Salona, a Greek Name.

Salona, a town in Clinton county, was named after Salomika, the Grecian city. There was much sympathy then for the Greek strugglers for freedom and an invitation was sent to them to come to central Pennsylvania, and a number responded. The Mussinas and the Consers are among their descendants. J. Harris Mussina, of Lock Haven, was Associate Judge of Clinton county two terms. Levi Consers, born in Greece in 1819, was long a resident of Loganton.

Friday, at Boalsburg.

To-morrow (Friday) Defense Day will be fittingly observed at Bond Camp, Boalsburg, which will be the mecca for Penns Valley people. Hundreds of citizens have signed the enrollment blanks and will report for the big parade which will be held at 4 p. m. A big basket picnic will feature the day, and there will be entertainment in the form of a baseball game between Centre Hall and State College. Two bands will furnish music. There will be prominent speakers and a real big day is assured.

The public is cordially invited to picnic on the grounds and enjoy the entire day to their heart's content.

"The Cat and the Canary."

To the ambitious young playwright the true story of how John Willard wrote and sold "The Cat and the Canary," the famous thriller which had two seasons in New York and one in Chicago and is coming to the Moose Temple Theatre, Bellefonte, Tuesday, Sept. 16, is as full of thrills and surprises as the play itself.

Willard, who has been in turn newspaperman, miner, cowboy, actor, and aviator, has a number of playlets to his credit, but not until October 1921 had he attempted anything bigger than one act.

The entertainment committee of the Lambs had asked him to write a one-act thriller for an impending public gambol. Willard rapidly drafted the outline of a short sketch that he thought would startle even the blasé Lambs. It was the story of a girl whose enemies were trying to drive her insane in order that she might forfeit an inheritance.

When Mr. Willard read this to his wife, she agreed with him that it was a thriller, but insisted that he had more than a playlet. "That's a fine second act you have. Now, write a first and a third, and then find a producer," she urged. The Willard family was in the throes of moving from one apartment house to another, but in spite of the fact that he had to do his writing in odd minutes and for the most part used his lap for a desk, he finished it in less than a week. It was submitted to one producer after another but returned. Undismayed, Mr. Willard on Dec. 20, 1921, handed the script to a theatrical friend who promised to read it within a few days. The friend having a business engagement that night left the script at home, and his wife, to pass away the time, idly picked it up. At 3 o'clock the next morning the husband returning found to his surprise that his wife was sitting up, fully dressed, anxiously awaiting him. She confessed that after reading the script, she was afraid to go to bed. Husband took the script, and didn't go to bed at all.

On Friday, Jan. 13, 1922, "The Cat and the Canary" was put in rehearsal. On Friday, February 3, it was presented out of town, and on the following Tuesday, had its New York premiere—only a little more than three months after the script was begun—and scored a sensational success. Since then it has been played in England, Australia and the Orient while four companies will play it on tour in America this season.
