

THIS WOMAN'S MARVELLOUS RECOVERY

All Due to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Truman, Minn.—"I was badly run-down, had pains in my side and back; sometimes I could hardly move around in bed. My husband got me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and after taking it I was so much better I could do all my work again. I do my housework, have a garden, raise chickens, and in harvest time I worked in the field and helped pick corn. Sometimes I do chores and milk. I took the Vegetable Compound before and after my four-month-old baby was born, and it has always helped me wonderfully. I believe there is no better medicine made for women, and I hope every woman will give it a fair trial."—Mrs. AUGUST R. WIEDERHOF, R. No. 2, Box 84, Truman, Minn.

Women suffering from troubles so common to their sex should give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

The Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has relieved women of such troubles for the past fifty years. For sale by druggists everywhere.

Pesky Bed-Bugs P. D. Q.
Try just once P. D. Q.—Pesky Devils Quilts—as a preventive or to rid Bed Bugs, Roaches, Fleas and Ants. Every family should use P. D. Q. house cleaning time to guard against the Pesky Devils and to prevent moths. P. D. Q. is not an insect powder, but is a new chemical that kills insects and their eggs. Each package contains, free, a Patent sprout, to enable you to get to the hard-to-get-at places and saves the juice.
A 3 cent package makes one quart, enough to kill a million insects and their eggs. Your druggist has it or can get it for you. Mailed prepaid upon receipt of price by the Owl Chemical Works, Terre Haute, Ind.

And Then?
They sat silently for a long time, then he spoke, a little nervously. "What are you thinking about?" he asked her presently. He knew he had to say something. It seemed expected of him.
She blushed and moved uneasily in her chair.
"Never mind!" she at last answered, sharply. "It's your business to propose, not mine!"—Minneapolis Tribune.

PENNSYLVANIA STATE ITEMS

East Petersburg.—Wilmer Steffy, 23 years old, suffered a mangled left arm when it was caught in a cement mixer.

Altoona.—An ordinance was introduced in city council providing that a memorial tree be planted by the city for each Altoonan who died in service during the world war.

Shenandoah.—Walter Kutchnsky, 36 years old, was killed by a fall of coal at Suffolk colliery.

Lancaster.—The Lancaster County Firemen's Association will divide the county into 10 zones to increase its efficiency in the rural districts.

Sunbury.—Posses are searching for Harry L. Wagner, 35, a drug addict, who escaped from the Danville State Hospital for the Insane. Wagner is regarded as hardly dangerous and seemed to have recovered from the drug's effect after a month's confinement. He was sent there from Pottsville after he robbed a store of drugs.

Lancaster.—A Reading excursion train struck Elijah Gilmore, hailing from Virginia, while he was sitting along the tracks just outside the station at Lititz. He was brought to the General Hospital here.

Harrisburg.—A state appropriation of $1,000,000 will be necessary to provide for the welfare of crippled children the next biennium, Secretary of Welfare Porter said at a conference of representatives of hospitals and welfare organizations.

Hazleton.—"Jack the Hugger" has reappeared after girls thought that he had ceased his operations.

Jennett.—William Manfredi has bought the Trimble Hotel from Mr. and Mrs. George Trimble for $40,000.

Uniontown.—When they failed to appear to charges of robbery a search was instituted for Mr. and Mrs. Steve Georgevitch, said to be gypsies. They were located at Scranton and returned to Uniontown, where $1500 cash bail for each was put up by Georgevitch. When the officers searched the Georgevitch home near here a week ago in search of loot taken from the Mott residence they found $15,000 in paper currency and gold in a large trunk and three bank books with a credit of $19,000 on a Bradford bank.

West Chester.—Joseph Bentley, 10 years old, living on the Benson estate, was badly burned when some kerosene he was using to burn caterpillars from a tree on the estate caught fire and he was enveloped in flames. Frantically trying to beat the flames from his oil-soaked clothing, Joseph then fell 15 feet to the ground, where his screams and cries attracted workmen on the estate. By rolling the boy over and over in the tall grass the flames in his clothing were extinguished, after which he was rushed to Misericordia Hospital, where his condition is said to be critical.

Harrisburg.—While playing in front of its home and rushing directly in front of an automobile, Russell, 6-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Schaeffer, of Lenhartsville, was struck and instantly killed. The automobile was driven by Mrs. Victor Miller, of Krumville. Witnesses say the accident was unavoidable.

Philadelphia.—Smashing two locks and breaking off two seals of the United States treasury thieves again visited the fifth floor of the Federal Building, where a store room for seized liquors is maintained, and made off with a quantity of champagne, said to have been five cases and five bottles. This robbery is but a repetition of a series of successive, successful stealings from the warehouse, and federal agents admit they are at a loss to explain how the wine was gotten down from the fifth floor and out of the building without detection.

Meadville.—Emmett Plumber, 20 years old, a negro, of Warrens, Tenn., died at the city hospital here, as the result of a bullet wound through his back which he received when he failed to surrender to Erie Railroad Detective Duff Shorts when Shorts found him trespassing on railroad property. Shorts will be held pending an investigation.

Franklin.—Charles Roberts, 13, caught in the swirling current of the Allegheny river at the junction with French creek, was in peril of death for half an hour as his frail boat was sent careening down stream. His own zone, the boy was helpless. Emergency calls to the fire department and police brought rescue at the big rock bridge, a mile eddy, where the boat struck a quiet eddy and the boy was able to work his way to shore.

Littletown.—A new school building and hall is to be built by St. Aloysius Catholic church, the congregation deciding that the work shall be started as soon as the plans can be completed.

Lewistown.—The Civic Club will employ a playground instructor for the summer months.

Mt. Joy.—The largest blast ever set off in Lancaster county loosened 8000 tons of stone at the Newcomer quarries, near here.

Pittsburgh.—Stanley Stulpin is dead and three other men are in a critical condition as the result of drinking poison whisky.

Bellwood.—Stricken with paralysis on his way home from a school board meeting, Rev. Samuel Barber, 65, pastor of the Presbyterian church, died.

Pittsburgh.—Fourteen out of twenty-five western Pennsylvania breweries are closed or will be closed shortly by federal prohibition authorities. Divisional Chief C. J. Simons announced. Several of the breweries are under injunctions, three were seized through illegal proceedings and four injunctions have been requested, he said.

Greenville.—Alvin C. Sewell celebrated his 104th birthday here. He is in good health and is the oldest resident of Mercer county. He works every day as caretaker of St. Michael's cemetery. He has lived here all his life.

New Castle.—Frank Augustine, aged 45 years, a crossing watchman employed by the Pennsylvania railroad, was found in his shanty with his face and head deeply gashed and his skull fractured. He is expected to die. Police are seeking a man said to have been seen in the vicinity.

Hazleton.—Officials of the school board explained that a rise of one mill in the tax rate was due directly to failure of a great number of women to pay their personal taxes. It is estimated that three-fourths of the women voters are tax delinquents.

Scranton.—Charged with shooting at his wife with intent to kill, Charles Yokates, a Greenville farmer, blamed moonshine for his troubles. Yokates declared that after taking several drinks he saw his wife at work in a nearby field and thought she was an eagle. He obtained his gun and tried to bring her down under that a suspicion.

Harrisburg.—Tuberculosis apparently takes a greater toll among women whose occupations are classified as "housework" than in any other occupation, 60 of 77 patients at Mont Alto Sanitarium being thus classified as to occupations. At the same time the classification of former occupations of patients prepared by Dr. R. H. McCutcheon, medical director, showed that an open-air occupation is not a sure preventive for tuberculosis, as six former Philadelphia policemen and five farmers are taking treatment at the colony.

Chester.—In the week of June 16 a campaign will be directed toward the naturalization of the 700 alien residents of the city. After a meeting of various organizations an announcement was made of the preliminary plans and Dr. M. A. Neufeld was named chairman of the committee in charge.

Sunbury.—After lying under a tree at Paxinos for two days a stranger, ill of pneumonia, was picked up by Detective Duncavage and taken to the Shamokin State Hospital, where he died. Mrs. Mayne Barto saw a strange "bundle" and called the police. The "bundle" was the dying man, who whispered his name as James Anderson and his residence as Cleveland.

Hazleton.—Explosion of a whisky still at the home of Ralph Deangelo, a former constable, set fire to the building and an adjoining house occupied by August Wanger, causing damage of about $1000. Deangelo was badly burned and will be arraigned before Mayor Harvey as soon as he recovers.

Monessen.—Three persons were injured, one seriously, and damage estimated at $250,000 was caused by a fire following an explosion in a three-story building, which spread to an adjoining building. Escaping gas is believed by firemen to have caused the explosion. George Evans, aged 16, occupying an apartment on the third floor, was seriously burned when he aided his mother, Mrs. Mary Evans, through a blazing hallway. Two firemen suffered minor injuries.

Harrisburg.—The appointment of Mark N. Wickert, of Lancaster, as superintendent of the co-operative state employment office at Lancaster, was announced by Dr. Royal Meeker, secretary of labor and industry.

Uniontown.—Under the impression that the possession of a marriage license made them man and wife, Genaro Damiano and Mariel Pallone, two well known Italian, have been living together since October 24, 1922, when the license was granted here. They were not aware of their error until, with their baby, they made application for a passport to Italy. When asked to produce their marriage certificate Genaro brought forth the marriage license from his pocket and was amazed when informed that he and Mariel were not man and wife. They went at once before Alderman Robert B. Collins and were married.

Uniontown.—Vincent Callaghan, a policeman, is making a determined search for the thieves who stole his automobile in broad daylight from within 100 feet of the police station.

Sunbury.—S. V. Randall, of Portland, Me., a circus attaché, is in a serious condition at the Packer Hospital, having accidentally shot himself while playing with a gun.

Philadelphia.—As she glanced for the last time at the remains of her lifelong friend and girlhood playmate, Mrs. Lucy Johnson, an aged colored woman of Darby, uttered a deep sigh, threw up her hands and fell over dead.

Hazleton.—A new anthracite colliery will start operations in this district when the Candiana's Coal company will begin the shipment of coal from Silverbrook.

Watsonstown.—F. S. Noetling, principal of the Weatherly schools, has accepted the principalship here.

Beautiful Colors Mark New Season

If this most important and colorful season might be described with one word, "Rainbow," would tell the story. The rainbow idea is everywhere expressed in the most intriguing and interesting display of color, beautiful, harmonious and artistic, observes a fashion writer in the New York Times.

There is a subtle appeal to the senses and to the imagination in the symphonies of color shown in the new styles, many of which appear to have been designed to demonstrate the possibilities in color tones and combinations. The drab shades that were fashionable a few years ago have been relegated to the limbo of things of the Stone age and are no more seen in women's dress. The violent colors and harsh contrasts of late seasons have softened and faded before the gentler loveliness of the latest waves of color.

These appear in fabrics of the finest and most elusive texture; silks of the most silvery sheen; crepes, chiffons, georgettes and tulle. It is the inspiration of beautiful colors that has determined the season's modes.

The latest models in two opposite types of dress successfully are established in soft subtle materials and clever combinations of color. They are the evening gowns in the modes for spring and summer, and the more intimate garments for interior wear—the tea gowns and negligees. Obviously, to be smart, to wear the gowns that are proclaimed the last word in style, one need not be unlovely, for the new designs and the entrancing colors in which they are presented intrigue the fancy of every woman and show her at her best.

The most conspicuous gowns in the spring exhibitions are the evening gowns and the frocks for semi-dress occasions. They are the most engaging models from both French and American designers shown by the exclusive couturiers, and the foremost attraction in the windows of the best shops. The colors are like an old-fashioned garden of flowers, and the artistic blendings, combinations and contrasts are something to tax one's vocabulary.

Many Colors in Limelight.
No one color is especially fashionable, for many are equally good this season. Not any one artist appears to have specialized, unless it be Molyneux, whose fondness for black and white and white and black narrows his color schemes to a few shades. There are charming things in gentle beige,

These fantasies in sweetest shades of rose, yellow, green or white are all the rage for dancing, and a smartly-dressed young woman will have several of the same type, in different colors, to carry her well along into the season when no one can prophesy what whim of fashion will draw some other style into the spotlight.

French Models Available.
Another gown, distinctly different in this class, is that which is a sort of compromise, a graceful, conservative little get-up that impresses one at once as being a lady's dress. It is feminine, soft, clinging to the figure, yet rippling about the feet—a model that Vionnet more than any other designer has promoted.

This long skirt drapery has the appearance of several layers of chiffon or chiffon cloth (the material in which this design is most successfully developed), each one of which is cut on a bias of the goods and then stretched to hang with a frilly edge. Countless pretty frocks like this are to be had at a price that places a French model within the reach of the modest purse.

With this model is invariably introduced a flower garniture. The present fad is for a sort of pinstriped or set piece to hold the girdle gathered to the front. But many beautiful garlands, sprays, motifs and other decorative floral trimmings are effectively added to these all-chiffon gowns, on which no other ornament is used.

This floral high-light or finish to a frock is so exquisitely done in some costumes that it really seems as if the once thriving industry of French flower-making were to be revived. Certainly the beautiful samples now used on evening gowns are almost prohibitive and constitute the most costly item of the toilette.

Getting down to brass tacks, or to whalebone, hoop skirts are not comfortable and were never invented for the dexterous movements and the expeditious life of today. Hence the diplomatic concession on the part of some eminently successful modistes in Paris who have established a precedent with a slim yet bouffant gown.

Laevin has done this to perfection in a model that may be taken as typical. It is a frock of coral chiffon cloth. The bodice is plain and cut in V-shape, back, front and under the sleeveless arm. The full skirt is gathered to the plain edge of the bodice and hangs long and full about the feet. From the knee down the skirt is trimmed with several rows of silver lace and silver tissue ribbon alternately. This silver lace trims the deeply cut armhole, and a bow of the ribbon with long streamer ends is attached to the low-pointed neck of the bodice at the back.

Ruffles of Lace.
The most original fashion presented this year is that of alternating colors. In gowns made of lace or trimmed with lace, ruffles of lace dyed in different colors are used to form the skirt, and in a model received from a prominent house at Paris these ruffles are sewn in regular rows upon the entire frock from neck to hem.

One of the most chic designs seen this season has alternating rows of fine pleated lace to trim a one-piece champagne-colored crepe demi-toilette. In this color scheme three colors are used: Champagne, rosy green and Havana brown.

In another particularly snappy little frock of black and white printed chiffon, narrow, black-crepe bias ruffles, piped with scarlet, were applied from the hem to a point above the knees, across the shoulders of the bodice and finishing the sleeves at the elbow.

Charming Evening Gown of Orchid Satin Trimmed With Silk Fringe.

maize, corn silk, desert sand, hazel, citron and some grays, the yellow and pink grays and oyster.

Yellow runs the length of the garden and far as field in orange, tangerine, marigold, buttercup, canary, lemon, sulphur. Reds are fewer, though there are canna, flame, scarlet and coral—particularly the last, which is a raging favorite for evening gowns. The shades of rose and the blues and greens suggest every poetic idea in nature, and seem quite fairylike as they are done in filmy things.

The latest models in these summery evening gowns are of three different designs, all of them modish. There is still the tubular frock, which is used even when the sheerest materials are introduced. Paradoxical as it may appear to make a dress of chiffon without a plait or wrinkle from end to end, gowns of this tube-like silhouette are made by some of the leading artists in the softest stuffs, Cheruit and Douillet being among those who have the courage of their convictions.

A Cheruit gown of this type, however, has always a smashing bit of color and decoration in the form of flowers or feathers wide around the bottom of the skirt. The extreme contrast of this sort of dress is the frock, the frock that gives such an airy, billowing effect with flounce upon flounce, skirt upon skirt of tulle.

Editor Had Underrated That Hollywood Spirit

A young magazine editor of New York took a trip to California and happened in upon Hollywood. He was invited to a motion-picture party and decided to put off his usual reserve and diffidence and enter fully into the spirit of the occasion. He devoted his attention throughout the evening to a young film actress.

"I will be wild," he determined. "I will be rowdy. I will behave with all the abandon for which Hollywood is famous."

He did his best, but suddenly, as he was playing the role to the limit of his capacity, the young woman broke down and wept.

The editor asked the cause of her distress, and with tears in her eyes she looked up and said: "I've been here almost a year now and you're the first fellow that's acted to me like a gentleman."—Hollywood Brown in the New York World.

Hear the Stars Twinkle

Science says light and sound are one and the same. General Ferio, Major Mesny and M. Jounost of a French wireless laboratory claim to have succeeded in transforming light rays into audible sounds. It is known that under the action of light photo-electric cells with a foundation of selenium give off an extremely feeble electric current. Using a four-electrode lamp, the Frenchmen are said to have obtained variations of current from the star Capella, many millions of miles distant from the earth. Later, by using powerful amplifiers, they said they actually "heard" the light rays through a telephone headpiece.
