FARM CALENDAR

Timely Reminders from The Pennsylvania State College

Plant Rape for Hogs—Dwarf Essex rape may be planted for hog pasture up to August 1. Where permanent pastures are short it is advisable to supplement them with such a temporary as rape provides. Under good conditions it may be pastured six weeks after planting.

Avoid Tainting Milk—Where fly sprays are used 30 to 45 minutes should elapse before milking in order to avoid off-flavored milk, say Pennsylvania State College dairy specialists.

Cull Out Boarders—When the egg production drops below 50 per cent, the laying flock should be culled at least once a month. Culling the flock regularly throughout the summer will weed out the low-producing hens. Such practices will cull out nine per cent of the laying flock in July and 11 per cent in August.

Alfalfa Chicks—If chicks between two and ten weeks of age show loss of appetite, droopy wings, disordered feathers, general weakness and slightly darkened combs, they may be suffering from an intestinal disease called coccidiosis. A minute parasite is the cause. Feed all the sour milk the birds will drink, use a crumbly wet mash, eliminating the scratch grain entirely. Isolate the chicks, disinfect the house daily and move to clean ground or lime the yards heavily and cultivate.

Pick Sweet Peas Daily—Sweet peas should be picked daily to prevent them from going to seed. Apply a heavy mulch of grass clippings to conserve moisture. Water thoroughly and often in dry weather.

Take Care of Berries—Look the raspberry plantation over and take out any plants showing any signs of blue-stem, mosaic, or leaf curl. If the strawberry bed is to be left for another year cultivate the middles, hoe between the plants, and apply fertilizer.
