CHECK KITERS ARE PRODUCE OF AARONSBURG

Mrs. Jones, of the Holsopple Bank, Granddaughter of Rev. Elias Stambach, a Native of Lower Stambach, a Native of Lower Bank President, Reared in High Valley.

A mammoth "check kiting" scheme, involving a woman assistant bank cashier, a product of Aaronburg, and the netting of more than 25 banks in Cambria and Somerset counties of funds aggregating $125,000, has been uncovered by Paul A. Hines, Jr., special accountant of the Department of Justice.

Mrs. Martha V. Jones, assistant cashier of the First National Bank of Benson, at Holsopple, Somerset county, is under $5000 bail, it being charged that she misapplied funds of the bank to the amount of $20,000, and by issuing false certificates of deposit made it possible for the "check kiting" to be conducted on a large scale.

Mrs. Jones' maternal grandfather was Rev. Elias Stambach, a native of Aaronburg, who also served Evangelical appointments in Potter township. Mr. Cassler was born and reared in High Valley, east of Coburn, and has personal acquaintances in Centre Hall.

HAY WAGON PASSING OVER BOY CAUSES HIS DEATH

Lad of Nine Thrown From Tractor in Path of Hay Wagon—Walked to House—Expired Fifteen Minutes Later.
Stover Nicholas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clair Nicholas, while in the hay field of his granduncle, Frank Stover, three miles east of Aaronburg, was almost instantly killed by a hay wagon passing over his body. The father of the lad was operating a tractor to which was hitched a hay wagon and loader. The boy, who was aged about nine years, was also riding on the tractor. The tractor upset, throwing the operator and boy to the ground, and before the youth could recover and regain his feet, the wagon following passed over his body.
