FARM CALENDAR

Timely Reminders from The Pennsylvania State College

Feed Birds Mash and Grain—The proportion of mash and grain eaten by the farm poultry flock may be controlled by the method of feeding used. The dry mash should be in hoppers before the birds at all times. The grain is fed by hand. The birds like grain and will eat it first. If they eat too much grain cut down on the amount of feed to get a greater mash consumption.

Have Dairy Short Courses—A short course in dairy manufacturing will be given at the Pennsylvania State College from January 7 to February 19, 1926. It is composed of three divisions. A course in testing and butter and cheese making runs from January 7 to 23. There will be an ice cream makers' short course, January 25 to February 5, and a market milk and milk condensing course from February 8 to 19.

Prune Shrubs Carefully—In planting deciduous shrubs in the fall they should be cut back about one third.

Sometimes it is advisable not to cut back quite so heavily. It is well to prune but not as severely as in the spring. This is a safety measure for severe winter. Then in spring the one-third pruning can be done.

Feed and House Cows—Milk pail results will show that it pays to keep the cows sheltered on cold days. They also indicate the difference between good and bad feeding. Some cows are only boarders at the best but good cows pay well for plenty of good feed.

Take Care of Eggs—Now that cold weather is coming on make a practice of carefully collecting eggs and storing them in a suitable place. Eggs should be held at a temperature of 50 to 60 degrees Fahrenheit. The storage place should be free from odors and not too dry. Ship eggs regularly.
