L. O. O. F. at Boalsburg.
Capt. W. H. Fry gives this account of the 50th anniversary of the Boalsburg L. O. O. F. lodge:

The three-link fraternity, lodge No. 896, Boalsburg, celebrated the 50th anniversary of its organization in fine style in its spacious hall, crowded to standing capacity. After general greetings, Professor Whitehouse was called on to preside and in a fine speech presented Prof. Shiras, of State College, who made everybody welcome. Prof. Smith outlined briefly the organization of the Boalsburg lodge of Old Fellows by Capt. Fry as grand marshal 50 years ago, with the required charter members. We rank among the foremost lodges in the country. D. W. Meyers, the dean of the lodge, and only member present that attended the organization, and who has been its treasurer for many years, recounted its advance in 50 years. He has the 50 year gold emblem. The dean was followed by Rev. Wm. Jacob Magoffin, who spoke briefly on true fellowship. Rev. W. W. Moyer, the new minister, thought it was a good way to become better acquainted. Rev. Ziegler, one of the oldest members, gave his version on how to replenish the larder with ham and doughnuts. Mrs. E. W. Hess presided at the piano with great success and played splendid music for the occasion. A fine chicken supper with all the trimmings was served. Boalsburg it noted for its pretty women and fine cooks. Covers were laid for 230 and all were taken. The lodge has a membership of 160 and a new class waiting.

Sunbury Snow Blower Successful in Test.

Further experiments conducted at Sunbury with the snow-blowing device constructed by C. L. Bubb, Central General Division airplane and steam heat inspector, and G. M. Thomas, Sunbury Division road foreman of engines, indicate that the snow blower is an entire success.

Operated over the track, which had been entirely covered with snow for one week, it opened the track for traffic, blowing the snow from the rails and cleaning the ties for a distance of approximately one foot on either side of the rails.

The device consists of a system of pipes attached to the rear of the engine tank, through which steam is ejected, melting the snow as it blows away. The device is simple in construction, weighing approximately fifty pounds. It can be adjusted to an engine in less than ten minutes.

The storm of January 2 disclosed slight defects in the apparatus, which were immediately corrected, and when put to the severe test of blowing out the crushed snow one week later it proved to be an entire success.

Letter from California.

Los Angeles, Calif., Jan. 14, 1925.

Editor Centre Reporter:
Just a line from Sunny California to dear old Pennsylvania to tell you how glad we are to live in a land of sunshine. While you folks are hugging the old cook stove, we have had a few frosty mornings which made us shiver and which took us back to our childhood days in Pennsylvania, when we rather enjoyed making our bare-foot prints in the frost. Those were "the good old days."

Our visit to Pennsylvania brought back all those fond memories, when father and mother were living with the family, all at home. We enjoyed our trip to Pennsylvania among our friends and relatives, and have spent many evenings since our return talking of the nice time we had, and a-bye all, of the hospitality of the Pennsylvania people.

We spent some time in New Orleans and found it a very interesting old city. Saw all the points of interest, which are many; also, a lovely trip on the river. There is something fascinating about the old places in and around New Orleans, especially their above-ground cemeteries; the old slave market still stands, but they are replacing their old buildings for large new ones. It won't be long until New Orleans will be no different from any other large city, except for their levees which they will always have. The canals through the city are most all filled in now. The people are mostly French Creoles, Spanish-American, and a multitude of colored people.

I mailed the mid-winter number of the Los Angeles Times to the Reporter; hope you have received it.

Very truly yours,

MRS. W. W. CUNNINGHAM.

[Note—The Reporter gratefully acknowledges receipt of the mid-winter number of the Los Angeles Times. We were in doubt as to the person sending it. This number depicts the progress of Southern California in all its phases of activities, and is indeed a remarkable production of the printing press, entirely unlike anything that has ever come to our desk from a newspaper plant. Thanks—Ed.]

PENN STATE TO ASK FOR NEEDED MONEY

Bill Will Request a Two-Year Fund of $4,323,220—Called an Honest Budget—Head of Institution Explains Request and Says That No Extravagance is Planned.

The Legislature was asked to appropriate $4,323,220 for the Pennsylvania State College, in a bill presented in the House at Harrisburg on Monday. President Thomas declared that the amount is a "conservative statement of the needs of the college for the biennium 1925-1927 which should properly be met by State appropriation." It is represented as the amount needed to enable the institution to care for its students and to render the service expected by the agricultural and industrial interests of Pennsylvania.

The amount requested for general maintenance is $3,369,932; for agricultural research, $355,746, and for agricultural extension, which includes county farm agent service, $606,542. The last legislative appropriation totaled $2,168,600, and failed to relieve conditions that showed the institution to be under-financed for the years in which Penn State has been on "starvation diet," with steadily increasing student enrollments. It was found necessary to increase student fees to prevent aserious curtailment of the services of the college, President Thomas states in his report on the budget, which has received the approval of the college board of trustees.

The proposed request is "the least that the college can fairly ask for and continue its standard of service, its officials point out. No new educational undertakings or departures from the established field of the institution are contemplated by this budget, according to President Thomas. It provides only for the schools and departments now in operation in the service of the State. He adds that the increases requested are designed to establish an adequate support for those items which have been seriously under-financed during the past eight years, and to provide for the normal development of those projects in which the economic demand for the services of the college is urgently and continuously pressing.

"It is an honest budget and contains no bit of extravagance," declares President Thomas. "The faculty salary scale, an excessive teaching load, a costly rate of depreciation in the physical plant of the college and additional equipment for an up-to-date instruction, compose the most important items for immediate remedy. The college has exhausted the possibilities of income from its own resources. Student fees are too high already for a State institution. Increases already made have worked serious hardships upon the very class of students the college was created to serve.

"As a State institution Penn State cannot appeal successfully to private benevolence for funds for maintenance or to make up deficits. Its only recourse is to the Commonwealth, to which it has rendered conspicuous service and from which it may rightfully expect the means to continue and enlarge its usefulness. Each year Penn State is losing too many of its stronger faculty men to other institutions that are better supported. A gradual approach to more adequate salaries is proposed.

"In a college having intimate relations with the public such losses are serious. More instructors are needed to relieve an excess above the normal teaching load that is borne by 35 per cent of the entire teaching staff. On our valuation of $4,000,000 at least $50,000 should be allowed for plant maintenance, almost three times the amount available last year. Not a single building on the campus has been completely painted on the exterior for at least seven years. A material enlargement of the agricultural research program makes up the major part of the entire proposal for the program development."
