The SANDMAN STORY

MR. BEAR WAKES UP

MR. BEAR awoke from his nap one winter, and peeping out of his window saw the sun shining so brightly he thought it must be spring. "Somehow I do not feel like getting up," said he, "but if the spring is here I must get up and set my house in order."

When Mr. Bear got outside he found it was not at all springlike, but cold, and his raggy fur coat blew about him, making him shiver and shake. "Hello, Mr. Bear," called out Reddy Fox, who was skidding through the woods. "What are you doing out this time of the year? Going to our toboggan party?"

Mr. Bear had no idea at all what a toboggan party might be, but he asked, "Where is it?" just as if that were the very thing he got up for. "Over the other side of the woods," replied Reddy Fox. "You had better hurry, for everybody wants to get the first ride."

Mr. Bear said he guessed he would trot right along with Reddy Fox, because things looked so strange all covered with snow. "If I had known there was snow on the ground I would have stayed in bed," he said. "I thought it was springtime. The sun shone through the trees and there was no snow around my house."

"Oh, you miss a lot of things sleeping so much," Reddy told him. "You will get up every winter after this, I am certain, when you find out how much fun it is to slide down hill." By the time Mr. Bear got to the top of the hill with Reddy Fox he knew all about a toboggan party and he was so anxious to get a ride on the long slide that he nudged and pushed everybody to get a seat.

"Let him sit in front," said Mr. Squirrel. "He is good and strong and can steer. 'I'll sit on his shoulder and keep a lookout ahead for bumpers."

Mr. Coon was there looking very comfortable in his winter furs, and he said he did not mind at all sitting on the end. "If anything happens," he thought, "I can jump off."

Mr. Possum said he would sit anywhere, he wasn't fussy. But Mr. Fox was not so willing to have the front seat taken by Mr. Bear. "He never

A Cornwall Tradition.

In Cornwall there is a tradition that King Arthur still lives in the form of a raven, and that one day he will be changed back to a man again, and all England will ring once more with his fame.

The Why of Superstitions

By H. IRVING KING

PLANTING PEPPERS

OLD-FASHIONED farmers in some sections of the country will assure you that if you want to have your pepper plants do well you should have them set out by a red-headed person. Same thing if you grow the plants from the seed—get a red-haired person to sow the seed. Some say a quick-tempered, irritable person, even if he is not red headed, will do as well. This is a clear case of sympathetic magic applied to agriculture and the application of sympathetic magic to agriculture is not only one of the oldest, if not the very oldest, phases of the mental development of primitive man, but is one which exists in the form of various superstitions all over the world today.

saw a snow-covered hill before," he argued. "What does he know about steering or tobogganing?"

But Mr. Bear wanted the front seat and so he told Mr. Fox that if he would let him sit there he would take them all over to his house after the party and make hot chicken soup. He had some canned which he thought would taste very good on such a cold day.

That settled it for Mr. Fox. "The worst he can do is to tumble us off in the snow," he said to himself, "and chicken soup is worth that much."

So Mr. Bear took his seat and was told how to steer. "Now hold on to the rope with both paws and don't let go of it for anything no matter what happens. Hold on to that rope and do not pull on one side more than the other."

"Huh, that is easy enough to do," replied Mr. Bear, catching hold of the rope.

"Are you ready?" called Mr. Coon, who was to start the toboggan. "Let 'er go!" answered Mr. Bear, and off they went.

Now, Mr. Squirrel sat on Mr. Bear's shoulder, the wind blowing his tall around so that it tickled Mr. Bear's nose. He did not know what it was in fact, he forgot it was winter. He thought of flies and bees and other bothersome bugs.

Mr. Bear forgot he was steering, too. He let go with one paw to brush away the thing that was tickling his nose, and away went the toboggan, riders and all, into the snow.

Some rolled down the hill and bumped into the stone wall at the bottom. Mr. Bear was one of these. "Why didn't you tell me there was a bumper ahead," he scolded Mr. Squirrel.

"Bumper? There was no bumper. You let go one side of the rope," said Mr. Squirrel.

"Well, a bee or something kept tickling my nose," weakly argued Mr. Bear. "Anyway, my feet are cold and I am going home. I don't see any fun in staying awake all winter."

"We wouldn't, either, if we had you to steer us," said Mr. Fox. "But don't forget that chicken soup, Mr. Bear."

Have You This Habit?

A SPEAKING VOICE

"OTHER things being equal," said the great doctor that evening at dinner, "a good speaking voice is the greatest asset a man or a woman can have. When I want to engage a secretary, I always try to have my first interview over the telephone. The secretary I have now I picked out from five other young women who applied, all of them capable, mainly because she speaks clearly and isn't nasal."

"Can a pleasing voice be acquired, doctor?" asked his host, "or is it just a golden spoon that some people are born with and others not?"

"Good voice production," answered the eminent specialist, putting down his fork and speaking emphatically, "good voice production is a habit and can be acquired. I once had a young assistant," he went on, "who purely by imitation and association with the group he was running with fell gradually into a sloppy way of talking that was very difficult to understand and very unattractive. I finally had it out with him; he saw my point—he was a fine fellow—and though it was a struggle he began to stand up straight, open his mouth, shape his words, get his voice forward. You'd be surprised if I were to tell you his name; everyone knows it these days."

The next morning at church the doctor's host heard a sermon that stayed in his memory for many days. The message of that sermon was fine, but he had heard the same thoughts many times before without consciously carrying them about with him afterward. The difference in the impression made lay in the voice of the speaker which, with no visible effort, carried clearly and quietly. He was quite undramatic.

You owe us something for dumping us off, you know."

By the time Mr. Bear reached home his feet were so cold and sore that he jumped right into bed and groaned for the hot water bottle to be brought to him, and it took the whole party to wait on him before they could get him quiet.

"Don't see how you can say there is any fun in the winter time," he groaned.

"There's wouldn't be," replied Reddy Fox, "if you were around. Now don't you get out of that bed until spring."

As soon as Mr. Bear made a sleepy sound Mr. Fox went into the pantry and found the chicken soup and soon everybody forgot and forgave Mr. Bear for tumbling them into the snow. "He is a good cook," said Reddy Fox, "but a poor steerer. But it was your tail, Mr. Squirrel, that really caused the trouble. You ought to shave it."

"What's in a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day, lucky jewel

MURIEL

THE quaintly demure Muriel is one of the oldest and most beloved of English names. Its earliest form, Meriel, is still in common usage abroad. It signifies "myrrh," the precious perfume of early Biblical days, and a special reverence attaches to the name, since myrrh was one of the gifts brought by the Wise Men to the newborn Babe in the manger at Bethlehem.

Seldom in the history of etymology has a name preserved its original identity so faithfully as Muriel. It has suffered no change, since Meriel was first taken from the Greek word meaning myrrh. Nor did it leave its native heath to undergo transformation by another language. No other country has an equivalent; even America transported it intact.

The moonstone is Muriel's talismanic gem. According to an old legend, it will endow her with the purity and beauty of the moonbeams which the ancients believed were imprisoned in the stone. It is likewise said to give her the gift of prophetic vision whereby she may read the future. Sunday is her lucky day and 2 her lucky number. The cornflower is her special bloom.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

MARY GRAHAM BONNER

FAIRYLAND FROLIC

"I must have a party—a frolic," said the Queen of the Fairies. "I have been feeling like one for some time now."

"Spring is in the air and it is just the time for a dance and a springtime supper and gaiety and laughter."

So the Queen of the Fairies asked the Breeze Brothers to take around her invitations.

She invited Witty Witch and Old Mr. Giant, the Bogey Family and the Olaf family, the Brownies and the Elves, the Gnomes and everyone of the little Fairyland people.

After the Breeze Brothers had been gone for a little while the Queen of the Fairies began to plan for her party.

And then, in a short time, the Breeze Brothers came back.

"Well," said the Queen of the Fairies, "I do hope my guests accepted."

"Everyone of them," said the Breeze Brothers. "We did not have a refusal."

"That's splendid," the Queen of the Fairies cried, and then she thanked the Breeze Brothers for taking around her invitations for her. As she thanked them she shared with them some of the early blossoms which Mistress Springtime had given to her.

The Breeze Brothers took the blossoms up into the air with them. Some they scattered in one place, some in another and as they flew through the air with their springtime gifts the air seemed to be filled with the sweetest of perfume.

The day soon arrived for the Queen of the Fairies' party.

And right on time were all the guests.

They had all dressed in their best for the party, too.

Old Mr. Giant wore a costume of pale green which was very becoming to him, and his great height looked very smart and fine.

Witty Witch wore a lovely shawl made of purple violets.

The other Fairies were dressed in costumes made of yellow violets.

The Elves wore little suits of trailing arbutus flowers hidden partly by leaves.

The Olaf family wore dresses of cherry blossoms and the Bogey family wore dresses of dogwood blossoms.

The Brownies had made their suits of little crocus flowers, and the Gnomes had made theirs of early spring hyacinths.

Y' see all the Fairyland people had their own big springtime garden so they had lots and lots of flowers, for the flowers loved to bloom for the great springtime party of the Queen of the Fairies.

And then the frolic began. There were races and there were games, and there were dances. And the Fairy Orchestra with Fairy Ybab leading played most beautiful music, while the Woodpeckers kept time.

The supper was one of Fairyland's best. There was early spring salad and fresh brook water and moss ice cream.

After the supper was over everyone joined in the great festival dance.

In the center of the Woodland Fairyland playground there was a huge pole, and from the pole were many different streamers of different colors.

Each little guest took one of these and, dancing around the pole, they sang the song the Queen of the Fairies had made up in honor of the occasion.

Everyone had been given a little birchbark book with the words of the song written in it, and this was the song they sang:

"Springtime in Fairyland,
Glorious and grand,
Springtime for everyone too,
All over the land!"
