FARM CALENDAR

Timely Reminders from The Pennsylvania State College

Still Time for Spinach—Spinach may be planted in coldframes until the middle of September. Make the rows four inches apart and thin the plants to four inches in the row. Be sure the soil is kept fairly moist and is well supplied with lime and fertilizer.

Grading Fruit for Sale—Grading fruit pays. The small, as well as the large, sell best if by themselves and not mixed with several other sizes. A sign on pays for itself in the increased value of the crop.

Market Crops Through Cows—Dairy cattle are markets for farm crops. Prices are good or poor according to the quality or producing ability of the cattle on the farm.

Kill the House Flies—Flies are particularly bad at this time of the year. Keep them out of the house by using a teaspoonful of 40 per cent. formaldehyde in a pint of milk which has been diluted with an equal quantity of water. Put in shallow pans in which pieces of bread are placed to provide lighting places for the flies. The flies should have no other access to water. Keep the pans out of reach of the children.

Helms—Halligan.

Clayton T. Helms, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Helms, of Osceola Mills, was married on Wednesday evening, August 18th, at 8 o'clock, to Miss Constance Halligan, daughter of Mrs. Margaret Halligan, of Tyrone.

The ceremony took place at Tyrone, and was performed by Rev. J. S. Looney, the bride's pastor, and was a quiet, but very pretty affair. The bride, as one of Tyrone's popular and highly esteemed, young ladies.

The groom is engaged in the automobile business in Osceola Mills, and is an energetic, hustling young man, held in high respect.

Closing One-Room Schools.

Co-operating with the State department of public instruction, County Superintendent Guy C. Broussard has completed the closing of thirteen one-room schools within the past two years leaving but fifty-four one-room schools in Clinton county, where there were sixty-seven in operation in 1924. The pupils from three of these schools will be transported to the graining school at the Central State Normal school, while the schools closed further away from the city, will have their pupils transported to the nearest schools which are open. The consolidation of these schools will save their local districts many thousands of dollars, and will also enable the pupils to have the advantage of specialists and college graduates for teachers.

"BACHELOR BRIDES"
Rod LaRocque and Julia Fay.
Percy Ashfield, young British peer, is in love with Mary Bowing, daughter of an America millionaire. Lady Ashfield, Percy's mother, offers to bestow the famed family jewels on the bride and takes them from the safe for the purpose. While they are awaiting the arrival of a detective who is to guard the gems, a strange girl bursts in with a babe in her arms and accuses Percy of being the father of her child by a secret marriage. He denies this and another stranger, claiming to be the doctor, identifies the girl as an escaped lunatic. The pearls, meanwhile, have been stolen, but are later replaced. When the detective arrives and informs them that their lives are in danger as there is a desperate axe killer in the neighborhood. The mystery is cleared up in the end and it develops that the doctor and the girl with the baby are a pair of crooks. The detective is an impostor and also a crook. The arrival of the real detective makes this certain and he explains that he took the pearls and substituted an imitation string.
