Stepping on the Gas =

It is reported that last year 43,000 people were killed by gas—2,000 by asphyxiation, 1,000 by attempting to light it, and 40,000 by "stepping on it."

There is a moral in that for it is not a joke. A good many people are traveling fast these days, not only in motor cars but in general methods of living. There is always a temptation to "step on it" when more speed can be attained. This bank believes in "safety first" rather than in "stepping on the gas."
