ROOT CROPS ARE MOST IMPORTANT

Beets and Carrots Stand at Head of List From Standpoint of Food Value.

RADISHES NEED SMALL SPACE

Rich, Well-Prepared Soil Is Essential and Good Seed Should Be Used-Parsnips and Salsify Deserve Attention.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Root crops most commonly grown in home gardens are radishes; beets, carrots, parsnips, salsify, and turnips. Of these beets and carrots stand at the head of the list from the standpoint of food value from a given area of land, but it would be difficult to state which of the root crops really is the most important, say garden specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Radishes are among the first garden crops to be planted in spring, and a very small space is required to produce all that is needed by the average family. The soil should be loose, mellow, and very rich, so the radishes will grow quickly and be crisp and tender. Radish seeds should be planted in a shallow furrow and covered about onehalf inch deep. Two or three varieties should be planted in order to have a continuous supply. French Breakfast and Scarlet Globe Turnip are among those which mature in the shortest period, while Long Scarlet Short-Top and Long White Vienna or Lady Finger are good to follow the extra early varieties.

Plant Beets Early. Garden beets can be planted almost as soon as the soil can be worked in the spring. Rich soil that is well prepared is essential. Commercial fertilizers and well-rotted manures are best to supply plant food, but should be very thoroughly mixed with the soil. Egyptian and Detroit Dark Red are among the leading varieties. Sow the seed in a shallow drill, I ounce of seed to 50 feet of drill, and cover about 1 inch deep. When the plants have become well established thin so they do not crowd. A little later thin a second time, leaving the plants standing 4 to 5 inches apart in the row. Use the thinnings as greens. The round or turnip type of beets mature in 60 to 70 days, while the longer ones require 100 to 120 days to complete their prepared soil is the first essential. Good seed is important, and the seed should always be that which was saved the previous year. Oxheart and greater cost than when garbage is fed Chantenay are the varieties most commonly planted. Space the rows 15 to 18 inches apart. One ounce of the seed is sufficient for 100 feet of row. Cover the seeds one-half inch deep and keep the crust slightly broken over the seeds until they come up. Thin twice, finally leaving the plants three to five inches apart in the row, those pulled during the second thinning being used as "baby" carrots on the table.

Parsnips and Salsify. Throughout the northern sections parsnips and salsify are important as root crops for the garden. Their culture is very much the same, and they require a deep, rich soil, so the long roots will have a chance to develop. Plant the seed early, so the plants will first few days of heavy work, bathe get well started before the heat of summer comes, and keep them growing the entire season. The rows should thinned to stand four inches apart in the row. Parsnips and salsify may remain in the ground all winter until of prevention is worth several pounds wanted for use. Hollow Crown is the leading variety of parsnip, while Mammoth Sandwich Island is the best known variety of salsify.

TO PRODUCE QUALITY FRUIT

Soil Must Have Most Careful Attention Where Trees Are Planted Close Together.

Close planted trees are going to need every favor possible in the way the soil is handled in order to continue to produce quality fruit. This means, for the most part, that intercropping is to be discouraged unless the soil is unusually rich or constant application of the proper fertilizers is made.

MANY WAYS IN WHICH PEANUTS ARE USEFUL

Are Drug on Market.

Increased Consumption and Higher Prices Looked for With Coming of Spring-Fed to Hogs in Southern States.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Peanuts are a drug on the market just now. That's because they are not eaten largely in cold weather, but with the coming of the robin, which is a harbinger of spring, circuses and the opening of summer resorts, peanut shippers look for increased consumption, which may mean higher prices. In round figures, 900,000,000 pounds of peanuts are grown in the United States every year and 100,000,000 pounds were imported from Asia last year. About 5,000,000 pounds of roasted peanuts are consumed annually, say marketing experts of the bureau of markets, United States Department of Agriculture.

Few of the fond papas and mammas who buy Johnnie or Mary a bag of peanuts at the circus know that more than 100 different methods of utilizing peanuts, including the making of fancy dyes and wood stains, peanut milk, coffee, and ice cream have been devised, although few of these products are sold commercially. But peanut oil, peanut candy, peanut butter, salted peanuts, peanut cookies, roasted peanuts, and peanuts in a number of other forms run up the annual American per capita consumption to three and one-half pounds. Every time certain soaps are used the consumer is partaking of his three and one-half pounds.

FEEDING VALUE OF GARBAGE

Affords Hogs Well-Balanced Ration and Supplementary Feeds Are Not Necessary.

Most garbage is of such variety that it enables a hog to balance its ration so that supplementary feeds are not required. In some cases, however, the animals are finished off on corn, barley, wheat middlings, and similar feed just before they are marketed. The feeding value of garbage, however, especially carefully selected garbage, is such that it is seldom economical to use any additional grain supplement. However, when grain is low in price, good results might be obtained by feeding garbage alone during the summer months, when ordinarily there is a large production, and finishing the hogs on grain. Greater gains per day can be made with a grain supplement, but at alone.

BEST ORCHARD CULTIVATION

If Intercropping Is Practiced It Is Better to Grow Some Crop Like Strawberries.

The orchard should be kept clean. The best practice is to cultivate, not deep but shallow, in order not to disturb the roots, and not too close to the trees, for the same reason. If intercropping is to be practiced it is far better to grow some crop like strawberries between the trees, or small bush fruits, and keep the remainder of the ground cultivated, than to permit grass sod or weeds to get a start.

Hair, Face Frame

> Adopt Ideal Mode and Stick to It Always, is the Advice of a Fashion Authority.

Some women really don't seem to realize the great importance of the coiffure, yet one cannot attach too much importance to a becoming way of "doing the hair," asserts a leading fashion authority. The hair is nature's own pretty frame for the face and, of course, can easily make or mar any one's features and change, for better or for worse, the entire expression of the face.

That is why I am always surprised, sometimes shocked, to see women's tendency to imitate and readily adopt any new style launched by a theatrical beauty or a society belle.

Worn by the very young girl with the small, round head, the saucy nose and perky chin, the bobbed hair is simply exquisite. But alas! when her fat, double-chinned sister tries to emulate her I call the result a positive disaster.

If your head is rather large in proportion to your body, why should you make it even larger by adopting a "new wrinkle" in hair dressing? I may be called old-fashioned, but bear in mind, bobbed hair should be severely taboo to the married woman, even should she be in the early twentles. A real-for-true man doesn't like to introduce as his wife a little, fluffy, silly girl, with hair cut so as to give her an air of irresponsibility.

If you have a round face, wear your bair quite smooth on the sides and pile it 'way up on top of your head. This is sure to give you height. The madonna with soulful eyes should exaggerate her lovely type by adopting the straight, simple parting in the middle, "bandeau." If you possess a pretty forehead, show it; if your nose happens to be a little too long, try to puff your hair at the back. I know you will be pleased at the result.

Dress your hair as neatly, as carefully as possible, but-and this is another pitfall to be avoided-don't look as though you had just stepped out from the hairdresser's establishment. In Paris there is a new style in hairdressing which I think is excellently

The short girl with the too full neck would be wise indeed to adopt this style. It is, as a rule, a very becoming fashion and most feminine.

I think it is a great, even a grave; mistake to try to dress the hair differently for evening wear. Adopt what you decide is the ideal coiffure for your type and then stick to it always. Of course, for box parties, balls and the like a hair trimming of some kind may be added with successful result.

Spanish-looking huge combs are the vogue, and I must say that they prove generally becoming. Young girls have always liked to wear flowers in their hair and they must be pleased, for just now this garniture is considered quite the thing. Gold leaves and grapes bandeau form a pretty and festive headdress. Of course, you should remember that the bandeau is the most trying hair ornament in the world, for it straps the forehead flat and naturally enlarges the nose.

Knitted Garments.

The correct washing of knitted garments is important. Naturally they must not be washed in hot water nor in cold, but in water that is just a little more than lukewarm. Avoid rubbing soap on the garments. Make suds first. Such garments must not be hung out to dry, but placed in a little hammock made of a good-sized towel or piece of cloth, and tossed about until no suspicion of moisture remains.

HIGH CROWN HATS, PARIS FASHION

Narrow-Brimmed Millinery Well to French say, in opposition-a dull-Fore-New Models in Roll and Straight Brims.

The spring millinery season in Paris opens with the high-crowned, narrow- conjunction with a fine, dull picot brimmed shape well to the fore. In many of the shapes the brim is slightly wider at the back than at the front. Not infrequently, in fact, models are entirely brimless, or have the merest suggestion of a narrow visor at the front with a wide, straight brim of graduated width across the sides and the back. Generally speaking, this season medium-sized hats with brims take precedence over turbans or toques. says Dry Goods Economist. This follows the usual rule for spring hats, in which, with the first rays of sunshine, a brim of some sort is supposed to be required. Especially is the brim hat the herald of spring in France, for the first models are created for wear on the Riviera where the merciless, even blinding sun makes a brim of some importance a first necessity for all styles of hats.

With regard to styles, thus far all shapes are in the running, and new models are shown in roll-brim, straight-brim and cloche styles.

A marked tendency toward very thick brim treatments is noted, rolls of velvet or of straw frequently appearing as finish to medium-sized rollbrim sailors. The heavy pencil-edge brim is again making its appearance. Straws are both shiny and dull, fabrics also, and the two are exten-

Printed Leather for Collars. Neckwear is capable of doing unusual things, too. Leather sets in all colors, most of them plain, some with metal eyelets, are being featured. Paisley prints on Florentine silk are used for allover sets, and for vestees with matching cuffs. Ginghams in small checks appear in the regulation colors. All heavy materials, including pique, ratine and linens, will be much used. Linens are finished with filet lace edge, and a new treatment which is particularly good, is the use of brilliantly colored wool embroidery
