Mrs. Robert Snyder and little daughter, of Altoona, are visiting at the Jas. S. Stahl home.

Mrs. James P. Herring, of Altoona, visited her sister, Mrs. Laura Lee, in Centre Hall, this week.

Cleveland Mitterling is making progress toward complete recovery from his recent illness.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Reish and three children, of State College, spent Sunday with Mrs. Reish's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Homan.

Hunters from far and wide have been arriving in Centre Hall the past few days and establishing camps in the Seven Mountains for the deer season.

"I have taken eight bottles of Tanelac and have actually gained 40 pounds in weight and feel better and stronger than I have felt before in twenty-five years," says O. H. Mahaffy, of Nashville, Tenn.

Rev. B. F. Bieber, of Muncy is reported ill from an attack of typhoid fever. He was a former pastor of the local Lutheran church, and left many dear friends who will wish for his speedy recovery.

John D. Moore and family desire to give expression of gratitude for the assistance of neighbors and members of the Odd Fellows lodge who so kindly came to their assistance during illness in their home.

Last week's Tyrone Times said: Rev. William R. Picken, of Centre Hall, delighted two large audiences with his very forceful sermons at the Columbia Avenue Methodist Episcopal church on Sunday.

J. William Bradford and the Misses Isabel and Verna Rowe made a trip to Pittsburgh on Thanksgiving Day, and while the ladies enjoyed the sights of the city, Mr. Bradford took in the State-Pitt football game.

Mrs. Roy Martz, who has been confined to her bed at her home at Old Fort for nearly eleven weeks, shows little improvement in her condition. A second operation was performed at her home only a short time ago.

Prof. L. O. Packer, superintendent of night school in the Pittsburgh High, enjoyed a few days over the Thanksgiving season at his home in Centre Hall. Prof. Packer has over 1900 students under his supervision and likes his work.

Mrs. John Treaster, of near Tusseyville, who has been suffering greatly with heart trouble for some time past, was taken to the Bellefonte hospital, last Friday, for treatment. Her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Peteroff, of Centre Hall, conveyed her to the hospital.

Mrs. Lucy Henney and son Wilbur motored to New Bloomfield, last week, and partook of an elegant Thanksgiving Day dinner at the home of the former's sister, Mrs. James E. Stewart. They were joined there by C. F. Deininger, of Harrisburg, who later accompanied the party home to Centre Hall.

We have a great deal of respect for Frank J. McClellan's knowledge of intricate machinery, for he helped us out of a predicament last Friday when our Linotype was doing everything but the right thing. Mr. McClellan chanced to drop in the office and was Johnny-on-the-spot all right. Thanks.

C. F. Deininger was in town last week. He is a clerk in the Bureau of Employment and as such has been recognized as efficient, having revised and reorganized the bureau in such a creditable manner that a movement is on the way to not only increase his salary but to make him statistician of the Bureau of Employment.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Keefe and children, of Youngwood, came to Centre Hall last week for a short stay at the Cyrus Brungart home. Mr. Keefe is putting in the time gunning for game and is disappointed in finding small game so scarce in Centre county. This week he was joined by several friends from Youngwood who will accompany him to the Seven Mountains for a deer hunt.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Rimmey will begin farming on the Thomas A. Hosterman farm at Centre Hill, succeeding Hay W. Smith. This is the third Rimmey to marry within a few years and take up farming in which line they are very successful. The two brothers referred to are Edgar, operating the Rimmey homestead above Tusseyville, and John L., tenant on the M. Rossman farm, also near Tusseyville.

Miss Shipps, the Red Cross nurse, last week, took George Weaver, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Weaver, to Harrisburg for a second operation. The lad has a growth of a cancerous nature in his mouth. The first operation, which was not considered a final one, brought relief and it is hoped a second one may prove successful in removing the entire trouble, although not too confidently looked for.

It cost a party of four, including C. H. Meyers, of Pine Grove Mills, the Homan brothers, of State College, and a hired man employed on the Meyers farm, a total of $400 and costs for killing a six-prong buck out of season. The deer was killed November 10 near Pennsylvania Furnace, while the party were hunting wild turkeys. Game warden Frank A. Meyers and game protector W. D. Melcher, of Altoona, made the arrest.

Diphtheria Among Lock Haven Children.

The board of health at Lock Haven is arranging stringent precautionary measures to prevent the spread of an outbreak of diphtheria which has already taken the lives of two small children. A number of cases of the disease have existed but the epidemic was apparently under control, with the list of patients reduced to twelve, until the outbreak of the current period of bad weather.

Goes to Death Chair.

Protesting to the last his innocence of the crime of which he was convicted, Frank Palma, of Lackawanna county, was electrocuted at Rockview penitentiary on Monday. Palma was taken to the chair at 7:10 and five minutes later, after only two contacts, he was pronounced dead by Dr. Robert J. Campbell.

Palma was convicted for the killing of Michael Shosite, of Scranton, in April, 1920. The testimony against him brought out that he was a member of a society, and he was designated to do away with Shosite. Palma, however, maintained the killing was not done by him, but by two other men.

The presenting company includes several well-known and popular favorites and with Jack Reid himself who will be seen in the first act in his favorite role "The Dope" or as he is better known throughout the country, "The Information Kid" a character which has made him the acknowledged peer of all the "Dope" performers. Bull Assaults H. C. Reish.

Farmer Harry C. Reish, east of Spring Mills, had a thrilling experience on Saturday evening with a 2000-pound Holstein bull. He was leading the animal and for some unaccountable reason the bull assaulted him, striking him in the face with such force as to crush some of the bones in the right cheek, and render him unconscious. Fortunately Mr. Reish's hired man was near by, and prevented the bull from following up his first lunge.

Mr. Reish was taken to the house and later was brought to Dr. Longwell's office, the doctor advising him to go to the Bellefonte hospital. On reaching the hospital, Dr. Locke made an examination of the injuries and advised him to go to the Drexville hospital, which advice was acted upon, the latter hospital being reached Sunday forenoon. On Tuesday Mr. Reish returned to his home and is reported as getting along very well.

Mrs. W. A. Odenkirk, daughters Dorothy and Helen, and Mrs. P. H. Meyer spent Saturday in Lewistown.

Mrs. W. E. Bartges, of Earlystown, whose condition had been quite critical for several days, is reported much better.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Krape, Miss Delcie Morris, of Spring Mills, and Mrs. Robert Meyer and baby Joe, of Altoona, were Sunday visitors at the W. A. Odenkirk home.

LITTLE STORY CARRIED STING

Must Have Shown to Readers the Neglected Industrial Possibilities of the South.

D. A. Tompkins, the father of the cotton-oil industry, who built his fortune on his inextinguishable faith in the industrial possibilities of the South, was fond of quoting this little story about a Georgia funeral, says his biographer, Dr. George Tayloe Winston, in "A Builder of the New South."

"I attended a funeral once in Pickens county, Georgia. It was a poor, 'ore-gallus' fellow. They buried him in the midst of a marble quarry; they cut through solid marble to make his grave, and yet a little tombstone they put above him was from Vermont. They buried him in the heart of a pine forest, and the pine coffin was imported from Cincinnati. They buried him within touch of an iron mine, and yet the nails of his coffin and the iron in the shovel that dug his grave were imported from Pittsburgh. They buried him by the side of the best sheep-grazing country on earth, and yet the wool in the coffin bands and the coffin bands themselves were imported from the North. The South did not furnish a thing on earth for that funeral but the corpse and the hole in the ground. There they put him away and the clouds rattled down on his coffin and they buried him in a New York coat and a Boston pair of shoes and a pair of breeches from Chicago and a shirt from Cincinnati, leaving him nothing to carry into the next world with him to remind him of the country in which he lived and for which he fought four years but the chill blood in his veins and the marrow in his bones."

WORLD'S DEBT TO CHINAMAN

Celestial is Directly Responsible for Improvement in the Breeding of American Porkers.

The economic genius who figured out that all that was needed to bring unbounded prosperity to the cotton mills of New England was to add half an inch to each Chinaman's shirt tail never carried out his project, but the Chinaman, without announcing his plan, has done something quite as remarkable: He has added inches to the legs of the American pig.

He has not done it alone. He has had help from the East and West Indies and from our own farmers in the South. The process was simple and was just another instance of a great industry altering itself almost unconsciously to meet new conditions, the Nation's Business states.

Not many years ago the prizes of the pig world went to the round, short-legged type, the kind of hog that you couldn't see under. The chief purpose in the life of that hog was to turn corn into lard. Now it's the pig type that is popular, the pig that makes more lean meat, more bacon and more ham.

What has done it? For one thing the Chinaman and his soy bean, coconut, corn, cottonseed and peanut are furnishing a vast amount of lard substitutes at prices lower than the pig can supply his product. So the four-legged lard factory is turning to the ham business and the Chinaman, his shirt tail unlengthened, has added to the legs of the American hog.

Young Financier Forgot That Bank's Relations With Its Clients Must Be Confidential.

Banks and bankers give much time and attention to the training of their apprentices. The head of a big downtown institution was once giving a lecture on the work of the paying teller and, as Homer occasionally nodded, this man felt justified in lapsing, toward the end of his talk, into an informal narrative of some of his early experiences. He told of the natural reluctance of a bank to refuse to cash a check for one entitled to the money who might not be fully or regularly identified and of various ways in which an experienced teller satisfies himself of an applicant's good faith.

Mixture of Races in France.

The mixture of races that have constituted the French people of today has determined the principal physical characteristics of our people. Thus it has been found, writes the Paris correspondent of the Journal of the American Medical Association, that the average height for men is 165 cm. (5 feet 2 inches). The observations indicate that 85.10 per cent of the French people have chestnut hair. The blonds are next in order, forming only 12.32 per cent of the population. Pure black hair is found in 1.83 per cent—that is, slightly more frequently than red hair, which altogether was found in only 0.72 per cent of cases.
