PENN STATE PLANS FOR ANNUAL PENNSYLVANIA DAY.

Saturday of this week will be Pennsylvania Day at State College and a crowd rivaling that of several weeks ago is expected to witness the big football game with Georgia Tech on New Beaver Field which is the feature of the occasion.

The southern team has never before played in central Pennsylvania, and comes north with the reputation of being the best team in the south. Hugo Bezdeck's eleven, smarting under the Syracuse defeat of last week, is sure to put up a great fight against the Dixie invaders and the game should be one of the most colorful of the season.

According to graduate manager Neil Fleming, more tickets will be available for the general public than was the case for the Navy game when returning Alumni took 5000 of the best seats. It is practically certain that all who plan to attend the Tech game can be accommodated and a plentiful supply of good seats will be on sale at the gate on the day of the game.

In addition to the Georgia Tech game, the Penn State soccer team is due to play the Navy team at State College at 10:00 in the morning. For those who enjoy soccer, this promises to be a real treat. The final feature of the holiday at the college will be a concert by the musical clubs in the Auditorium at 7:30 in the evening. Many mothers, sisters and best girls will be in attendance at the various fraternity houseparties over the weekend.

THE RAMBLING REPORTER.

No form of hunting on this continent is so apt to be tinged with disappointment as the pursuit of the wild turkey. In spite of this we know of several men who have shot one of these prized birds.

Saturday, the 10th, will mark the annual Pennsylvania Day at Penn State. This year it will be entirely a student affair, and the various departments will not put on their exhibits. House parties and the Georgia Tech game will be the chief events of the day.

Were you one of the people who voted in favor of the school? If you did not, we hope that your conscience is worrying you.

Bellefonte had a well worthwhile parade on Halow'en night. One thing which the Rambling Reporter thought funny was a small chap painted as a colored boy, riding a sad looking horse, whose name of course was Spark Plug.

We feel sure though that the parade would have been a lot better had Sheriff Lee been there with the same mount he had on Community Day.

Why couldn't we have an active troop of Boy Scouts at Centre Hall? This movement is one which should be given the support of the people, and the training it gives the boy is beyond value. All the great educators of the country give their support to the movement. The Rambling Reporter has been in the movement for six years, and would be glad to give what help possible in the organization of a Troop.

Funny ones are beginning to trickle from the school room. One youngster told his teacher that he had asked his father what a zebra was, and wise Papa answered: "A horse in a bathing suit."

We noticed this in the last issue of "The Centre Reporter": "Vote early and avoid the rush," which reminded us that Christmas is well on its way, and that some one should call the matter to the attention of the public and advise them to "shop early to avoid the hush."

BOALSBURG.

Harold Covey, of Altoona, is the electrician on the John Ishler home.

Mrs. Effie Jacobs gave a supper Friday evening in honor of the 70th birthday of her husband, John H. Jacobs.

The first day of the turkey season three birds were shot and brought to town.

The meeting of the Civic Club Friday evening was a success, about fifty persons being present; they all had a jolly good time.

Reuben Stuart, wife and daughter, of Pittsburgh, spent a few days here with their parents, returning home on Tuesday. They came in their auto.

The trustees of the parsonage of the Reformed church had a meeting and proposed some repairs to be made to the parsonage.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Tussey had the pleasure of the company of Mr. Tussey's sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace, of Bellefonte, over Sunday.

William Gettig and Irvin Bardell came from Altoona, Thursday morning, to have some sport hunting small game. They returned home Sunday with the game socked.

Earl Phillips and Miss Elizabeth Close, rather in a quiet way, Monday morning left the town in Earl's Ford, going by the way of Lock Haven, and then to Union county, among some of Mr. Phillips' relatives, and returned home the middle of the week, man and wife, Friday evening the callthumpians gave them a hearty reception. Congratulations!

SMELL OF LIQUOR IS SUFFICIENT PROOF.

Judge Bailey Declares That Analysis Is Not Necessary to Prove That a Beverage Is Alcoholic.

Judge Thomas F. Bailey, of the Huntingdon, Bedford, Mifflin judicial district, rendered an opinion of far reaching effect in the Mifflin county court in connection with a liquor case, to the effect that the smell of liquor is sufficient to prove that a beverage has an illegal amount of alcohol and that analysis is not necessary.

The ruling grew out of the prosecution of H. B. Neff, whose counsel contended that the commonwealth had not shown by analysis that the booze found in suit cases in the New York Central hotel contained more than one-half of one per cent of alcohol in violation of law.

In replying to the attorney Judge Bailey said:

"Thus far in my judicial rulings I have not required liquor to be analyzed to prove that it is intoxicating. If an alcoholic beverage has the smell of liquor, that smell is sufficient testimony from which juries can decide whether or not a defendant has violated the anti-liquor laws. In Bedford county, where liquor law violations and jury trials have been still more numerous than they have been in Mifflin county, I have uniformly ruled that the smell of liquor is sufficient to prove that a beverage has an illegal amount of alcohol. I will continue to rule upon this basis until I have been overruled by the higher courts."

Judge Bailey added to the foregoing "If we pass a man upon the street and smell the odor of whiskey upon his breath we naturally infer that the smell is sufficient proof that the man has been drinking intoxicating liquor." Slight of Eye Destroyed.

Raymond Daughenbaugh, aged nineteen, of Howard, lost the sight of his right eye as the result of the accidental discharge of his gun, while hunting in the woods near Howard, on Friday. A charge of small shot entered his eye and face, completely destroying the sight so bad that the eyeball had to be removed at the Lock Haven hospital where he was taken following the accident.

Gave His Son Hard Jobs. P. D. Armour, founder of Armour & Co., liked to pose as a rich man, it is said. He liked the feel of money and to give it away. He had 100 $1 bills put on his desk each morning, and before nightfall he usually managed to get rid of them.

His son, J. Ogden Armour, has said that he had no more choice in becoming the head of Armour & Co. than the prince of Wales in becoming the king of England.

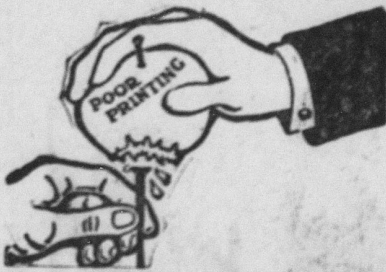

"To get the right kind of men we begin early," J. Ogden Armour said recently. "We are more particular about hiring office boys than about anything else connected with the business. For the office boys of today will become our department managers tomorrow."

His father having antipathy for "soft" young men, put "J. O." in every hard job. He has served in every department both at the stock yards and in the office.

Eat Less, Live Longer.

The great majority of human ills arise from overeating and lack of exercise and fresh air, according to Jack Taylor, the "scholar gypsy," who reached New York on his way to southern California by way of the Atlantic coast states, Florida, Louisiana, Texas and Arizona, walking and camping all the way.

Mr. Taylor, who is sixty-nine years old, said that ten years ago he was a commercial traveler whom the physicians had given only a few months to live. He determined to revolutionize his habits, gathered together a camping outfit, and since that time has confined himself to a diet of raw eggs and corn meal, chocolate, raisins, rye bread and molasses. Since he began his new life he has walked 8,000 miles, lying in the open and camping under the stars. The average human being, he says, eats far more than he should.
