Tuberculosis Is Not Transmitted

Calves From Diseased Cows Found Free of Infection in Alaskan Test.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Thirty calves dropped by tuberculous cows in the valuable breeding and experimental herd of the United States Department of Agriculture in Alaska from 1917 to 1920 have been successfully raised and adjudged free from tuberculosis. While ordinarily the practice of retaining such stock in the herd is to be condemned, and should be allowed only in extremely exceptional cases, the success of the Alaskan experiment proves that a very valuable animal which has become infected with tuberculosis need not be slaughtered; and that the excellent qualities which such an animal would transmit to its offspring can be transmitted and perpetuated in the offspring without incurring any risk of transmitting the disease.

Appearance of Disease.

Considerable effort has been expended in developing a breed of cattle suitable for Alaskan conditions by crossing the Galloway breed with Holstein-Friesians, when in spite of all known precautions having been taken the disease made its appearance in the herd. Measures were adopted to retain the diseased animals and to raise calves from them because of their value. The diseased cattle were placed in quarantine 15 miles from the healthy herd and treated as sound cattle, being given free access to pastures and receiving the usual feed. For the first 24 hours after birth the calves were allowed to remain with their dams in order that they might draw off the first milk, or colostrum, from the udders. They were then removed to separate quarters and fed the pasteurized milk from the tuberculous mothers. Milk, together with grass and such other forage as was eaten at will, constituted the entire ration until six months of age. When old enough, they were tested, and upon being pronounced healthy were added to the sound herd.

May Save Reactors.

Breeders of pure bred cattle probably will not retain reactors for breeding except in rare cases, even though the affected animals are valuable. The experiment proves however, that highly prized reactors need not be slaughtered. They cannot be cured, but they can be isolated and bred for the production of healthy offspring.

Object Lesson for Pure Bred Sheep Is Obtained

One lot of wool that lacked staple caused the importation of over forty head of pure bred sheep into Tyler county, West Virginia, in 1923, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture. The owner of this lot of wool had it graded while at the warehouse in the co-operative wool pool early in the year. It was pronounced good in quality but lacking staple. He then asked the extension service what he could do to improve it and, following the advice given, purchased a pure bred Delaine ram in an adjoining state. A number of sheep growers in the county were present when the new ram arrived, and as a result of the interest in improved stock thus aroused, a boys' and girls' sheep club was organized. For club members and adult farmers, together, 40 registered eyes and three registered rams were brought into the county before the end of the year.

June Is Best Time for Sowing Alfalfa for Hay

Probably the best time to sow alfalfa is in June. Prepare the land in the spring and harrow it to keep down the weeds till June, and then sow the alfalfa. Some delay the sowing if the ground is dry, until August. Many people, however, sow the alfalfa early in the spring with a nurse crop like barley or oats, not over one bushel of barley or oats per acre. If the summer becomes quite dry the oats and barley can be cut early and made into hay. This gives the alfalfa the entire possession of the soil. Common clover can be sown in the same way. If you have trouble in getting a stand of clover you can give it a better chance by sowing the seed alone as stated above, for alfalfa, because then it has the entire possession of the ground. If the seed is sown alone and the land is weedy you may have to clip the weeds so they will not rob the soil of the moisture and smother the clover or alfalfa.

Hawks Aid Poison Crews in Controlling Rodents

Hawks aid in rodent control work in Colorado, according to an employee of the biological survey of the United States Department of Agriculture. On a single day last fall there were noted 20 hawks feeding upon dead and dying prairie dogs on an area poisoned the previous day. At least as many more were flying in the immediate vicinity. These hawks, principally the rough-legged and prairie falcon, follow the poison crews almost as scavengers and are proving a valuable asset in follow-up and clean-up work. When the prairie dogs have been reduced by a 98 per cent clean-up, as in the case of most systematic poisoning campaigns conducted by the biological survey, it can be safely said that the remainder will be kept under control by these predatory birds.

Bulletin Discusses Brooding of Chicks

Success Depends on Skill and Care of Operator.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

On poultry farms one of the most difficult operations is the brooding of chicks, says the United States Department of Agriculture in a recent Farmers' Bulletin, "Natural and Artificial Brooding of Chicks," a revised edition by Alfred R. Lee. The bulletin considers in detail the brooding of chicks with hens and with artificial brooders. Attention is given to all the different kinds of equipment, such as brood coops, hovers, brooders and brooding systems, correct temperatures, care of purchased day-old chicks, feeding young chickens, toe punching and banding.

According to this bulletin, the successful brooding of chickens depends on the skill and care of the operator as well as the use of good vigorous chickens, which are free from disease. Poultry raisers are cautioned particularly against the danger of overfeeding, lack of exercise, overcrowding, overheating, and too little heat. The beginner cannot expect definite rules to carry him through to success, but he will find information which will enable him to know when there is something wrong and suggestions as to what sort of corrective is needed.

This bulletin, No. 1376, is a revision of and supersedes Farmers' Bulletin No. 624, and may be obtained free of charge, as long as the supply lasts, by addressing the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Number of Better-Sire Users Reaches Big Total

The systematic manner by which thousands of live stock owners in the United States are improving the quality of their animals is shown by a report just made public by the bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture. A total of 12,608 persons is shown to be using pure bred sires exclusively for all classes of breeding animals kept. This result, obtained under the "Better Sires—Better Stock" plan, involves close to 1,500,000 animals and fowls and a vastly larger number of offspring. There are also believed to be many indirect results.

The widespread operation of the better-sires activity is shown by an outline of progress during the last three months in 1923 and which is available on request. Applications for participation in the work were received from 606 live stock owners in 25 states and 97 counties. This is an increase of about 50 per cent over enrollments for the previous three months. Persons who thus co-operate with state extension services and with the United States Department of Agriculture by pledging to use pure bred sires exclusively, receive helpful publications, a suitable certificate of recognition, and a lithographed sign bearing the legend "Pure Bred Sires Exclusively Used on This Farm."

Inventory Sheets Show Need for Better Plans

Filling out farm inventory sheets furnished them by the local extension agent convinced farmers in Rowan and Iredell counties, North Carolina, of their need for better planning and more businesslike methods in farming. As a result, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture, over 200 of these farmers have kept a record of the cost of producing their crops and a number have for the first time produced enough corn, meat and hay to supply them until next harvest. One farmer, who in previous years has produced no home supply of meat, this year grew five hogs for this purpose. Many grew gardens for the first time.

FARM FACTS

A cat is hard to lose, but a good one is harder to find.

Pasture helps make swine profitable. Do you pasture yours?

The early garden depends largely on the early hotbed or cold-frame.

Let the grass get a good start before turning out the cows; both pasture and cows will benefit.

Where sugar beets can be grown this crop may well take the place of small grain that has not proved profitable.

When buying fertilizer remember that it isn't what you pay that counts as much as what you get for what you pay.

Time invested in community meetings and farmers' institutes ought to be credited to the profit side of the ledger.

Do not feed young chicks within 48 hours after they are hatched, and be sure that a little grit is in the first scratch feed.

Uncle Ab says that the man who can't find anything to do on the farm in winter doesn't deserve to be there in the summer.

If the same plot has been in garden for ten or twelve years, maybe it would pay to sow it in bluegrass for pasture and lay out a new patch for the garden.

"Uneasy Lies the Head"

I'd rather have a good digestion than a throne; and so, I imagine, would the king and his eldest son. Few people realize that his majesty suffers from chronic indigestion, and how on earth he manages to smile as much as he does passes my comprehension. The prince of Wales inherits his father's complaint, and is the despair of his hosts and hostesses because he practically lives on eggs and farinaceous fodder. His most solid dish is chicken—and even that has to be chopped up very finely for him. Yet he manages as a rule to appear in the pink of condition, and his natural nervousness and fidgetiness (he can hardly keep still for five minutes together) are admirably camouflaged in public.—London Mail.

Anne de Beaupre to replace the destroyed one, according to an announcement of the Redemptorist Fathers; as well as a monastery costing $500,000, to provide accommodation for the residing fathers. At the same time it was also stated that in view of the importance of the work a contest carrying a prize of $15,000 may be opened to architects.

Wouldn't Ride Free

President James Buchanan insisted on paying his fare at all times when he traveled, never receiving a pass, even though he was out of office. He would have been horrified at the idea of traveling free when he was president. Friends often heard him say: "I will pay my way while I can afford it. When I cannot afford to pay, I will stay at home."—From Inklings.

The Bulrushes

Opposite Cairo lies the island of Roda, where, according to Arab tradition, Pharaoh's daughter found Moses in the bulrushes. At the southern extremity of this island is the Nilometer, by which the rise of the Nile has been measured by the Cairenes for 1,000 years. It is a square well with an octagonal pillar marked in cubits in the center.
