

Don't Let That Cold Turn Into "Flu"

That cold may turn into "Flu," Grippe or, even worse, Pneumonia, unless you take care of it at once. Rub Musterole on the congested parts and see how quickly it brings relief. As effective as the messy old mustard plaster, does the work without blister. Musterole, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other simple ingredients, is a counter-irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold. You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation that brings welcome relief.

Coat, All Right, but—

In hurrying to answer an accident call, a Kansas City (Mo.) hospital interne put on the first coat that came to his hand. It was a fur coat, well suited to the chilly blasts outside. After the ambulance had arrived at the scene of the accident, and while the doctor was treating the injured man, he became aware of the curious glances of bystanders. He looked closer at the coat he was wearing. It was a woman's coat of mink fur belonging to a nurse at the hospital. On its shoulder was a red flower.

ABOUT THE PELICAN

"I call lots of things parties," said young Peter Pelican. "I even call it a party to be a pelican! Now some birds are so ordinary but not a pelican."

"A pelican is unusual. Perhaps some creatures are glad that there are not more queer ones like ourselves about. But if they are I do not agree with them."

"We are different looking. We have such long, long golden brown bills or beaks—one apiece of course you understand."

"Then we have beautiful white feathers and we're dressy and important looking."

"Our long, long bills are so unusual. Now some animals and some people look so much alike. You can't tell them apart very well. But there is no mistaking a pelican."

"You might see two little birds belonging to quite different families and you would not be able to tell which one belonged to which family.

"You might forget the family name or you might forget which family of birds it was which looked that way. But pelican is a family name not easily forgotten and pelicans look all full of distinction and difference."

"The pelican is unmistakably a pelican. But I began to talk about parties. Well, it is true, as I said, I call lots of things parties."

"When I was but a little pelican and found my fish meals in my mother's bill I thought that was a party. I called it a party then and were I a small pelican today I would still call it a party."

"Of course I still am young, but I am not as young as all that."

"I call it a party to think that while I was brown when I was first hatched I am white now. Of course the brown pelicans are brown still! That is why they have that family name. They're handsome birds, too."

"Maybe you will think it is conceited of me to say that they are handsome birds, too, but I cannot help but think I'm handsome. And I'm really not conceited about it as I give credit to the pelican family in general, and not to myself in particular, for my beauty."

"They, too, have good appetites. Now I call mealtime a party. I think all pelicans do. We enjoy our food."

"That is the way I think stomachs should be. I think it would be very sad to look at food one wanted to eat and not be able to eat it because one's stomach could not hold any more."

"I wouldn't call it a party if such a thing happened to me. I can eat all I want to eat."

"Then I call it a party when I swim. Swimming is such fun. I swim so easily for my nice, generous-sized webbed feet can help get me through the water mighty quickly."

"I'm like a person who hurries out to the market before everything gets snapped up and I am even superior to such a person for I would hurry along so fast that my market couldn't get away from me! I call mealtime a splendid party."

"Then when we have a nice island home I call it a party home for so many of us make a home together. We live in big colonies, you may know or you may not know. And in case you do not know I am telling you. If you do know I hope you won't mind hearing this again."

"I call it a party when we decide we'd like to travel and settle for awhile somewhere else. We aren't so full of local pride that we won't see the whole world if we so wish it."

"At least we will go a-traveling and lots of us will suddenly decide upon it and we will be off, going toward what we have decided will be our new home. But at the present moment I am sleepy and every good pelican sleeps after eating. I've had a good meal just recently. Yes, I must sleep for all the other pelicans are now asleep. I call an after-meal sleep a pelican party, too!"

WHAT THE GRACIOUS HOSTESS SAYS:

By DELLA THOMPSON LUDES

WHEN CALLING

THERE are certain fundamental rules which, observed, will make the brief visit a thing to be remembered pleasantly by the hostess, and incite her to a desire, perhaps, for further interchange of courtesies.

Do not gush or make a fuss over your hostess. Be courteous, affable, pleasant, and show her by your visit that you are glad of her acquaintance.

Do not wriggle or twist about on your chair. Sit evenly and quietly, without crossing and uncrossing your knees half a dozen times. Do not gossip or talk too much about your own affairs. If there are several persons in a room, do not buttonhole one and carry on a private conversation. Talk generally, quietly and with what interest you can.

Do not attempt to kiss your hostess unless she makes the advance. Women of good breeding do not often kiss each other in public. It is a pretty custom, held in check, but greatly abused. Neither should one be promiscuous with other manifestations of affection, such as holding another by the elbow, hugging or "pawing" in any way. One can show affection in other ways than by public demonstration. And as for the utterly unbridled, senseless and meaningless parade of expressions of affection like "sweetheart," "love," "darling," and similar words, the effect to one who really cares for words is nauseating. The too-familiar clerk who calls you "dearie," and the woman who she does for forty others and still calls you "sweetheart," are on a level. Words and hands should keep their places, and then, when they do steal away to pleased uses, they will mean something, which is what they do not do, used promiscuously.

When the time comes to go, get up easily. Shake hands with your hostess, make some pleasant remark—and go. The people who are always talking about going and are the last to leave, are dreadful bores.

"Stand not upon the order of your going—but go at once," is a motto that many a hostess would be glad to have framed and hung over her door.

Never overstay. It is better to have your hostess wish you had stayed longer than have her regret that you stayed so long.

If there are any elderly people in the room pay them special deference. If there are very young people, treat them as if they were grown up. Give them a word or two of real conversation, and do not "talk down" to them. They hate it.

If a caller arrives before you, as hostess, are dressed for the afternoon, receive her in the dress you have on rather than keep her waiting.

Has Hearing in Whiskers

Doctor Munnich of the University of Minnesota discovered that the caterpillar of the morning clock butterfly hears through its whiskers. He found that by carefully singeing the hairs of one of these creatures, or by otherwise putting them out of commission, the caterpillar failed to respond to sound stimuli. He also noted that these caterpillars responded to sound when their heads were cut off and that relatively small sections of a dismembered caterpillar showed that they could still recognize a sound stimulus.

Made Business of Affairs of "Honor"

Hungary is still the land of expert sabre wielders and duelists. There is nothing many Hungarians would like better than to fight a duel on a misty morning, provided it could be got over with in time for them to walk up and down the Corso, alongside the Danube. Usually the swords or sabres cleave the air or draw just a slight of blood. For a duel one needs seconds and weapons as well as the time and place.

A Budapest lawyer supplied these needs, and in time developed quite a business, with seconds ready to be called upon at any hour, usually a very early one. An army captain who did not favor this commercial way of carrying out duels brought the lawyer to court on the charge of taking money for organizing duels. The lawyer replied a very indignant man when the judge asked him if he accepted money for arranging affairs of honor.

But he admitted accepting gifts, and added, sadly: "Alas, the gifts are becoming smaller and smaller, and the seconds are charging more and more."

Baltimore Woman Saved From Years of Suffering

Threatened With Complete Loss of Health Due to Chronic Nervousness, Biliousness and Stomach Trouble, Mrs. Martin Recovers Strength. Tanlac Did More in 2 Weeks Than Other Treatments Did in 2 Years

If you are nearing the tragic moment when good health will slip from you; if indigestion, nervousness, kidney disorders and ailments caused by run-down condition torture you, benefit from the experience of Mrs. Fanny C. Martin, 1907 Frederick Avenue, Baltimore, who says: "Without exaggeration Tanlac did more good for me in 2 weeks than all the other treatments that I tried did in 2 years."

"Chronic nervousness and stomach disorders caused me to suffer terribly for a long time. I was a nervous wreck. At night I would lie in bed and cry and worry about my troubles, both real and imaginary. My kidneys were in bad shape. And biliousness bothered me a great deal, wearing down my strength, making me feel sluggish. My condition gradually became worse. I was face to face with the grim truth... My health was slipping beyond my reach. And I almost gave up hope of ever again feeling well."

"Then Tanlac saved me from long years of suffering. I feel stronger, look better and younger than ever. I don't know that I have any nerves. I can eat everything without suffering. I am enjoying life more than I have in years. If any one doubts the true merits of Tanlac, I am the living answer to their question."

Good health, vital strength, freedom from pain and suffering are the gifts of Tanlac, made from roots, bark and herbs according to the famous Tanlac formula. The first bottle of Tanlac shows amazing results. Ask your druggist for Tanlac—today. More than 40 million bottles sold.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

SASSAFRAS WOOD

IN SOME parts of the country they simply say that it is bad luck to burn sassafras wood. In other sections they go more into details and say you must never burn this wood, for, if it cracks and sputters in the burning some one will die. The sassafras was formerly called saxafra and thus appears to have become mixed up in folk-lore with quite another genus, the genus saxifraga, the "stone-breaker" of the Romans. As the saxifrage commonly grows in rocky places forcing its way from the interstices of the stones, it was considered by the Romans as a cure for calculi, acting by sympathetic magic. Both in the sassafras and the saxifrage medicinal virtues have been ascribed from time immemorial and from time immemorial the saxifrage has been considered a mystic plant; its mystic qualities have been communicated along with its near-name to our common sassafras, formerly saxafra. When sassafras is mentioned in modern folk-lore it may mean either sassafras or saxifrage. One legend connected with the saxifrage is that when that rather hazy Hungarian king, Chalba, after a great battle with his brother, saw the field strewn with his wounded he was miraculously directed to "try sassafras" and, plucking great handfuls of the plant, cured 15,000 of his men by its application. To use as firewood a plant possessed of such mystic and therapeutic powers as the saxifrage was naturally accounted among the ancients as a crime; a destroying of a gift of the gods and therefore calculated to bring bad luck to the destroyer. The belief that the cracking and snapping of the wood as it burns indicates a death comes from a natural association of ideas. Every crack and snap calls attention to the fact that something is then being destroyed which might save a human life; something that for want of which some one will die. Thus the current superstition regarding sassafras inherited from saxifrage.

Belgian Women Active

Women are going into politics in Belgium. In the province of Liege the little town of Waret-Eveque presents a number of woman candidates for municipal office. There is a split in the ranks of the men, but it is said women vote en masse for their sex.

WHEN I WAS TWENTY-ONE

BY JOSEPH KAYE

At 21—Donn Barber, Famous Architect, Had Not Yet Started Learning His Trade.

AT THE age of twenty-one I was at Yale, from where I graduated a year later. I wanted to be an illustrator or painter but my father out-argued me on that point. That was in 1893, the year of the world's fair in Chicago. I had a friend out there who invited me to visit him and I went, intending to stay a week and then come home and look for a job.

"The whole scheme and the buildings of the fair fascinated me so much that I stayed a month, studying them and asking questions about them, and when I came back East I knew what I was going to be. I found a position with distinguished New York architects. But I found I was not even the beginnings of an architect, but an office boy.—Donn Barber."

Mr. Barber, one of this country's greatest architects, won nine medals at the Ecole des Beaux Arts in Paris, where he went to study upon the advice of his employers, and when he came back he began a distinguished career. Many of the famous buildings in the United States were erected by him, including the beautiful Connecticut State Library and Supreme Court. It was he also who built the demonstration residence for the Better Homes in America campaign, and which was erected in Washington, back of the Treasury building. This home was modeled after the pattern of the original John Howard Payne cottage, a very handsome structure, containing seven rooms and two baths, and costing only $15,000.
