tullulah, La., and in Washington, D. C., where the methods which save cotton planters $20,000,000 or more annually were devised.

One interesting feature is the laboratory work by which bogus weevil exterminators are detected. The second part of the film, taken in the fall, shows thousands of acres of snowy cotton fields with pickers gathering the snowy bolls. Two or three contrasts are shown between fields where calcium arsenate dust has been applied and adjoining rows which were neglected. From actual experience the saving to one 5,000-acre planter is given at more than $64 an acre. The film is designed primarily for demonstration work in the South, and is one of about 500 films covering more than 100 subjects showing different phases of the work of the department. Copies of the film may be bought from the department by institutions and organizations interested in boll weevil extermination. Its use is suggested for state agricultural colleges, boards of commerce, etc.

FARM EQUIPMENT ESSENTIAL

Successful Management of Crops Depends Greatly Upon Efficiency of Implements.

The successful management of a modern farm largely depends upon the efficiency of the equipment with which the work is performed, specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture point out.
The equipment of the average farm can be divided into about three more or less distinct classes, as follows: First and most important, are the buildings, fences, implements, machinery, wagons and all appliances used in the more important farming operations; second, utensils and machinery used in connection with the dairy, garden tools, butchering outfit, and the numerous small things for general use about the place; third, the tools, materials, and facilities for keeping the first two classes of equipment in good working order.

In order to secure the greatest efficiency, all implements and machinery should be properly housed when not in actual service, so as to be in good working condition when required for use.

RATS ARE HARMFUL ON FARM

Rodents Use Surprising Ways to Get into Cellar and Can Be Exterminating in Many Ways.

Rats are the busiest creatures on the farm. They take surprising ways of getting into the cellar. Make a trip all round before you go to bed tonight, and fill every hole with powdered glass and cement. Use traps, poisons, gas, cats and terriers to get rid of rats.

SUPERIOR RATION FOR EWES

According to Feeding Tests at Iowa College Soy Bean, Corn, Corn Silage is Excellent.

Soy bean hay, corn, corn silage and salt is an excellent winter ration for pregnant ewes, according to feeding tests of the Iowa State college. Less corn is required when soy bean hay is used instead of alfalfa and pound for pound of soy bean hay excels alfalfa.

A Little Cliff Dweller.

Four-and-a-half-year-old Marshall, who is acquiring a reputation for his childish repartee, added new laurels to his honors at a Christmas dinner. His young interest was centered for a time in listening to the grown folk asking conundrums and guessing as to the proper answers. Childish repression finally burst the bonds when one of the older guests put this ancient query: "When is a door not a door?" Instantly came Marshall's retort: "When it's a in-a-door bed!"
