The Lenten Season.

Lenten services should be held in all the Christian churches of the world. The word Lent is of Anglo-Saxon origin. It signifies Spring, and refers to the lengthening of days. In the Christian sense it is that season of the ecclesiastical year which has been set apart for the special consideration of our Saviour's Passion. It comprises the 46 days preceding Easter, and is itself introduced by the three Sundays which precede Ash Wednesday.

The observance of Lent goes back into antiquity. Special ascetic observance was first derived from Heathenism. Persecution led them to introduce fasts in order to appease the wrath of the gods. Judaism adopted similar fasts to atone for their sins and to gain the favor of Almighty God. In the early history of the Christian church, persecution welded Christians together and they fasted that they might have a more vivid remembrance of the Saviour's suffering.

To the Lutheran church belongs the credit of making the Lenten season what it really should be. Instead of literal fasting and becoming ascetic, we should hold special services in our churches in which we read, study, sing and pray concerning the sufferings and death of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. Thus we have Lenten services stripped of their formalism and superstition which they had in the past, and replacing it with the true spirit of worship to the Triune God. In short, the one supreme motive now is, and should be, to uphold Christ, Crucified, as the only hope of a dying world.

Just now, when men are denying the Divinity of Jesus Christ and the fundamental teachings of God's Word, do we need more than ever the kind of preaching that will hold up Jesus Christ, crucified, risen, ascended, and coming again.

Let us remember this in this Lenten season now before us—REV. M. C. DRUMM.

The 67th congress just adjourned passed almost five hundred bills. The special session was called to pass the shipping bill. The pet measure of the president failed and most of the Republicans are satisfied with its failure.

Flood at Lock Haven.

Sunday morning a general flood alarm at Lock Haven was given, the water rising a height of twenty-five feet, which was about two and one-half feet less than the 1918 flood.

Row boats were used on Main street Sunday morning. Merchants began moving their stock from basements to higher floors. Many cellars in private homes were flooded, extinguishing the fires in the furnaces. This obliged many residents to depend entirely on oil stoves for heating.

Various country districts were also flooded and in some instances farmers who had started out to gather up their stock were obliged to remain on high ground over night. The schools at Lock Haven, Flemington, Mill Hall and Beech Creek were closed on account of the high water.

At noon on Monday the authorities felt the city was safe.

A March Blizzard.

Monday night a young blizzard set in, and a north-east wind by Wednesday noon brought us about four inches of snow. The cross roads are filled again with snow, making travel impossible with cars and very difficult in any kind of vehicle. This snow fall brings up the total for the winter to 65 inches.

THE SIXTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS.

The sixty-seventh congress adjourned at noon on Sunday. Almost five hundred bills were passed, but few of them are of enough importance to be remembered.

The more important legislation enacted included the McCumber tariff bill, immigration restriction law, reduction of the army and navy, establishment of a budget system and the farm credits bill. Although the Republicans have had a large majority in both the house and senate, there has been a notable failure of co-operation between the president and congress.

This resulted in one of the measures most strongly urged by the President, the shipping bill, being defeated after months of delay and debate.

Among the bills that failed to get the President's approval notwithstanding a heavy vote in its favor in both house and senate was the soldier bonus measure. The President also vetoed a proposal to increase pensions of Civil war veterans.

Although some beneficial legislation has been enacted, from a Republican viewpoint, for which the President deserves a large part of the credit, if the accomplishments of the sixty-seventh congress are judged on the basis of the promises made by the Republican leaders before the chief actors in the performance were chosen, it would have to be put down as a failure.

The President is playing golf.
