Do you know that more property is controlled by retail stores than any other kind of business in this country. There is more money invested in retail stores than in all the banks. Their sales exceed that of the steel industry.

More taxes are paid by retail merchants than by any other class.

More people are employed in retail stores than in any other trade. You can put the plus sign on anything you like in regard to the retail business. Therefore it pays to consider the ways and means of improving the greatest activity in Centre Hall, Spring Mills, Boalsburg today. This can be done by Being a Booster for these towns, and by buying from their merchants. They are paying the heaviest taxes and are making this part of Penns Valley the Business Center of the County.

MARKETS NEEDED BY THE FARMERS

Presence of Thriving Cities Near By, Important to Residents of Country.

MERCHANTS DO THEIR PART

Town and Rural Community Are Dependent Upon Each Other—Cooperation Alone Brings Prosperity to Both.

(Copyright.)
Residents of towns and cities everywhere are beginning to realize more acutely the fact that, except under very unusual conditions, their communities will prosper and develop only in proportion to the prosperity and development that comes to the farming sections which surround them. Realizing this fact, commercial clubs and chambers of commerce have in recent years been devoting as much of their attention to developing the country districts as they have to securing new industries and attracting new residents. They know that as the country about the towns becomes more thickly settled and as the farmers become more prosperous the more money will be spent in the towns and the faster these towns will grow. It is largely for this reason that the residents of the towns and cities have been doing more and more to aid the farmers in growing bigger crops and in improving marketing conditions. The towns and cities have contributed more and more liberally toward the building of good roads in the country districts and have paid a large part of the expense of maintaining agricultural experts to assist the farmers in growing bigger crops and getting more money out of their crops when they are placed on the market.

Not One-Sided Proposition.
But this is not a one-sided proposition. If the city is dependent upon the country, so is the country dependent upon the city. What the farmer raises is worth absolutely nothing to him unless he can sell it at a price that will pay him a fair return on the money and time invested in its production. The farmer, without markets, would be in the same fix as a storekeeper without customers. In almost every case the farmer is dependent upon the near-by town or city for a market for at least his perishable products.

In the language of the street, it is a fifty-fifty proposition. The town needs the country and the country needs the town. The farmer needs the assistance of the storekeepers of the town in securing a market for his products. He needs the assistance of the storekeepers of the town in getting good roads over which he may haul his products without losing more time than the products are worth. He often needs the assistance of the storekeepers in helping him over a period of financial stringency.

Storekeeper Needs Farmer's Trade.
On the other hand the storekeeper needs the business of the farmer. He does not ask the farmer to sell him his products on credit even though at the time he may be hard pushed for cash and may need more credit badly. He does not ask the farmer to help him build a sidewalk in front of his store. He does not ask for the business of the farmer provided that he can sell the farmer the goods he needs at as low a price as he can secure them for elsewhere.

But does he always get the farmer's business? Ask the mail order man in the big city or ask the postmaster or the express agent in any town or city in the country. They could, if they would, tell of thousands of dollars sent away to the big cities to pay for goods that could be purchased just as cheaply and much more conveniently in the nearest town or city. These thousands of dollars, when sent to the mail order houses in the big cities, never come back. They do not help to build good roads past the farmers' houses. When the next crops are harvested, the mail order man won't buy any of the farmer's products. The potatoes, the tomatoes, the melons and other things that the farmer raises may lie and rot upon the ground so far as the mail order man is concerned.

No Credit From Mail Order Man.
The mail order man won't sell the farmer 2 cents' worth of goods on one day's credit no matter how badly the farmer may need the goods or how little ready cash he has to pay for them. If the farmer's house burns down, the mail order man is not going to sell him any lumber on credit so that he may build another home. He will take what cash he can get the farmer to send him and there his interest in the farmer ends. If the farmer has no money to pay for what he needs, the mail order man will find others to help swell the stream of dollars which is building up his great fortune and helping build up the great city in which he lives. Let the home merchant help the farmer when he needs it. And the local merchant does help the farmer as long as he can, but there comes a time when he cannot. He cannot make money without customers. Without the legitimate profit that he makes from his sales he cannot "carry" the farmer over the rough spots, he cannot contribute to the good roads funds, he cannot pay the farmer cash for his products!

Pittsburgh.—A plot to counterfeit United States war savings certificates is declared by secret service operatives to have been uncovered with the arrest of two men and the seizure of alleged counterfeit certificates having a face value of more than $35,000. Fortunate Calabro was arrested in Johnstown, where the alleged plot is said to centre, and Philip Marguriet at Wilmerding. Both are charged with intent to defraud the government.

Lancaster.—A voter may mark his ballot with a pen or pencil, other than that furnished by the election board, according to an opinion handed down by Judge Charles L. Landis. In the second precinct of the fifth ward the election officers refused to count sixteen ballots marked in either ink or with pencil other than the one usually found in the election booths. Of these sixteen ballots, 13 were Republicans and three for other parties.

Harrisburg.—Resolutions asking Governor Pinchot, the public service commission and the water and power resources board to withhold action upon all applications for charters or extension of privileges of public service power companies until the Giant Power Survey Board presents its report to the 1925 legislature were adopted by the board. The governor immediately announced he would accede to the request and approve no charters or mergers of power companies until the report is submitted.

Scranton.—The South Penn Collieries Company purchased the property of the Leggett Creek Anthracite Company in North Scranton.

Mount Carmel.—When his cannibal suit of black tights, black jersey and hemp skirt became ignited in the mummies' parade, Benjamin C. Huckel, colored, 19, ran so fast the flames rose to his head, burning him so badly that he died in the State Hospital, at Fountain Springs. "Timber" Mackesie tripped the youth and extinguished the flames with his overcoat. The victim was a member of a club that won the first comic prize.

Harrisburg.—Representatives of poor boards of ten counties and municipalities, meeting here with Dr. Ellen C. Potter, secretary of welfare, approved the introduction of a bill in the 1925 legislature providing for the appointment of a commission to study the care of the insane of the state and report to the 1927 general assembly. The meeting was confined to representatives of counties and municipalities whose poor boards have control of licensed mental hospitals.

Wilkes-Barre.—Three children were buried under hundreds of tons of culm at the Black Diamond colliery, of the Haddock Coal Company, and smothered to death. With two other children, the little victims, Helen Keris, 9; Ignatz Keris, 6, and John Budas, 7, were digging holes in the culm under a protecting ledge. Suddenly the ledge gave way and the three children were engulfed by the debris. Agnes and Albert Budas, their playmates, were at the side of the slide and escaped with slight injuries.

Williamsport.—The motor car at last has taken its place among the various chattels which people desire to pawn, according to a local pawnbroker, who declared that scarcely a day passes but what he is asked to advance money on automobiles. When it becomes necessary to accept motor cars, the pawnbroker said, he would retire from the business. He contended that storing cars would not pay and that he would face a difficult task in endeavoring to sell unredeemed machines.

Norristown.—As she was walking near her home, Dorothy Emery, 17, daughter of William Emery, Bridgeport, was attacked by a man, dragged across the road into a lane along a creek and choked into unconsciousness. When she regained consciousness and staggered to the road she met her sister, Mildred Emery, and told of the attack. Oscar Watters, a former resident of Bridgeport, was arrested later on suspicion and the girl identified him as her assailant. He was committed without bail to await a hearing.

Lancaster.—Mrs. Bertha Pickle, aged 39, was found dead in her bath tub from acute dilation of the heart.

Harrisburg.—Appointment of Special Deputy Attorney General W. A. Schneider as a member of the commission on uniform statutes was announced at the governor's office.
