

Treasures in Tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen of Egypt

London Times—New York Times copyright by arrangement with the Earl of Carnarvon.

Opening of the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen, the "heretic" king of the Eighteenth Egyptian dynasty, at Luxor, has revealed an unexampled storehouse of treasures. This photograph gives a view of the antechamber looking west. Among the articles shown are a box containing the king's undergarments and other things; a large gilt couch with supports in the form of lions; a couch with supports in the form of "hat-hor" cows; numerous boxes containing mummified meat; a painted red box containing jewelry and ornaments; a papyrus rush-work stool, much decayed; the king's stool; another couch; four alabaster unguent vases of unique type and beauty; a semi-circular veneered box having minute detail of Inlaid Ivory.

HIS FUNERAL FLOWERS

King Tut's Chariots, Couches and Funeral Meats

London Times—New York Times copyright by arrangement with the Earl of Carnarvon. In this photograph of the antechamber of the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen, king of Egypt more than thirty centuries ago, the principal objects seen are the king's stool, made of solid ebony with ivory and having gold mountings; a large royal ceremonial gilt couch; the king's throne which is covered with gold and silver and inlaid with precious stones; a wood trellis stool, a large wooden casket; a carved wood and ivory chair of exquisite workmanship; wheels, bodies, poles, harness and other parts of four chariots; wood gilt trellis work from an object of unknown use.

KING'S ROBE CHEST

London Times—New York Times copyright by arrangement with the Earl of Carnarvon. This beautiful painted chest, found in the tomb of King Tut-Ankh-Amen of Egypt, contained the king's robes, decorated with elaborate bead and gold work of lapis-lazuli and turquoise; a gilt headrest like those used in Japan today, several pairs of sandals ornamented with inlaid gold, a black amber necklace, a collar of faience, and other objects.

GUARDS THE SEPULCHER

Tut-Ankh-Amen's Four Chariots

London Times—New York Times copyright by arrangement with the Earl of Carnarvon. Here are the wheels, bodies, poles and other parts of four chariots as they were found in the tomb of King Tut-Ankh-Amen at Luxor, Egypt. They are made of various hard woods, covered with stucco gilt, leather and inlaid ivory. The floors are of hide, in one case of leopard skin.

King Tut-Ankh-Amen's Typhon Couch of Solid Gilt

London Times—New York Times copyright by arrangement with the Earl of Carnarvon. This view of the antechamber of the tomb of King Tut-Ankh-Amen at Luxor, Egypt, shows the royal ceremonial couch of solid gilt supported by animals of the Typhon type. Upon it is a large white wooden chest, and beneath and in front of it other objects including gold, ivory and wooden chairs.

Statues of King Guarding Doorway of Sepulcher

London Times—New York Times copyright by arrangement with the Earl of Carnarvon. For more than three thousand years the wooden statues of King Tut-Ankh-Amen, seen in this photograph, stood undisturbed at the sealed doorway of his sepulcher in his tomb at Luxor, Egypt. In this antechamber are to be seen also the funeral flowers, a painted chest containing the royal robes and jewels, a long box containing the king's underwear and weapons, a ceremonial couch and many other objects.

PASSAGE TO THE TOMB

View looking down the rock-hewn passage leading to the antechamber of the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen at Luxor, Egypt, in which was found such a marvelous collection of objects. The light showing through the modern steel gate emanates from electric lamps installed by the excavators.

Alabaster Vases in King Tut's Tomb

London Times—New York Times copyright by arrangement with the Earl of Carnarvon. Cluster of alabaster unguent vases of unique type, just as they were discovered in the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen, the ancient Egyptian king, when it was opened. The vases still contain unguents which give off a faint odor.

King Tut-Ankh-Amen reigned in Egypt at least 3,250 years ago, and some authorities claim as far back as the days of Moses, and that it was his armies that were engulfed in the Red sea when pursuing the Children of Israel. At least his reign was as far back as that of Saul, first king of Israel.
