Reconstruction of Hospital.

An elaborate report of the condition and the remedy looking toward the reconstruction of the Bellefonte hospital was presented by Henry C. Wright, of New York, director of the Hospital and Institutional Bureau of Consultation of New York City, to the board of directors of the Bellefonte hospital and a special committee of citizens on Friday night of last week. The report, quite lengthy, was forwarded to this office on Tuesday, but it is impossible to give it here this week.

The report recommends general remodeling of the building and the addition of a new wing and a new nurses' home. The estimated cost of the proposed improvements is $100,000.

To discover the sentiment of the Centre county people a public meeting will be held in the Court House, Bellefonte, on Monday night, November 19th, to which every town in this county is urged to send a representation of citizens. At the meeting the hospital necessities will be discussed and plans formulated to launch a successful drive. If the people approve of the report and manifest a willingness to support this issue the Board will adopt the report and a modern hospital will be practically assured.

Burnham Loses a School.

The combination high and grade school at Burnham was partially destroyed by fire early Monday morning, causing a loss estimated at $50,000. The grade section of the building was destroyed and the high school section flooded by water. Five Lewistown fire companies responded to the call for help.

Be proud of your enemies. It shows that you are not in their class.

THE DEATH RECORD.

RIPKAY.—One of the oldest citizens in Gregg township passed away when Daniel Ripkay, of Spring Mills, departed this life on Friday. Interment was made in the cemetery at the Lutheran church, Georges Valley, on Tuesday, an Evangelical minister being in charge. His wife died about ten years ago, but there survive two sons—Elmer and David, both of Spring Mills, and a daughter, Mrs. Joseph Confer, in Georges Valley; a sister, Mrs. Aaron Auman, of Decker Valley, also survives the deceased.

Early in life Mr. Ripkay (the spelling of the name is the form desired by the man himself) engaged in farming in Georges Valley, but a long time ago gave it up and later became a vendor of cigars, candies, nuts, etc., at sales and public gatherings. He was a man who had the greatest regard for his word—it was always lived up to in business or otherwise. His age was eighty-three years.

MARTZ.—George William, aged four years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Roy Martz, of Lewistown, died of diphtheria at the parental home, Thursday morning. Private interment was made Friday morning at Zion Hill cemetery, near Colyer, Rev. J. F. Bingham officiating. Besides the parents an elder sister, Dorothy, survives. The Martz family, until last spring, were residents of Potter township, and before going to Lewistown lived on the Old Fort farm.

LOSE.—John Lose, one of the aged residents of Benner township, who made his home with Foster Fanning and family, near Hoopsburg, died from hardening of the arteries. Deceased was about 79 years old. His wife and one daughter, the late Mrs. William Benner, preceded him in death. Surviving are one son, William Lose, of Chicago, Ill., and one brother, Nicholas, of near Millheim.

EMERICK.—J. Frank Emerick died suddenly on Monday evening of last week, at his home north of Penn Hall, following an illness of heart disease and dropsy. He was born December 22, 1856, and was therefore aged 66 years, 11 months and 13 days.

Mr. Emerick was a son of Henry Emerick, and was born and reared near Penns Cave.

He is survived by his wife, one son and five daughters, namely: Ward Emerick, of Bellevue, Ohio; Mazie, married to Wm. Everhart, and Pearl, married to Edward Green, both living in Ohio; Verna, married to C. W. Lingle, of Georges Valley; Mrs. Orvis Gramley and Miss Verna, both of Millheim; also several brothers, two of whom, Benjamin and Newton, live in Centre Hall.

Funeral services were held Friday forenoon, and interment made in the Union cemetery at Farmers Mills.

MUSSER.—James D. Musser, a highly respected citizen of Haines township, died at his home, near Woodward, following an illness of several weeks. He was aged 72 years, 10 months and 7 days.

He was a carpenter by trade and about a month ago while engaged in building a hunter's camp in Pine Creek hollow, ran a splinter in his hand and contracted blood poisoning, from which he suffered much and which finally ended his earthly career.

He was a son of the late Jonathan Musser and was the last of the family to answer the final summons.

He is survived by his wife, who before marriage was Rosie E. Krader.

He was a consistent member of the Lutheran church at St. Paul for many years.

Funeral services were held Wednesday, conducted by Rev. B. R. M. Sheeder, a former pastor, who was assisted by Rev. F. H. Daubenspeck. Interment was made in the cemetery at Woodward.

Grover Colyer, of Mitchell Field, L. I. is around greeting his friends after an absence of three years. He enlisted in the air service in 1920 and was sent to San Diego, California, where he spent about one year; he was then sent to the place mentioned above. He has been piloting airplanes for some time.

Child Killed by R. R. Train.

A most heartrending accident occurred on the local branch, at Penns Cave station, east of Centre Hall, on Tuesday evening, when the passenger engine carrying the regular train west struck a child twenty-one months old and cut it into pieces. The little one was Eugene Hobart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hobart, who live on the Woods farm near the scene of the accident. The child wandered away from home, the mother thinking it was with the father and the father thought the little one was with his mother. The fierce shrieks of the engine whistle startled the mother, and she at once thought that possibly the alarm was to tell her of the danger her little one was in, but she never thought that in an instant his little body would be cut into pieces, and yet so it was. The child when first observed by the engineer was lying across one of the iron rails and lay there until the ponderous wheels struck it. Every effort was made to stop the train, but it was not possible to do so in time to avoid the accident.

The mangled body was brought to the Goodhart undertaking establishment and there prepared for burial. Interment will be made this (Thursday) forenoon in the Georges Valley cemetery.

Barn Burned.

About midnight on Monday night the large bank barn on the ex-Sheriff Miles Walker farm, at Fairbrook, was totally destroyed by fire, the origin of which is unknown. The farm is tenanted by Miles C. Wheeland whose loss consisted of four horses, six cows, farm machinery, 110 bushels wheat, 280 bushels oats and harness, tools, etc. He held insurance in the sum of $1200 in the Farmers Mutual company. The barn was also insured in the same company for $1300 and $700 additional in a cash company.

$60,000,000 FOR ORPHANS' SCHOOL.

Entire Fortune of Head of Hershey Chocolate Company Held in Trust for School Which He Founded.

It became known a few days ago that M. S. Hershey, head of the Hershey Chocolate Company and founder of the town bearing his name, placed his entire fortune in trust five years ago for the Hershey Industrial School at Hershey. He is the principal owner of the chocolate company and its fifteen subsidiaries and the stock, together with the plants operated as growing concerns, are estimated to be worth $60,000,000.

The placing of this huge amount in trust for the school makes it the second to Grand College, as the richest orphanage in the country. Hershey, according to J. E. Snyder, his legal adviser, who confirmed the story, desisted years ago of establishing a huge orphanage on the site of the old Hershey homestead, where he was born. In the last twenty years while the Hershey Chocolate Company has developed from a small beginning to the largest of its kind in the world, Hershey has gradually shaped his plans. He began acquiring land around the old homestead and in 1909 the school opened to pupils.

It has now 120 boys enrolled, learning useful trades. The dormitories, mechanical buildings, gymnasium, and playground cover what once was the old Hershey farm. The certificate of incorporation was filed in the Dauphin County court in 1908 by Hershey and his wife, Mrs. Catharine S. Hershey, since deceased. Last summer Hershey celebrated the twentieth anniversary of the founding of his great industry. Like Ford, he adopted the plan of giving his employes bonuses and preceded the flivver king in that direction.

"THE TRANSCENDENT CHRIST."

norant; reformed the degraded; healed the sick; comforted the sad; gave sight to the blind; gave hearing to the deaf; strength to the weak; elevation to the oppressed; bread to the hungry; water to the thirsty and life to the dying and the dead.

The supernatural greatness of Christ is revealed by his creative power; the spiritual beauty of his life is exhibited in his redemptive work; but the magnanimous generosity of his heart is manifested by his supporting, sympathetic, sustentation acts of keeping life alive and enriching it with all needful blessings. "All things were made by him and by him all things consist." He has never neglected or observed his redemptive property. His transcendency is increased by the fact that he insisted that Christians, or his followers, should follow his example in this particular by doing good. "Freely ye have received, freely give." He who was himself a universal benediction, designed that his disciples should be an eumeneic blessing in bestowing spiritual and temporal blessings upon the world.

It is well to remember that while he lived and labored for the enrichment of all, he gave special sympathetic attention to the poor, and this generous act signifies the surpassing beauty of his exquisite compassion. He was hungry himself, but he fed the starving multitude before he satisfied his own wants.

He was friendless and forsaken, yet he never left a friend or foe in distress. Homeless himself, he provided temporal, spiritual and heavenly habitations for the desolate sons of men.

It is worthy of note that while he was in the truest sympathy with the poor and oppressed, who were afflicted with poverty, he did not encourage their evil passions and prejudices against the rich. He taught them not to envy, revile, or denounce the rich as the cause of their sufferings, but encouraged them to strive for immortal riches with his divine assurance that the pearl of great price surpassed in value all the wealth of the world.

And while very considerate of the poor even to the extent of compassionate kindness and the sacrificing of his own comforts, he was respectful, just, and gentle with the rich. His wonderful tenderness in dealing with Nicodemus, his gentleness with rich Zacchaeus and his generous treatment of the rich young man, furnish the highest exemplification of loving forbearance. Some may accuse him of not being faithful to condemn and censure the rich, but his mission was redemptive and not destructive. Although not severe with the rich men, he was searching and faithful.

There was no class distinction with him. He possessed and manifested at all times, and under all circumstances, unbounded love for the Jew, but he was equally kind to the Samaritans. The Roman and the Greek, the wise and the ignorant, were treated with gracious consideration. He gave himself, not to a class or a nation, but to the whole world. And when we behold him manifesting his love to the sick and the sad, the rich and the poor alike, the ignorant and the fallen, the children, the wronged and outcast women, the hated Samaritan, the despised pagan, the obnoxious publican, the wicked prodigal, the dying thief and the cruel persecutor, we have a beautiful picture of the most transcendent life of love and benevolence the world has ever seen.

(To be concluded next week.)
