School Children Compose Poems.

The following poems were composed by school children, 10 to 13 years of age, in the Tusseyville school, and were submitted for publication by the teacher, Harvey Fink. The Reporter will devote from its rule to consist poetical effusions to the waste basket in this instance because of the tender years of the authors.

ETERNITY.

[By Mildred Minerva Kline, age 10.]
How long, sometimes, the days appear,
And weeks how long are they;
Months move as slow as if the year
Would never pass away.
But months and years are passing by,
And soon will all be gone,
For day by day as minutes fly
Eternity comes on.
Days, months, and years must have an end;
Eternity has none;
Will always have as long to spend
As when 'twas first begun.

AUTUMN.

[By Gollie Lodie Stover, age 10.]
In autumn when the golden trees
Are playfully swinging in the breeze,
And leaves of gold and crimson
On the ground are lying,
The birds are southward flying,
Swinging so gleefully in the breeze,
Like the waves of the big wide seas
The leaves are falling to the ground;
And soon they shall fade away
And visit us next year some day.
Autumn, I will greet you next year
For your time, to me, is most dear.

HAPPY SPRING TIME.

[By Daniel Glenn Fohringer, age 11]
Happy, happy spring time,
The fields are all aglow
When the sun brightly shines
On this earth, below.
Happy, happy spring time,
Down along the stream we go,
Father and I, with hook and line,
A string of trout all in a row.

IN WINTER TIME.

[By Dorothy Mildred Lingle, age 13]
In winter time when the snow is deep
Ah the flowers lie asleep.
In winter time, if I had my will,
I'd do nothing else but coast on the hill.
In winter time we go to school;
We love the teacher, as a rule.
In winter time when snow does blow,
I only wish that I could go.
O winter time with all your joys
Brings Christmas gifts for girls and boys.
O winter time, O winter time,
I love to hear the sleigh bells chime.
O winter time, it's you that brings
Old Santa with his Christmas things.
O winter time, you are so gay,
I wish that you would ever stay.
