

PRIDE IN SCHOOLS

Dominant Feeling Among Settlers in Western Canada.

Despite "Newness" of the Country, There Are No Better Institutions of Learning Anywhere.

There is frequently hesitation expressed by those whose minds are almost made up to move to the agricultural lands of Western Canada, that the children will not enjoy the school privileges afforded them in their present surroundings. This is a reasonable doubt. The country is new. It is within the memory of many who will read this that the bison roamed these prairies at will, that there were no railroads, no settlements beyond that of some of the Hudson Bay posts, a few courageous ranchmen and Indians. It was a country of unknown quantity. It is different today, and it has been made different in that short time because of the latent stores of wealth hidden in the land, which has been made to yield bountifully through the daring enterprise of the pioneer and the railways that had the courage to extend their enterprising lines of steel throughout its length and a great portion of its breadth. Villages and hamlets have developed into towns and towns into cities, supported and maintained by those who, coming practically from all parts of the world, and many, yes, thousands, from the neighboring states to the south, have taken up land that cost them but a trifle as compared with what they were able to dispose of the holdings upon which they had been living for years. These people brought with them a method in life that electrified and changed the entire Canadian West. Today things are different, and a trip to Western Canada will show a country new but old. New because changes have been wrought that give to the newcomer the opportunity to become part of a growing and developing country—it gives the chance to say what shall be made of it; old because there has been brought into its life those things that have proven useful in older countries, while there has been eliminated everything that would tend to a backward stage. A writer, dealing with social matters, treats of the schools, and says:

"Everywhere the school follows the plow. Cities which a few years ago were represented by scattered shacks are proud today of their school buildings. The web of education is being spread over the prairie. Lately, however, a new policy has been adopted. Instead of many rural schools, big central schools are being established, each serving an area of fifty square miles or so, and children who live a mile and a half away are conveyed thither in well-warmed motor cars. In the summer, of course, they come on "bikes" or ponies.

"And the young idea is taught to shoot in many directions. The instruction is not limited to the three R's, but nature study and manual crafts are taught, in order that the future agriculturist may have his educational foundation laid. Many rural schools have pleasant gardens attached, with flower and vegetable beds, and the visitor to one such school deep in the country says she will never forget the pride with which a little lad showed her the patch of onions in his plot. Thrift is also taught in the schools by means of the dime bank.

"Following the primary schools there are secondary schools, where training is free. This includes classics, modern languages, science, mathematics, advanced English, and often agricultural, commercial, and technical subjects, and—but this concerns the girls—household economics. For three years this lasts, and then comes matriculation into the university, a matriculation which admits direct to the arts or science degree, or the education may be completed by a course in some special subject at a technical institute."—Advertisement.

Miss Elisabeth Marbury was talking at the Colony club in New York about a beautiful actress who had been obliged to divorce her actor husband after three months of wedlock on account of his shocking infidelity.

"The poor girl thought," said Miss Marbury, "that she was marrying a man who would be constant in love, but he turned out to be constantly in love."

GOING GREAT GUNS WITH YANKEES

"Lanky Bob" Meusel of the New York Yankees.

"Lanky Bob," they call him, and he's the American league brother of "Irish Emil" of the Giants. The Yankee Meusel is pictured here making a batting swing that has made him famous, for he has fought his way through the field and now ranks near the top in the official batting record. In the Friday, July 21, game against the Detroit Tigers at New York, Meusel had a perfect day at bat, getting four hits in four trips to the plate, driving in five runs and scoring two himself. Enough to win. His consistent hitting has been the most brilliant light of the Yankees' fight to regain the lead from the St. Louis Browns.

Base Runner Carried Companion Over Plate

The situation was this: A runner was on third and one on second. The batter hit for a home run. At least it seemed that way. The runner from third twisted his ankle going in, fell down and couldn't rise. The following runner did not wish to pass him, as that would be an out. He picked the runner up in his arms, careful to keep him in front of him all the time, and carried him home, but never passed him. The umpire jogged alongside of them to watch the play, and decided that both runs counted because rule 56 had not been violated.

KID PITCHER FOOLED WAGNER

Youngster From Small Illinois Town Trimmed Pittsburgh Pirates Because of Grin.

"Back in 1913 the Cardinals got hold of a young pitcher named Joe Willis," says Sid Keener, veteran St.

Hans Wagner.

Louis scribe. "He came from some Illinois town like Springfield or Decatur, and had a fair amount of stuff. He also had a sort of a natural grin, wearing the smile that never came off.

"St. Louis started him against Pittsburgh and four innings sped by. The Pirates found themselves not only without a run, but also without the semblance of a hit.

"Just as the fifth started, Hans Wagner, shortstop, went up to Capt. Fred Clarke and said: 'Look at their pitcher. He's laughing at us because we're so easy. Let's go out and murder him.'

"So the Pirates swung at everything, with the result that Willis held them to two scattered hits and beat them, 5 to 0. And the joke of it all was Willis didn't know why the hostiles were so savage against him."

Eugene Elsch, former Sioux City center fielder, belongs to the Chicago Americans, according to a ruling of Commissioner Landis. The player was recently sold to the Pittsburgh Nationals at a reported price of $10,000, following which the White Sox protested that they held prior rights on Elsch.

BIG BONERS PULLED IN BASEBALL GAMES

Common Fault at Times to Forget Number of Men Out.

"Doc" Gessler, a Mighty Good Ball Player, College Graduate, Etc., Pulled an Ivory Classic Playing With Cubs.

Forgetting the number of men that are out is a common fault in baseball. Any number of ludicrous situations have been created because some player thought two were out instead of one.

In the majors and minors every year a score or more of "boners" are pulled because the player making the play lost track of the outs.

In a game at New York a number of years ago, both teams and the umpires became confused as to the number of outs.

The two clubs proceeded to change sides when only two men were out, and only the wild shouts of the official scorer that only two men had been retired cleared up the situation.

However, the prize play featuring the failure to keep track of the outs goes to "Doc" Gessler, who was a mighty good ball player. Gessler played in both American and National leagues. He was a college graduate and a mighty bright chap, but it's just as easy for a collegian to pull a "boner" as a sandlotter, if he forgets how many men are out.

Gessler was playing with the Cubs when he pulled his classic in ivory. It was the first of the ninth, the bases were filled, one out and the score mighty close.

Gessler evidently thought two men were out, for when he made a remarkable catch of a hard-hit fly ball, he believed the side had been retired and started for the clubhouse at top speed.

Before his teammates could make him realize that only two were out all three runners had scored.

YOUNG GIRLS NEED CARE

Mothers, watch your Daughters' Health

Health Is Happiness

From the time a girl reaches the age of twelve until womanhood is established, she needs all the care a thoughtful mother can give.

The condition that the girl is then passing through is critical, and may have such far-reaching effects upon her future happiness and health, that it is almost criminal for a mother or guardian to withhold counsel or advice.

Many a woman has suffered years of prolonged pain and misery through having been the victim of thoughtlessness or ignorance on the part of those who should have guided her through the dangers and difficulties that beset this period.

Mothers should teach their girls what danger comes from standing around with cold or wet feet, from lifting heavy articles, and from overworking. Do not let them over-study. If they complain of headache, pains in the back and lower limbs, they need a mother's thoughtful care and sympathy.

A Household Word in Mother's House writes Mrs. Lynd, about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"My mother gave me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound when I was 14 years old for troubles girls often have and for loss of weight. Then after I married I took the Vegetable Compound before each child was born and always when I felt the least run-down. Both my sister and sister-in-law take it and have only the highest praise for it. It has been a household word in my mother's house for years."—Mrs. KATHERYN LYND, 2431 Gladys Ave., Chicago, Ill.

A Little Book Helped Her to Decide

"It's rather curious that most of the people who are charged in this court with speeding say they were 'crawling along.'"

"Your honor, I'm a professional aviator. An ordinary observer might have thought my car was traveling at high speed, but to me it was crawling."

"Ahem! I understand your point of view exactly, and out of respect to your hazardous profession, where speed is essential to safety, I'll fine you $25 for crawling."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

FREEDOM FROM LAXATIVES

Discovery by Scientists Has Replaced Them.

Pills and salts give temporary relief from constipation only at the expense of permanent injury, says an eminent medical authority.

Science has found a newer, better way—a means as simple as Nature itself.

In perfect health a natural lubricant keeps the food waste soft and moving. But when constipation exists this natural lubricant is not sufficient. Medical authorities have found that the gentle lubricating action of Nujol most closely resembles that of Nature's own lubricant. As Nujol is not a laxative it cannot gripe. It is in no sense a medicine. And like pure water it is harmless and pleasant.

Nujol is prescribed by physicians; used in leading hospitals. Get a bottle from your druggist today.—Advertisement.

Something to Praise.

"You don't seem to think much of my car," said the owner of a dilapidated flyver.

"I wouldn't say that," replied the tactful garage man. "What do you call this contraption here on the front of your radiator?"

"That's a figure of Mercury. I bought it for an ornament."

"Well, now, that's about as neat a piece of work as anything I ever saw."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

A Rural Contemporary Sings—The gentle bee is humming, while the sprinkling cart the street is going through, and the host of city people that in summer we shall keep'll soon be coming up to spend a month or two. Barrage From Washington.

"Did you ever ask a favor of your congressman?"

"Once," said Mr. Gumpson. "He fathered some legislation that was displeasing to me and I asked him to do me the favor of resigning."

"He didn't oblige you, of course?"

"No, but he's been franking his speeches to me ever since, and I'm sorry now that I made him aware of my existence."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Gentleness is not weakness.

Parachute.

Would you begin saving up to buy a flying machine if you were sure you wouldn't fall? Probably. The airplane never will become generally used until it is made fool-proof with most of its danger eliminated.

Steps are being made in that direction. London experiments with this device: When a plane starts falling, the pilot jerks out a pocket parachute. As the rush of wind opens it, the safety device lifts the pilot out of the falling machine and drops him gently to earth.

The rest of us will wait until we have reasonable proof that the parachute will not fall to function at the crucial moment.

Just So.
