PINE GROVE MILLS
Rev. J. Irvin Stonecypher, formerly pastor of the Lutheran church at Boalsburg, removed from Montgomery Lycoming county, to Stewartsville, New Jersey.
A copy of The Star, published at Columbia, South Carolina, was forwarded to the Reporter desk by J. W. McCormick. The issue is of date of February 4 and is largely devoted to eulogies on President Wilson.
There are many cases of grippe and influenza in this section.
Mr. and Mrs. John S. Thomas are receiving congratulations over the arrival of a little daughter born Jan. 31.
From the number of sale bills one would think all the farmers are "hanging it up."
John F. Kimpfort has been confined to bed on account of grippe and neuralgia, but is now better.
C. H. Martz, a Civil War veteran, has been quite ill for the past ten days of heart trouble.
Farmer Harry Glenn of the Branch, who has been ill most of the season, is not improving as rapidly as his family hoped he would.
James R. Smith, Earl Musser and James E. Lenker all celebrated their birthday anniversaries on the 2nd—Groundhog day.

GRAIN WANTED.
I am in the market for wheat, corn and oats and will pay as follows: wheat, $1.10; good corn, 85c; oats, 50c.—Wm. McClennahan, Centre Hall.

DEATHS.
GILLILAND.—Robert Murray Gilliland, second son of Ray D. and Margaret S. Gilliland, of State College, died Thursday morning of last week at the Blair Memorial Hospital at Huntingdon, after a ten days' illness of cerebral meningitis. With the hope of finding relief, he was taken to the hospital on January 19th, and apparent improvement in his condition up to Tuesday previous to his death led to the hope of his ultimate recovery. However, a sudden turn for the worse came Wednesday and culminated fatally in spite of all that the best of medical skill could do.
The heartfelt sympathy of the entire community goes out to Mr. and Mrs. Gilliland in their sad bereavement, for "Bobbie," as he was familiarly and lovingly known to the whole community, was popular with all who knew him. He was a grandson of the late John W. and Ellen M. Stuart, and is survived by his parents a brother, John Stuart, and sister, Ellen.
Funeral services were held at the Gilliland home on Pugh street, State College, Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

ROWLAND.—Charles Hedding Rowland, son of Mrs. Anna and the late Congressman Charles H. Rowland, of Philipsburg, died Thursday night of last week. He had been a sufferer from rheumatism a year ago and went to Mt. Clemens, Michigan, for treatment. Later his heart weakened and for the last seven months was confined to bed almost continuously. He was aged 26 years. Besides his mother, the deceased is survived by three brothers and sisters: Lulu, wife of John C. Hollenbach of Philipsburg; Howard H., at home; Margaret, wife of J. C. Meyer, of Philadelphia, and John Edward, at home. Interment was made Sunday afternoon in Philipsburg. Dr. John T. Scott, of the Presbyterian church in charge.

MARKLE.—Abram F. Markle, for many years a resident of State College and prominent there as a citizen and business man, died in the Bellefonte hospital on Monday. Interment will be made in the Pine Hill cemetery, west of State College, services by Presbyterian minister. Mr. Markle is survived by three sons.

Many Cars Without License.
It is estimated that on February 1st there were 450,000 automobiles in Pennsylvania for which no license tags had been issued. There was a rush for the tags up to the latter part of December, at which time the extension of time to February 1st was announced. Orders began to lag, but the latter part of last month the big rush came, and it appears the automobile license issuing offices were totally swamped, and it is claimed by observers that no measures had been taken to avert it.
It is true that the auto license division gave warning last fall and provided a means of applying for licenses at the time titles were secured. Many auto owners took advantage of this "early bird" provision, but many could not see why they were obliged to buy even an auto license, a few months before it was needed, so here we have it, cops are to arrest drivers who have no 1924 tags displayed, and yet in many cases the good cash is in the hands of the state at the same time. It doesn't look quite right.

Bootlegger Gets Sentence.
In the case of James B. Wilson, of Salona, charged in the Clinton county courts with having and selling intoxicating liquor, the jury returned a verdict of guilty of the first charge and not guilty of the second, and Judge Baird sentenced the defendant to pay $2,000 fine, prosecution and serve six months in the county jail. Wilson was one of the men arrested at the Florida Fruit farms near Loganport, for moonshining.

Bankers to Meet.
The twenty-ninth annual meeting of Group Six, Penna. Bankers' Association, will meet at the Penn-Alt hotel, Altoona, on Lincoln's birthday, February 12. The present officers are: N. E. Robb, Chairman, Treasurer Bellefonte Trust Co.; John D. Meyer, Secretary, Vice President First National Bank, Tyrone; C. A. Cunningham, member of council, Cashier First National Bank, Cresson.
The program includes local subjects and an address by W. W. Allen, Jr., Philadelphia National Bank, Philadelphia, and Col. Edward J. Rice, "Dialect Stories," New York City.

DR. FISCHER ON "THE BIBLE."
wherein were found the names of the four kings. And this man with the spade is continually verifying the historicity of the Bible in that way.
The same can be affirmed of its science. Men tell us that the Bible was not intended to be a scientific book, and this is meant to teach us that it matters not whether its scientific statements are trustworthy or not. The question is, however, not whether the Bible was intended to be a scientific book but whether it is true or not. False in one thing, false in all. If the Bible can not be trusted at this point, what ground have we for accepting it and trusting to its guidance in spiritual things? You have impugned the veracity of your witness.
It is indestructible. This Book has been under the fiercest fires of opposition. The final proof of reality is persistence. But it still persists. The ancient cities of the world were lit with bonfires of Bibles; yet here it is, with not so much as the smell of smoke on it. The most unfair criticism has been poured upon it from time immemorial, but not a page is gone from it. It is the impregnable Rock of the Ages. Like Gibraltar, that has defied the storms of the Atlantic and Mediterranean, the old Book has withstood the storms of adverse criticism. "Surely the people is grass. The grass withereth, the flower fadeth, but the Word of the Lord shall stand forever."
It makes manhood and true nationhood. This Book has gone in the forefront of civilization all along the centuries. There is a clear line between barbarism and civilization, between thrift and poverty, between selfishness and charity, between oppression and freedom, between life and the shadow of death. The Bible has drawn that line. The two really great powers today are America and England. Queen Victoria declared that the Bible was the secret of England's greatness. Father Hyacinth of France declared that the secret of France's defeat in 1870 lay in the fact that every German soldier had a Bible in his knapsack. They evidently forgot their Bibles in the World War, and defeat came to their arms. Our own American free institutions are founded on the principles of the Bible.
Christ believed this Book. He spoke of its "truth" as the "Word of God." He preached it. He lived it. He made the Bible the determining factor in the problem of His kingdom. He commanded His disciples to "go and preach" this Word. It was to Him the "good seed" to be sown everywhere. If it is the world is to be converted, and if this Book was true enough for Christ, it is true enough for me and for all men.
It saves men. The human heart has an inextinguishable longing to know the way of spiritual life. "What shall I do to be saved?" is the universal question. No other book answers that question. There are other books that with some measure of correctness teach morality. But none others speaks of a blotted out past of sin, or teaches an escape from the penalty of the broken law. We have books of poetry outside of the Bible; but none of them sings the song of Salvation or gives peace to a troubled soul. We have books that speak eloquently on one thousand themes but none of them lifts the eye to see God Himself with outstretched arms pleading with men to come to Him and live. We have books with science, but none of them can give the soul a definite assurance of the future life so that it can say, "I know whom I have believed," and I am persuaded that "He is able to keep that which I have committed unto Him against that day." "The Bible finds me," as Coleridge said, and so he believed it. For that reason, too, I believe it. This Book found me troubled about the future and unknown. It has calmed me and given me a deathless hope. It has dried my tears and still dries them. It has strengthened me in weakness. It has never failed me. And I expect to find it in that shadowy border line between time and eternity, as my rod and staff to lean on. It is the one Book by which to live and by which to die. It is the inflexible rule of faith and practice. It is true altogether and is forever the Word of the Lord of heaven and earth.
