Marketing Eggs—The quality of the eggs marketed is what determines the price. When eggs of all kinds are mixed together, remember that you get just as little for the good eggs as is paid for the poor ones.

Frozen Milk—Freezing not only injures milk but makes it difficult to get an actual sample for testing. Protect yourself and do not injure nature's best food by letting it freeze.

Ready for Spring?—Cabbage and lettuce seed to be started in green houses or in small quantities in the garden for an early crop should be on hand. In southern Pennsylvania seed may be sown now. In the northern part of the state a week or two later.

Poultry—Male birds should be with the flock at least two weeks before eggs are saved for hatching. It is time to be sure that you have your male birds for this season's breeding.

Odd Jobs—How about getting a little of your favorite harness dressing and by applying it extend the life of the harness?

Starks' Nursery, located at Louisiana, Missouri, one of the best known nurseries in the country, is represented by the undersigned, who is able to furnish you all varieties of nursery stock to be grown in this locality. Special attention is called to the Golden Delicious apple, a sample of which is carried, also the Red Delicious, both varieties being popular in the market today.

Seed Selection Important.
Comparatively few gardeners give the attention to the selection of seed the attention its importance demands, declares Dean R. L. Watts, of the Pennsylvania State College agricultural school. The average gardener is too much inclined to accept catalogue descriptions of varieties and be content with the varieties they have been growing for years. He advises that if there is anything better to be obtained, to be constantly on the lookout for it and grow it.

"If a man is able to grow five tons or more of cabbage per acre by using the right seed, even if it does cost more, is it not an important factor in lowering the cost of production, and raising our profits per acre?" is a question that Dean Watts applies to the problem. "Don't be too certain that you have the best, or that you know exactly where to get it. Take time to make a thorough investigation of the whole question."
