CHARLES R. KURTZ DEAD.

Editor Centre Democrat Passes Away at a Philadelphia Hospital Tuesday Night.
Charles R. Kurtz died at a Philadelphia hospital at 11:15 Tuesday night. He had been at the hospital for treatment of various diseases from which he had been suffering during the past few years.
Mr. Kurtz was born in Aaronsburg, October 31, 1864, and with his father, the late Frederick Kurtz, came to Centre Hall in 1867 at which time the elder Mr. Kurtz established The Centre Reporter. His early education was acquired in the local public schools and the newspaper office. At an early age he learned the art preservative and worked at the "case." He completed his education at Bucknell University, graduating in 1886, and on returning home assumed the management of this paper for a period of two years, when he entered upon a similar position in Bellefonte, taking over the management of The Centre Democrat, published by a stock company. The Democrat at this time was extremely lean in all respects. From its own earnings it never was able to support itself. Under Mr. Kurtz's management the paper's circulation and advertising began to grow, and seven years later the entire plant was purchased by him, and from this date the paper's real progress began. The Centre Democrat, which at all times represented Mr. Kurtz's opinions—political and otherwise—gained a coveted influence in Centre county. He was sometimes counted radical, but he preferred to fall or rise on his own judgment. The stand of his paper, whether political or otherwise was always positive—never wavering.
During the Wilson administration Mr. Kurtz took an active part in its conduct in Pennsylvania, and this brought him in touch with prominent political characters of both state and national repute, and when success was attained he aspired and was early appointed Surveyor of the Port at Philadelphia, which place he filled with great credit during the two Wilson terms. At the expiration of his appointment he resigned, but was retained during the Harding administration for more than a year.
Mr. Kurtz is survived by a widow and two children; also a brother, J. Fred. Kurtz, of Lewisburg.

she is survived by the following children: Mrs. Oscar Long and Mrs. John McClure, of Mackeyville; Mrs. Harry Prayel, of Howard; Mrs. Williams Dugan, of near Altoona; Mrs. Lester Deitrich, of Mingoville; Morris S., of Philadelphia; Henry W., of Hublersburg; Charles A. Gardner; John and William at home. She is also survived by two brothers—Samuel Long, of Millheim, and John Long, of Spring Mills. Funeral services were held from the late home on Thursday morning by Rev. Mr. Zang, of the Lutheran church, to which she belonged for many years. Interment was made in the Hublersburg cemetery.

Lutheran Synod Notes.
It was decided that the directors of the institutions of the two Lutheran synods—the Central Pennsylvania and Susquehanna—whose terms are expired, be kept as the directors under the new synod. Dr. R. G. Bannen and J. A. Ryan were re-elected as directors of the Loyalville home and Dr. M. S. Cressman was elected to succeed Dr. H. A. Spangler, who died recently.
Sterling Decker, of Montgomery, was elected director of Susquehanna University to succeed his father, William Decker, who was killed recently, and the Rev. S. S. Spangler to succeed his father, Dr. H. A. Spangler. Dr. W. B. Fischer and Dr. C. T. Askens were elected directors of the Women's college.
A sum of $300 was appropriated for work among the Lutheran students at State College, Rev. J. F. Harkins, pastor. This sum will be given to the Lutheran church there to use as it sees fit. The church at State College cares for about 400 Lutheran boys, few of whom contribute extensively to the support of the church there. A committee will be appointed by the chair to aid the pastor at State College in any way that it can.
A motion that the synod send a letter to congress objecting to the terms of the Japanese exclusion bill, was promptly voted down for the reason that the matter was a political one and one that should not concern the synod acting as a church body.
