Arbor Day, October 22.

Governor Pinchot proclaimed October 22 as Arbor Day and Bird Day. He declared that in no other state is observance of this day more significant than in Pennsylvania with its 13,000,000 acres of forest land, and he asked that all the people of the state, especially the school children, properly observe the day.

"Birds and trees are the friends of man," the Governor said. "Commendable progress has been made in reforesting the steep hills and vast waste areas in the state. During the last twenty-five years more than 75,000,000 forest trees have been planted on idle acres. These trees are green and growing memorials to those who helped promote this great work. The teachers and pupils of our schools have taken an active part in this achievement. During the spring of 1925, the schools of Pennsylvania planted more than 365,000 trees. Fifty thousand of those trees were planted by the 1500 children of a progressive town in western Pennsylvania. I commend most heartily the continuation and enlargement of this wholesome work. It will go far in guaranteeing the restoration of Penn's Woods."

SCHOOL PUNCTUALITY

If the parents want to do one big thing for the schools let them see that their children get started for school in plenty of time to get their before the bell rings, yet not too early.

And if those boys and girls want to have an A-1 school that they can be proud of, and belonging to which will give them credit let them march right along like little soldiers that school, and not loiter by the way for their vacation diversions.

A schoolroom where pupils keep dribbling in after things are supposed to have begun, looks like an army of soldiers of which cannot keep step. There is a looseness of appearance about it, and the impression is given that it is a kind of go as you please affair, in which the pupils can obey the rules or not according as they may happen to feel. The teachers will do the best they can with it, but the pupils must cooperate by promptness of attendance.

To Boost Susquehanna U.

Details of Susquehanna University's program of development will be discussed by more than two hundred leading Lutheran Church members and Susquehanna Alumni at an all day-meeting at Selingsgrove to-day (Thursday).

Of this fund $200,000 will be used for additional endowment, $125,000 will be used for the construction of an Alumni Memorial Library and $125,000 for liquidation of debt.

State Senator Charles Steele, general chairman of the campaign forces, will preside. Organization of the committee of church workers throughout the Susquehanna Synod of the Lutheran Church, and of the Alumni forces now is proceeding rapidly.

Phillies to Play Philipsburg.

There is wide spread interest being manifested in the game of baseball that is scheduled at Philipsburg, Thursday of next week, between the Philadelphia National league team and Philipsburg. Hundreds of baseball fans living within a radius of 25 miles of Philipsburg have never seen a major league team in action, and the appearance of the Phillies here will afford the first opportunity for scores of men and women to see just what a big league team, does look like.

Seems Born Only to Dance Through Life

A strange creature, the dainty May fly. One of the strangest things is that it eats nothing from its cradle to the moment of its death.

Thrust into a world where nearly every living thing is constantly in search of food, the May fly goes its way with never a thought of food, writes W. A. DuPuy in Nature Magazine. Surrounded by creatures that lie in wait and devour each other, the May fly eats not nor thinks of eating. It does not even possess a mouth with which it might eat if it felt so disposed. It comes into the world with a certain amount of vitality in its frail body, it dances gaily until that strength is gone, and dies.

Equally strange is the birth of the May fly, a birth which almost any observer may witness if he happens to be sharp-eyed by the waterside almost anywhere at just the right minute. If he watches closely he may see many tiny creatures as big as house flies emerging from the mud at the bottom of the lake or stream.

Cat Followed Master

A strange tale of homing instinct in animals is reported from Tydesley, Lancashire, England, by the London Mail.

Police Inspector Atkinson, who was recently transferred from Colne to Tydesley, about 40 miles away, took with him his cat. It was missed and a few days afterward he received a letter from Colne police station stating that the cat had returned to its former home.

Inspector Atkinson told a reporter that the cat took four days to make the journey, and he took it back again. "It was born at my home," he said, "and it regularly accompanied me on my rounds at Colne."
