Prof. I. H. Mauser, superintendent of the schools of Northumberland county since 1910, died at his home in Sunbury, at the age of sixty-three years. Almost his entire life was devoted to school work, in Union county, having begun as a teacher in one of the country schools.

A Philadelphia attorney objected to Judge Henry C. Quigley, of Bellefonte, presiding over a court in that city, claiming the law of 1911 permitting judges to sit in cases outside their jurisdiction as unconstitutional. The attorney was overruled and Judge Quigley continued to preside.

Three brothers, sons of the late David Hennigh, died since April 19th. On that date, David, Jr., died at Sabetha, Kansas; a week later, April 17th, John died at Atchison, Kansas; and on October 31st, B. Frank, of Larned, Kansas, whose death notice appears elsewhere in this issue, passed away.

William Irvin Swope of Clearfield, evidently has a strong belief in the saying "the early bird catches the worm," and has already officially announced himself a candidate for the Republican nomination for congress in this, the twenty-first congressional district. The district, from a Republican standpoint, is ably represented by the Honorable Evan J. Jones.

Hotels Fined $500.
Thirteen Williamsport hotel men were each fined $500 and costs for selling non-intoxicating beverages without a license. In passing sentence the court said the men were indicted for selling a commodity which required a license, although it might be of the same nature as sodawater yet the court continued the law directs that there must be a license for the sale of non-intoxicating beverages and does not for sodawater.

CELEBRATE GOLDEN WEDDING.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Breen Married Fifty Years—Celebrate on Saturday.

The fiftieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Breen, of Centre Hall, was celebrated on Saturday at their home on Church street. The event brought to their home just one-half their children, namely, Jane, wife of John Benner, Bellefonte; George Breen, Reading; Annie, wife of J. Cloyd Brooks Centre Hall; Helen, wife of Lynn Platt, State College. Others among the twenty-five guests present were, a brother, James Breen, Yeagertown; Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Smith, Reedsville; George Shecker, Milesburg; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Martin, Bellefonte.

Mr. Breen and Miss Mary Shecker were married in Bellefonte by Rev. Clinger. Mr. Breen was a resident of Benner township and Mrs. Breen a resident of Bellefonte at the time of their marriage. The couple lived the greater part of their life in Benner township, following the pursuit of farming. From Benner township the couple, about twenty years ago, moved to Rhonexmede, above Centre Hall, from there to Axemann and then again to Centre Hall, where they now live.

Musical Recital.

Miss Byrd Stover, who has been teaching music to young people in and about Centre Hall for several years, brought her pupils before an audience for the first time on Tuesday night. The little children, as well as those older in years, all did very well and some of them performed remarkably well. The evening was a delightful one to the large audience in the United Evangelical church. The offering which was comparatively liberal, was all retained by the church.

The following is a list of the young folks who took part in the recital: Mary Bingham, Elizabeth Royer, Mary Weber, Myla Spyster, Eugene Colyer, Robert and Philip McClennahan, Miriam Moore, Agnes Geary, Bertha Sharer, Russel Colyer, Emma Bible, Paul Smith, Ruth Bingham, Margaret Luse, Charlotte Keller, Wilbur McClellan, Louise Smith, Beulah Bingham, Elizabeth Bartholomew, Edith Floray, Ethel Frank, Mary Dutow, Pearl Floray, Algie Emery, Gertrude Ruble, Byers Pippka, Margaret Alexander, Emelyn Brungart, James Royer, Harold Durst, Kathryn Smith, Beulah Bingham, Edith Moltz.

Cheap Grain and High Priced Eggs.

The methods and principles of feeding laying hens were clearly brought out at meetings last week held at thirteen farms in different sections of Centre county. County Agent, J. N. Robinson had arranged these meetings in order that the farmers could learn how to feed that the best results could be obtained.

H. D. Moore, poultry specialist from the Penna State College, showed in what proportion a farmer could mix his own grains in order to derive the greatest value for them. With the price of grain so low, a farmer must do everything possible to break even on the grain crop. The high price of eggs and poultry products opens up the way in which some of the grain may be disposed of at a fair price by feeding to the poultry if it is correctly done.

A bulletin on feeding laying hens is available at the Farm Bureau office for the benefit of those who were not able to attend one of the meetings. J. N. ROBINSON.

The Tusseyville postoffice has a lease of life at least until December 15th. Postmaster Ramer had his books all in readiness to close the office on Tuesday, but during the day received a telegram instructing him to continue business.

The office was ordered closed October 15th and then again November 15th. The final outcome of the present order is, of course, unknown.

The young couple will begin housekeeping next spring on the Stamm farm, near Boalsburg, purchased by the groom's father some time ago. The Reporter extends congratulations.

Eugene Smith, of near White Pine, died in the Jersey Shore hospital from a gunshot wound in the knee. He was hunting with a companion, Louis English, and in some manner the latter's gun, a rifle, was accidentally discharged, hitting Mr. Smith, aged 38 years, in the knee, from the rear.

THOMAS R. GREY KILLED IN AUTO WRECK.

Car Misses Bridge and Topples Into Creek—Driver's Neck Broken—Three Students Injured.

About six o'clock Sunday morning a touring car driven by Thomas R. Grey, of State College, toppled into Kishacoquillas creek at the Red Bridge near Lewistown, resulting in the driver having his neck broken and three others being injured. The car landed in such a position as to pin Mr. Grey under it. The others injured were Miss Amelia Schuler, McConnellsville; Stuart Taylor, Harrisburg, and J. Fred Mertz, Philadelphia, who were taken to the Lewistown hospital, and will recover. The uninjured occupants escaped with a ducking.

The party was returning from the Penn State-Navy football game, at Philadelphia. There is a sharp curve at the bridge and for some reason the driver failed to keep the road, plunging into the creek.

Mr. Grey is aged fifty-five years, and has been a resident of State College for some time. He was living a semi-retired life but occasionally engaged in transporting students to various points in his car. He leaves a wife, a daughter of Franklin Bowersox, of Pine Grove Mills, two sons and a daughter. Zane B. Grey and Mrs. Grant Hoover, of Williamsport, are brother and sister, respectively, of the deceased.

COMMUNITY DAY BIG EVENT AT BOALSBURG.

Harris Township Citizens Turn Out to Recognize Good Work of the High School.

On Thursday, November 3rd the pupils of Boalsburg High School and the people of the community held their first Agricultural Community Day which was a success in every way. Since Vocational Agriculture has been taught in the Boalsburg High School, quite a bit of real interest has been shown by the boys and girls in obtaining practical agricultural knowledge in such a course.

Through the efforts of County Agent J. N. Robinson and J. B. Payne, County Supervisor, there was organized this year a pure-bred pig club in that community. All members of the Boalsburg club were very enthusiastic over this pure-bred stock. Their individual pigs were brought into Boalsburg, judged and weighed by experts from State College. The judges awarded prizes to club members as follows:

1. Richard Goheen, a watch.
2. Theodore Segner, a fountain pen.
3. Russell Bohn, a flashlight.
4. John Kline, an Eversharp pencil.
5. Wm. Smith, an Eversharp pencil.

To James Bohn, for best conditional male pig, a knife.

All the exhibits of the livestock and farm produce carried with them the idea of improvement in agriculture and the educational value of such an exhibit was worth while going to see. The evening meeting for better agriculture was held in Boal hall and was very well attended. Addresses were made by H. C. Fetterolf, State Supervisor of Agricultural Education, Harrisburg; Mr. H. R. Williams, Washington, D. C., Federal Director of Vocational Agriculture; Mr. F. P. Weaver, State College, Assistant Director of extension; Mr. J. B. Payne, County Vocational Supervisor; Mr. J. N. Robinson, County Agent.

Rich Banker Blackmailed.

Bogus Nobleman Tells How He and A Pretty Woman Lured Millionaire New Yorker Into A Wicked Trap. The bogus "Count Gregory," who preyed for so many years on American fashionable society, did not bother with any small game. The victims whom he robbed and blackmailed included some of the greatest of the country's millionaires, some of the most prominent of its social leaders.

One of his most notable victims was a New York banker—many times a millionaire, a man who is a power today in the financial world. "Count" Gregory cleverly played on the banker's fondness for pretty women and finally blackmailed him out of a small fortune.

This was only one of the bold exploits which the bogus nobleman accomplished with the aid of a British army officer's charming wife. Into her arms the wicked count delivered victim after victim, and when she had seduced them, she divided the spoils with him on a fifty-fifty basis.

Just how the wicked trap was set for the rich New York banker, just how beautiful Alma Hayne supplied the alluring bait for it is all told by "Count" Gregory himself in Next Sunday's NEW YORK AMERICAN.

Not in years has any series of newspaper articles created a more profound sensation than these confessions of how a former stable boy passed himself off as a nobleman, worked his way into the innermost circles of fashionable society, and then—blackmailed and robbed his admiring patrons.

Don't forget that you get the confessions of this prince of adventurers only in the NEW YORK SUNDAY AMERICAN. A new chapter in the story of his surprising career, told by "Count" Gregory himself, appears every Sunday, and each one is more fascinating than the last.

Lewistown has some hunter in the person of Mrs. Dora Miller. The result of a two days' hunt was the killing of one wild turkey, four rabbits, four grey squirrels and one pheasant.
