MANY SOLDIERS ON FORCE

Courts Support the Police Splendidly, Although a First Offender is Hardly Ever Sent to Jail-Intoxication on Wane.

New York .--- How London is policed by 2,200 constables over an area 30 miles in diameter without a revolver in the pocket of a "bobby" was discussed by Inspector A. J. Spriggs, honorary secretary of the London Metropolitan Police Athletic association, who is living at the New York Police club, according to the New York World. "Crime wave, you say?" he asked, quizzically, when questioned on the situation in London. Why, we have our good and bad spells, like you do here." He then explained that London appoints 1,000 constables a year. He said the force had been depleted by more than 1,000 during the war, many of the men never returning. But even in normal times, he explained, the department requires 1,000 new men annually.

Don't Expect to Be Shot. "Have any of your pollcemen been killed by criminals, as happens here once in a while?"

"Why, no; hardly ever; that would be a record," he replied.

"How's that?" "Our men are not armed."

"Why?" "No need for it-a criminal does not expect to be shot, and I suppose he does not care to risk being found with a gun," responded the Londoner. London policemen are promoted "right off" for especially good work, Inspector Spriggs explained. He said that almost every man entering the department in the last year or two had been a soldier.

Few Policemen Are Killed. The London "copper" works an eighthour shift, during which he is allowed a half-hour for lunch. The pay is not as much as it is here, because the Londoners are paid, housed and clothed. The married men live at home with their families and are allowed housing are about to go out of business, accord- areas of Wyoming, northwestern Coloexpenses.

There was also recently enacted a law against possession of firearms-although the criminal element, he emphasized again, does not carry a gun.

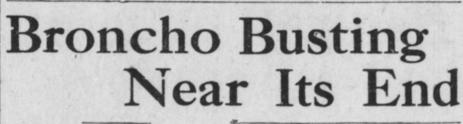

Inspector Spriggs said the courts support the police "splendidly," although a first offender is hardly ever sent to jall.

Faithful Official Gets Raise After 53 Years

The board of supervisors of Orange, N. Y., has voted to increase the salary of Theodore D. Schoonmaker, clerk of the Surrogate's court, from $1,200 to $1,500 a year. Schoonmaker is serving his fifty-third year in that office, and has never lost a paper nor been the subject of public censure. Apparently he is as active and efficient as over half a century ago. This is the first increase in

KIND-HEARTED LITTLE BOBBY

Meant Well, but He Won't Go to the Movies With Mamma Again for a While.

Bobby, a four-year-old Columbus boy, is an observing youngster; also, he is kind-hearted and willing to oblige, characteristics that were brought out in a recent incident which was embarrassing to his mother. Bobby's mother is young and pretty, and to anhance her good looks has frequent recourse to a powderpuff, with the usual remark that she fears her face is shiny.

One night this week Bobby sat with his mother in a movie, and directly in front of them sat a bald-headed man. His head was shiny, and this attracted Bobby's attention. "Say, mother," he said excitedly, "that man's head is awful shiny, isn't it?" His mother's look of distress evidently was interpreted by Bobby to mean sympathy for the man with shiny head, for he said, loud enough to be heard for several rows of seats, "Mother, couldn't you lend him your powderpuff?"--Indianapolis News.

Source of Beautiful Stones in Mexico Had Been Unknown for Many Years.

Chicago .- The lost diamond mine of Guerrero has been rediscovered, according to advices from the City of Mexico. A Mexican geologist, looking Capable of Sinking Hostile Battleship for mineral prospects in the state of Guerrero, it is said, stumbled upon the digmond mine by accident.

General Guerrero, after whom the state was named, is credited with the discovery of the mine in the early part of the last century. When Em-peror Iturbide sat upon the throne of Mexico Guerrero presented him with a number of splendid diamonds of immense size. But Guerrero died without disclosing the source of the trensure, and all knowledge of the whereabcuts of the mine died with him. Since his day many efforts have been made to locate the lost Golconda without success, and Mexicans had come to believe its existence was a romantic myth.

destroying mile after mile of grazing principally by the athletic activities of them. They belong to the San Carlos of the prairie into a scrawny covering for their bones which hardly makes even a decent meal for an Indian.

The cattlemen have tried to buy them, but the Indians wouldn't listen. The government, through A. H. Symonds, Indian agent, offered to purchase them at about $6 a head, invest the money in cattle and save the meat from the horses, giving it back to the Indians for winter food.

Horses Are Worthless.

But the Indians would have none of it. The horses are worthless, even for hides. They cannot be domesticated and the meat isn't much of a delicacy, but the Indians insist on their age-old prerogative to have their herds out on the open prairie even as their fathers did. The Indians also have about 2,000 wild burros which they say they will keep.

"And when an Indian makes up his mind," Symonds says, "you've got to have patience to get him to change it. They are proud of the horses and burros for some reason, and although some of their leaders have tried to persuade them to accept the offers made, so far they have refused to sell."

The reason is plain-the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it. A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows every here the almost every case it shows excellent re-
