FARM CALENDAR

Timely Reminders from The Pennsylvania State College

Cut Out Old Canes—If the fruiting canes have not been cut from the raspberry and blackberry bushes they should be taken out and burned, since they frequently form a source of disease for the new canes.

Plant Perennial Borders—Perennials which are planted now for next year's borders must receive sufficient moisture to germinate the seeds. If it is not possible to plant after a soaking rain, the soil should be thoroughly saturated.

Oil Lousy Pigs—Experiments at the Pennsylvania State College show that it requires considerably more feed to produce gains on lousy hogs than on swine freed from lice. Crowd the hogs in a small pen and sprinkle crude oil or crankcase drainings on them with a sprinkling can or with an old broom dipped in the oil. Leave the pigs in the pen until they have rubbed against each other and their bodies are covered with the oil.

Keep Milk Utensils Clean—Milk utensils should never be left in the sun until after they are carefully cleaned and dried. The use of cotton disc strainers will save time and labor and insure cleaner milk.

Eat More, Lay More—Hens that lay a maximum number of eggs must necessarily consume a large amount of good, balanced ration. To keep feed continually in the digestive system, the hen must eat frequently. Keeping the hen close to the feed hopper will make them eat more. More eggs for a longer period will result.

DEATHS

MILLER—Mrs. Miller, wife of Edgar Miller, died at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Neese, in Millheim, on Tuesday afternoon, after an illness extending over a period of considerable length. At the time this issue of the Reporter goes to press no definite arrangements had been made as to time of holding the funeral or place of interment.

Mrs. Miller's maiden name was Miss Grace Neese. She was a graduate nurse from the Centre County Hospital and later served in the capacity of nurse in the Sunbury hospital, and while engaged there she became ill, and probably out of that sickness the trouble developed that finally caused her death. She was aged twenty-four years, plus one week. Her marriage to Mr. Miller, who is assistant cashier in the First National Bank at Centre Hall, took place a year ago last May. The couple never began housekeeping, but divided their place of living between the respective homes of their parents. Mrs. Miller was held in the highest esteem of all her acquaintances; she was a young woman of high character and lovely disposition. She was a member of the Reformed church. Beside the parents mentioned heretofore, there survive the deceased a sister and brother, namely: Miss Helen Neese, night superintendent at the Centre County Hospital, and Harry, in Millheim.

FERGUSON—George W. Ferguson, colored, for some years landlord at the Boal Inn, Boalsburg, while doing chores at his stable on Sunday morning, fell dead. He had been in his usual health up to that time and had been preparing to move to Hublersburg, where he had purchased a hotel stand. He was well liked in Boalsburg, both as a citizen and inn-keeper, and had built up a good reputation for his house. He was a native of Virginia. His wife, who before marriage was Miss Hulda Rux, is from Phillipsburg, to which place the body was taken on Wednesday for interment. There are also two children less than five years of age. Mr. Ferguson was aged fifty-eight years.

MUSSER—Mrs. Lincoln Musser died at Miami, Florida, the body having been shipped to Bellefonte for interment. Her maiden name was Miss Gertrude Solt, and she was reared at Zion. Her age is about sixty years.

COMMON SENSE SANITATION.

Hints on Water Supply, Milk Supply and Sewage Disposal.

[By J. L. Tressler, County Health Officer.]

Don't use water from any source for drinking, cooking cleaning the teeth, etc., unless such source is of known purity. If any doubt as to its purity, sterilize the water by boiling. Surface supplies from streams and lakes are usually impure; springs and dug wells, particularly those near earthen privy vaults and leaching cesspools, are often unsafe; deep wells, cased to rock, are usually satisfactory.

Don't dip utensils into the spring or well; install an overflow pipe or a pump with waste trough.

Common drinking cups or glasses should not be allowed at any well, spring, or spigot to which the public has access.

Write to the State Department of Health, Harrisburg, Pa., or the County Health Officer, Bellefonte, Pa., for free copy of Bulletin No. 15, on the protection of springs, wells and cisterns.

Use milk only from a herd that has been tuberculin tested and when same is produced under satisfactory sanitary conditions; or milk properly pasteurized, that is, milk held in vats at 145 degrees F. for 30 minutes, and from a plant that is equipped with an approved recording thermometer. The milk handlers as well as the consumer, should be communicable diseases as determined by physical examination as required by law.

Construct the privy so that flies or animals may not have access to the body discharges in the vault. Use tongued and grooved sheathing for the building or plain sheathing with battens; provide a self-closing seat cover; bank earth around the vault; keep privy clean.

Construct the privy vault so that the contents cannot drain or discharge, directly or indirectly, into any spring, well, stream or lake.

A privy without a vault is not to be tolerated. Concrete or brick vaults are generally more satisfactory than earthen vaults. Keep the contents of vault as dry as possible by preventing entrance of surface water. Don't wait for the vault to overflow, but empty it at proper intervals and bury contents in a remote place where they will be no danger to water supplies.

PLEASANT GAP

Jack Mullinger and wife, of Spring Mills, and Mr. and Mrs. Deane are visiting at the J. C. Mullinger home.

The congregation of St. Marks Lutheran church are contemplating some improvements to their already cozy edifice. Among the improvements are painting the exterior.

Mrs. Frank Clemens and Miss Geraldine Dietrick were entertained at Rockyview Tuesday, at the home of Deputy Warden McFarlane.

Leslie E. Miller, of Woodlawn drove 222 miles to the home of his mother, Mrs. J. T. Noll, on Friday night to visit for a brief time with friends and take Mrs. Miller and their youngest son Jack, to their home. Master Deay will remain the remainder of the summer with his grandparents. Mr. Miller has quit the merchandising business and is a prosperous Metropolitan Insurance Co. agent.
