WHY CHILDREN WANT TO LEARN TO PLAY THE PIANO.

[Second article written for the Reporter by R. M. Bartiges, of Coburn.]
 Recently a large class of music pupils filled out a questionnaire pertaining to musical topics. One of the questions was: "Why do you want to learn to play the piano?" The answers to this question reveal a wide variation in the utility of music. However, in many instances the same answer was given by several different pupils. Of the numerous answers given, those that were duplicated the greatest number of times are given in the following list:
 "Because I love music."
 "Because it is the means of using one's leisure time for the entertainment of self or others."
 "That I may have music when I want it."
 "So I can become a real good musician."
 "That I may live a more useful life."
 "To have music in the home."
 "To please my parents. They are very fond of music."
 "Because I want to be a music teacher."
 "Because music has a great educational value."
 "That I can make others happy."
 "So I can play the piano in Sunday school or church."
 "Because music helps to cheer lonely hours."
 "So I can take my part in music in school."
 "I want to be an entertainer some day."
 "Because proficiency in musical performance is one of the high and refined arts, indicating personal culture and worthy accomplishments."
 "To entertain my friends and be popular."
 "Because ability to play well may be a financial help to me when I am older."
 "To become a pianist in a movie theatre."
 With so many good, legitimate reasons for learning to play the piano, it may be considered quite natural for music pupils to start out so hopefully and enthusiastically on their musical journey.

Orphanage Committee Meets.
 Another enthusiastic meeting of the Orphanage Committee of Northumberland Presbytery was held recently in Sunbury, when representatives were also present from Clarion, Lackawanna and Carlisle Presbyteries. Plans were developed to present this matter definitely before the seven Central Pennsylvania Presbyteries this fall. Julian Millard, the State Supervising Architect, was present from Harrisburg with plans for a $75,000 building that will house some forty-five children. Some of these will be convalescents received from hospitals, and this end of the work promises to be the largest end. This Convalescent Home will touch over thirty hospitals in Central Pennsylvania. Nothing like a combined work of this character is being done by any church, and the plan has the hearty endorsement of the State Welfare workers, who are studying the most unique institutions anywhere.
 If adopted by these Presbyteries, it will assure for Buffalo Valley one of

 Mrs. Picken's first husband was Dr. Isalah Meads, of Mill Creek. Two sons survive this marriage—Judge Walter D. Meads, of Cleveland, Ohio, and Dr. C. A. Meads, of Braddock. Three children were born to the second marriage—Edith, wife of Robert P. Campbell, of Penns Cave, and Franklin and Mary, who died in infancy. She is survived by the following children: William Brindel and Mrs. Elizabeth Odum, Aurora, Illinois; Mrs. O. P. Smith and John Brindel, Aaronsburg. There also survive her twenty grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

STATE S. S. CONVENTION AT ERIE, OCTOBER 14-15.

Centre County Expected to Send Large Delegation—Railroads Offer Reduced Fares.
 Reports from local and county Sunday School leaders indicate that the Centre county delegation attending the big State Sabbath School convention at Erie on October 14, 15 and 16 will be larger this year than usual.
 Last year there were eight officially registered delegates and some that did not register and this year it is requested that all register so that our county may make the showing she so well deserves.
 Erie is the home town of General Secretary Myers and because of this, both the local committee and the program committee have made an unusual special effort to have this the best ever convention. The program is one of the best and most useful in recent years and Centre county, in sending a large delegation, will not only help show appreciation of the splendid services of General Secretary Myers, but be privileged to meet and listen to this country's very best leaders in Sunday School work.
 The local committee, headed by County President, J. O. Herber, has been working for weeks and all plans are practically completed to care for and make comfortable the thousands from all over Pennsylvania, who will be there.
 The railroads are offering reduced fares for the round trip and with Pennsylvania's fine motor roads many will go by motor.
 Fifty-year Service Medals, will, as usual, be awarded all those as officers or teachers who have been such continuously for fifty years. Fifty of these were awarded last year. If you know of any who is entitled to these medals, report promptly to the county secretary.
 Much favorable comment was received last year at State headquarters because of the increased number of divisional conferences, and again this year that plan will be carried out, and working with you in these conferences as well as in main convention addresses will be Dr. Hugh S. Magill, General Secretary of the International. Also our former beloved secretary, Dr. W. G. Landes, now the World's General Secretary, Miss Margaret Slattery, internationally famed writer, lecturer and friend of girls; Dr. H. T. Kerr, the famous "radio" pastor, along with twenty other representatives of the World, International and State associations.
 The officers of your county association are expecting a larger delegation than last year, because of the exceptional program and splendid benefits to be brought back to our own county and any information as to the convention or of auto parties or district delegations should communicate with the County Secretary Darius Walte, Bellefonte, Pa.
