Community Day at Spring Mills.

ing event on the program.

At 2:15 the afternoon program opened at the Grange hall with two well rendered selections by the Vocational School chorus and a most excellent invocation by the Rev. C. F. Catherman.

Following this introduction the pupils of the Grammar school gave a pleasing play in which each character dressed in appropriate costume represented an article of vegetarian diet. The play was unique, entertaining and instructive.

The first speaker of the afternoon, A. A. Borland, professor of Dairy Husbandry, at Penn State, gave a most practical address on the subject, "The Relation of the Vocational School to the Rural Community." He showed clearly that the purpose of the Vocational School is to prepare the boys and girls of the community for service in the community. By citing instances in the day's events and exhibits he proved that Gregg Township Vocational School is producing boys and girls of character and ability, who in turn increase the civic and national wealth of the community.

Dr. D. W. Lewis, Deputy State Superintendent of Public Instruction, brot the program of the afternoon to a most fitting close by a clear cut, forceful and eloquent address on the subject, "Democracy and Education." This inspiring address was built around three pertinent questions: What is Democracy? What can Democracy do for the School? What can the School do for Democracy?

By clever narrative, practical illustration on specific instance the theme was interestingly concluded in the answers to the three questions. Democracy is a social philosophy. Democracy alone can offer equal opportunity in education. Upon the proper training through the school of the boys and girls of today depends the triumph or the fall of democracy in the world.

While the afternoon program was in progress at Grange hall, various athletic contests were conducted on the Vocational School campus. Dodge ball between the Millheim High School, Rebersburg High School and the local Vocational School teams were played, the Vocational School scoring the highest number of points.

The married men of the community in a spirited contest with the single men demonstrated their athletic prowess by defeating the latter and also the Vocational team who later challenged them. Out door basket ball by the girls and boys teams of the Vocational School provided amusement for the sport fans.

Following supper at the Vocational School, a social evening was enjoyed. An informal program of movies, interspersed with Edison selections, and highly entertaining numbers by the Variety male quartette from Penn State.

In concluding the day's events, Dr. Lewis read the report of the judges and awarded the prizes. Thus closed one more profitable, entertaining and educational day in the history of Gregg Township Vocational School and the community of Spring Mills.

The School desires to express its appreciation to the patrons who voluntarily offered their services in carrying out the events of the day. Also to the judges who so ably judged the exhibits of the different departments.
