While a member of the State Senate, Senator William I. Betts gave his senatorial duties first attention. He is not only always present to record his vote, but he gave expression of opinion on the question at issue. No fault is found with the senator's stand on questions before the senate. He always voted and voted right.

If Centre county wants its taxes spent as they should be, its citizens should send to Harrisburg WILLIAM I. BETTS and ANDREW CURTIN THOMPSON, men of stalwart character, who will know no master but the people they would represent.

The Boys Will See It Through.
The Sesqui-Centennial shows a deficit of over $3,000,000, due largely to politicians managing for their own benefit. The last legislature attempted to provide for this contingency by passing over agricultural and school appropriations, to have a surplus for Philadelphia politicians to spend next year. Centre county's contribution to the Legislature, J. L. Holmes, gave his hearty support and vote to such obvious graft.

H. B. Scott and J. L. Holmes, in every phase of their public career, have heeded for Bill Vare and Harry Baker, and always will do so. To send these men to Harrisburg, will be sending two votes and voices to defeat legitimate appropriations, and to make our county, among others, pay for Philadelphia's folly, and the improving of politically owned land. We have it from Vare's own mouth he wants these men in Harrisburg to serve him.

LETTER FROM LOCAL HUNTING PARTY IN MAINE WOODS

Forks of Machias Camps, Ashland, Maine, Oct. 12, 1926. Arrived here at the "home camp" today at 3:55 P. M., and found Mr. Lynch to be just such a man as I had anticipated—young, congenial, a perfect picture of health and clean-cut. He is a contributor to the "National Sportsman" and other sporting magazines.

Leaving good old Centre Hall we struck for Niagara Falls, arriving there about 3 P. M. of the same day and that afternoon and following forenoon we visited all the major attractions of the American and Canadian sides, arriving Watertown, N. Y. for the night. Our route then took us via the Thousand Islands, putting us at Burlington, Vermont, the White Mountains of New Hampshire. That I had seen mountains before, but we simply stood gazing! Old Mt. Washington, over 6,200 feet high, snow capped and towering into the clouds; Mt. Willard rising almost perpendicularly over 4,800 feet, and much to our delight, we arrived at a time to observe a mountain climber scale this mighty cliff. From here we journeyed on to Bangor, Me., for our next stop-over. The following day put us to Ashland, Maine, which is one of the most northern points of civilization in the state. Leaving Ashland early this morning we started an eight-mile "hike" through the virgin forests of Maine, accompanied by Harold Weeks, a very competent guide, and a tote team to transport the luggage. Grouse were shot enroute which were prepared for our noon meal, holding the choice portions of the meat over burning pieces of wood. Did we eat? Yes! Following the feast we tramped four miles further, reaching the bank of the Machias River and then four miles upstream in a canoe. This was quite novel to us who do not have this opportunity frequently, and also quite restful after a tiresome hike. Wild ducks and more grouse were taken on the last half of our journey. These will be served in the morning.

No car trouble was experienced and not over 5 miles of bad road was experienced enroute. The "big" crop up here is potatoes; one "plantation" has 1100 acres that are yielding 140 to 160 barrels, about 525 bushels, per acre. Selling at $3.50 per bbl. Farm buildings are unusually attractive and indicate thrift. Practically all farm buildings are under one roof—house, barn and all, which naturally interested us to the extent that we stopped and inquired as to why this was the prevailing type of building. The farmer replied that it was handy to go from the breakfast table to the cow barn, under shelter, when there was 6 feet of snow outside and the thermometer registered 40 to 50 deg. "below."

We are now at what is termed the "Home Camp." Tomorrow we hike six miles further into mountains to the "Owl's Roost" cap which is the bear territory of this part of the state. Here we will have no outside communication for several days. There are 12 comfortable log cabins here, with the dining hall in the center. Excellent meals are served. At the "Owl's Roost" however we will be obliged to live in a more primitive state.

DEATHS.

KLISE.—Mrs. Annie Elizabeth Klise, wife of J. M. Klise, of Lock Haven, died at her home Friday morning following a stroke of paralysis. She had been in ill health for two years.

Mrs. Klise, who would have been 64 years of age on Monday next, was born in Rebersburg, but removed to Lock Haven when a child and has since resided there. She was prominent in musical circles, and for more than fifty years served as organist of the St. John's Lutheran church, resigning two years ago because of ill health. She was also a member of the Lock Haven Choral club.

She is survived by her husband and one sister, Mrs. P. E. Fitzgerald, of Los Angeles, Calif.; also by several nephews and nieces.

Funeral services were held Monday, in charge of Rev. J. H. Deihl, of Selinsgrove, assisted by Rev. C. H. Stein, pastor of St. John's Lutheran church, and interment made in Highland cemetery.

ENGLE.—Eugene, five and one-half months old son of Abraham and Elmore (Rider) Engle, died at the parents' home in Shamokin of complications.

The remains were brought to the home of Mrs. Engle's father, Sawyer Rider, in Haines township, from where funeral services were held, conducted by Rev. F. A. Fred Griesing. Interment was made in the Aaronsburg Reformed cemetery.

Besides the parents, the infant is survived by two brothers and two sisters: David, William, Helen Geraldine and William.

FARM CALENDAR
Timely Reminders from
The Pennsylvania State College

CHOOSE RIGHT STORAGE.—Squashes, pumpkins, and sweet potatoes need a dry location but also need to have a temperature between 50 and 60 degrees. Shelves in the furnace cellar are good places to store these vegetables. SELL BEST APPLES.—Market the best apples. With one and one-half bushels of apples per person in Pennsylvania there should be a good market for all good apples. That is less than one-half an apple a day.

PICK COWS FOR PRODUCTS.—Choice of a dairy breed largely depends upon the kind of dairy product most favorably marketed.
