UNIFORM TRAFFIC REGULATIONS BILL

Administration's Traffic Bill Will Follow Code Suggested by Hoover Highway Rules Committee.

The administration bill for uniform traffic regulation will follow the motor vehicle code adopted by the Hoover commission.

The bill, as drafted now, would give the department of highways the authority to designate particularly dangerous grade crossings on steam and interurban railways, require motor vehicles to come to a complete stop before crossing at least ten feet from the tracks and provide for proper marking of such crossings.

The bill also would provide that in violation for which summons are issued the motorist upon receipt of the summons from an officer shall sign an agreement to appear in court within five days. Failure to appear would make the offender liable to fine of $100 or fifteen days in jail, or both, in addition to the penalty provided for the offense committed.

The bill as now prepared does not include provisions for uniform traffic signals throughout the State, nor does it restrict the powers of municipalities which might continue to exercise their authority to enact special legislation applicable to particular communities.

Speed limit provisions of the bill include:

Fifteen miles an hour speed limit when approaching within fifty feet of a grade crossing when the driver does not have an unobstructed view of the crossing for a distance of at least 200 feet; fifteen miles an hour when approaching and traversing business sections where traffic is controlled by officers or signal; thirty-five miles an hour on the open road.

Local authorities might create thru highways in cities and increase the speed limit but through highways would have to be marked plainly. Penalties now prevailing for reckless driving and for infractions of "rules of the road" would remain as under the present law.

The bill also would prevent the placing of stickers, posters and signs on motor vehicles. A similar bill was defeated in the House last week. Drivers also would be prohibited from traveling down hill with gears in neutral.

Attorneys Who Died Suddenly.

The Phillipsburg Journal makes mention of a number of attorneys in the county who died suddenly within the past twenty-five years. In this way:

The sudden death of Judge Harry Keller, of Bellefonte, calls to mind how suddenly Calvin M. Bower, Judge John G. Love, Colonel Coburn, Calvin Meyer, Jack Dale, Judge Henry C. Quigley, Colonel Wilbur P. Reeder, William Gray, Ned Chambers, all leading lights of the Centre county bar, were called by death. Calvin M. Bower died while attending the German Reformed church, Judge Quigley died suddenly at home. The others were sick only a short time.

Spring Arbor Days.

Governor John S. Fisher has designated Friday, April 8, and Friday, April 22, as Spring Arbor Days. The Governor asks that these days be appropriately observed throughout the State by the planting of trees, the study of birds, and the consideration of other important conservation problems.

In his proclamation, Governor Fisher, who has been interested in forest tree planting since his boyhood days, says: "Not many years ago the forests of Pennsylvania were the glory of our Commonwealth and the most abundant source of our prosperity. Now practically all our great forests are gone. Only a few scattered remnants of original timber remain. The march of forest destruction has left us with vast areas of bare mountain soil. It is our duty to restore to production this idle forest land. To long have we consumed our forests without making provisions for their protection and renewal."

"There is no more practical way to celebrate Arbor Day than by planting trees. Tree planting should not be limited to the school grounds. It should be carried to our home grounds, our roadsides, our woodlots, and our forests."

DEFINING BOLSHEVISM.

"Please define Bolshevism," requests a newspaper reader. Allow us to pass the buck to William Allen White, of Kansas, who says:

"Bolshevism is one of the long procession of bugaboos used to scare super-patriots into connivances. It is deliberately used by munition makers, by militarists, by those having selfish interests in scaring the people out of their ordinary liberties."

"Bolshevism has worked 10 years and has not converted a single civilized land—not its near neighbor whose governments were unstable. Why should America shake in her shoes over this stupid scarecrow?"

Taber at State College.

L. J. Taber, master of the National Grange, will be the chief speaker and guest of honor at the annual banquet of the Penn State Grange at State College, March 19. The National Master has highly commended the efforts of the Pennsylvania Grange to erect a women's dormitory at State College as a memorial, and his visit at this time is considered highly important in the progress of the campaign by subordinate granges.

Gifford can't quit. He is now offering suggestions to Governor Fisher from his temporary Washington address on the election bills in the legislature and is bombarding Pennsylvania voters with a circular letter on the subject.

THIRD TERM ISSUE RAISED IN CENTRE COUNTY

Death of Judge Keller Complicates Situation on County Ticket on Republican Side.

The following dispatch sent out from Bellefonte to the Philadelphia Inquirer, appeared in its Sunday issue and is of interest to all who follow the political trend in the county:

"Squire E. R. Hancock, of Phillipsburg, who has announced as a candidate for prothonotary and clerk of the courts on the Republican ticket in opposition to Roy Wilkinson, is an old school teacher, and a Sunday school worker, being prominently associated with the Centre County Sabbath School Association. He has been an ardent prohibitionist all his life. These are factors on which his friends are counting strongly to help him in his candidacy."

Wilkinson will also face the issue of a third term seeker, he already having had two terms in this office. Newton Wilson, who was announced as a candidate for County Commissioner on the Republican ticket, has several factors behind him which should make him a strong candidate.

He is president of the Centre County Road Supervisors' Association and will probably have the backing of at least some of the members, and as they are from all over the county that will mean something.

In addition, he comes from a section of the county that has not been represented with a county office for three-quarters of a century, and says he feels that it is about time his locality got some recognition. He is a farmer by occupation and progressive in spirit.

The unexpected death of Judge Harry Keller complicates the political situation in this county. First of all, there will be an appointment of a Judge by Governor Fisher to serve until the first of next January.

The county has at least five well-known lawyers mentioned for the place, taking it for granted that the Governor will appoint a Republican. These are James C. Furst, a son of the late Judge Austin O. Furst; John G. Love, a son of the late Judge John G. Love, and former Judge Arthur C. Dale, all of Bellefonte; M. Ward Fleming and George K. Zeigler, of Phillipsburg.

Of this quintette, Mr. Furst, an ardent Fisher man during the campaign last fall is, in addition to that, a personal friend of Charles E. Dorworth, Secretary of Forests and Waters and a member of the executive board in Governor Fisher's Cabinet.

Secretary Dorworth will undoubtedly be consulted by the Governor in this matter. But as the appointment will hold good only until next January it will mean that Centre county will have as well as the naming of a full county judgeship nomination to make this year, try ticket.

Should Mr. Furst secure the appointment it would mean that he will be given the nomination for a full term. Mr. Fleming, of Phillipsburg, has had judicial aspirations for some years, and it is more than likely that he will be early in the field as a candidate. It is also probable that ex-Judge Dale would again try his luck.

The death of Judge Keller also affects the candidacy of some of the men who have already announced for county offices.

There are several who are counting strongly on the judge's influence, not only to carry them to victory, but in keeping other Republicans from entering the race for the same office.

Now that he has passed away the situation has been changed considerably and there is not telling at this early day what the result will be.

MONEY FOR GOOD ROADS.

The Philadelphia Record editorially refers to bonding for road purposes in this way:

"The $100,000,000 raised by bond issues and expended by the State upon the construction of good roads during the past ten years, supplemented as it has been by Federal aid and county appropriations, has done so much toward pulling Pennsylvania out of the mud and putting it on an equality with other Commonwealths, so far as fine highways are concerned, that it is not surprising that the Legislature favors another bond issue of $50,000,000. This can only be raised by a constitutional amendment which will be submitted to a vote of the people in 1928."

Thanks to the excellent results obtained by the State Highway Department in its road work, which is everywhere manifest, there is little likelihood that there will be any serious opposition to the new bond issue, but it is very obvious that his sort of thing cannot be continued indefinitely. Already the fixed charges involved in the issuance of $100,000,000 in bonds are becoming an important item of expense, and they will be largely increased by the proposed new flotation.

Before long it would seem to be the wisest policy to stop borrowing money and to depend on motorists' license fees and the gasoline tax for the money necessary for the building and maintenance of good roads. There is such a thing as spending too much money on highway improvement, and Pennsylvania would seem to be approaching that point.

To Wed March 19th.

Invitations have been issued by Mrs. Albert Walter Thompson, of Lewisburg, for the marriage of her daughter, Alberta Margaret, to Wyndham Kenneth Entor. The ceremony will take place in the Presbyterian church, Lewisburg, at 6:30 o'clock.

FOUR BANK BANDITS ELECTROCUTED MONDAY

Slayers Show No Emotion As They Are Led to Chair—Refuse to Make Statement in Final Hours.

The four men, known as the Olney bandits, condemned for killing a policeman in an attempted holdup in Philadelphia, paid the penalty with their lives in the electric chair in the Western State Penitentiary, at Rockview, on Monday morning.

They were Joseph Curry, 29 years; Harry Bentley, 23; William Juliano, 27, and Frank Doris, 27, all of Philadelphia.

The men went to their death in the order named. None of them broke down and the quadruple execution passed off like other routine in the penitentiary.

As Curry left his cell at exactly 7 o'clock, he called "good-bye" to the other three condemned men, all of whom responded. It took but one application of the electric current to kill Curry. It was turned on at 7:02 and he was pronounced dead at 7:07 by Dr. C. J. Newcomb.

Bentley was led to the chair at 7:08, one contact was applied at 7:10 and he was pronounced dead by Dr. John Priestess at 7:14.

It required two contacts of the current to take Juliano's life. He was taken to the death chair at 7:17. The current was switched on at 7:19 and he was declared dead at 7:24 by Dr. Newcomb.

The last man, Doris, left his cell at 7:26, the current was turned on at 7:27 and he was pronounced dead at 7:32 by Dr. Priestess.

All four men were attended in their last moments by Father O'Hanlon of State College. The men were reported by the guards to have slept fairly well during the night, and ate a good breakfast after which Father O'Hanlon administered the last rites.

None of the men made any statement.

All the bodies were claimed by relatives and were sent to Philadelphia during the day.

The four men were brought from Philadelphia to the death house Wednesday of last week. Their life in the grim building of steel and concrete can be described as having been prosaic and uneventful. They slept well at night for men who have been in forced confinement for 10 months, and ate with apparent relish the meals of regular prison fare served to them. The only reading matter permitted the men was the Bible, and none of them devoted much time to it.

Three of the men, Juliano, Curry and Doris, signed up for the attendance of a priest during their last day and to accompany them to the chair. Bentley avowed that he did not want the services of a Protestant minister at any time.

It was the second time in the history of the death house that four men were electrocuted the same day. The other time was in June, 1921, when four men were sent to the chair. They were Milton Henderson, Robert T. Rammel and William Strain. Negroes, and Steve Schlop, white, all convicted of the murder of Stimmis Florian in an attempted burglary at his home in that city on September 26, 1920.

Their electrocution took place a few days less than nine months from the date of the commission of the crime. The last effort to save the lives of the four bandits was based on a hope that later evidence might be discovered and also that relatives of the condemned men desired to base a plea on alleged conversations of the jurors who convicted the quartet. Governor Fisher refused an appeal for a reprieve, made by C. Stuart Patterson, counsel for the condemned men, after consulting with the members of the State Pardon Board which last month refused to commute the death sentence of the bandits.

SERIES OF HIGHWAY BILLS INTRODUCED IN ASSEMBLY

Authority for Highway Forming Part of State Highway Route One of Provisions—State Rewards for Blatant Roads Also Asked.

A series of bills amending the laws relating to highways were introduced in the House by Representative Hess, Lancaster, who said they had the support of the administration. One of the measures would empower the secretary of highways to designate by letter any highway in the State in any manner he believes will best accommodate and inform the traveling public.

Another would permit the secretary of highways to improve any township road in any designated State highway route but would not obligate the department of highways to maintain or construct the township road.

One would permit payment of township rewards for improvements or roads treated with a bituminous surface.

The secretary of highways would be authorized to build connecting roads not over one-half mile in length to connect two State highways when such connecting roads would improve traffic conditions under one of a series of highway measures introduced in the Senate by Senator Buckman, Bucks.

Provisions of the other bills affecting the highway department would include:

A bill prohibiting any tags other than license tags to be attached to or in the vicinity of the license tags, and further prohibiting the placing of posters or tags on the windshield and of a motor vehicle was defeated by a vote of 33 to 120 by the House last week. The measure was sponsored by Representative Strayer, Westmoreland.

JUDGE KELLER LAID TO REST SATURDAY

Many Political and Personal Friends Gather to Do Last Honor—Bar Association Addressed by Judges and Attorneys.

The body of Judge Harry Keller was laid in its last resting place on Saturday morning, in the Union cemetery, Bellefonte.

The funeral since the death of Judge Henry C. Quigley, and was attended by many people from all parts of the county and delegations of attorneys from neighboring counties.

At 9:30 o'clock a meeting of the Centre county bar was held in the court house, where Judge Keller was presiding in court when stricken. John Blanchard, one of the oldest members of the bar, presided, and the principal speaker was Federal Judge Albert W. Johnson, of Lewisburg. Other tributes were paid by Judge Thomas W. Bailey of Huntingdon; Judge A. R. Chase of Clearfield; Harry T. Hall, representing the Clinton County Bar Association, and Col. H. S. Taylor, of Bellefonte, representing the local bar.

Funeral services were held at the home of Judge Keller's brother-in-law, former Judge Ellis L. Orvis. They were in charge of Judge Keller's pastor, Rev. Robert Thena, assisted by Rev. Dr. Ambrose M. Schmidt, of Greenville, Pa. Honorary pall bearers were members of the bar and close personal friends of Judge Keller.

The death occurred at noon Wednesday of last week. The news of his illness was about to be posted when a second informant gave the fact of the death, which occurred at 12:15 P. M.

Judge Keller became ill while holding court, and after a brief recess reconvened court at 11:00 o'clock, but almost immediately adjourned the session to 1:30 o'clock P. M. He walked out of the court room and was taken by former sheriff Yarnell to the office of Dr. Rogers, and on reaching there collapsed as he was about to be conveyed from the auto in which he had been conveyed. From there he was taken to the Centre County Hospital, and had rallied sufficiently to be able to walk from the car to the elevator in the institution. About an hour later he expired. Mrs. Keller having been at his side during the last hour of his life. Death was due to angina pectoris.

Judge Harry Keller was born in Washington, D. C., in the year 1856, the son of Daniel S. and Martha Huestis Keller. His early boyhood was spent in the nation's capital where his father, a veteran of the Civil War, was serving as a division chief in the Census Bureau. His father moved to Bellefonte in 1873.

After teaching school in the rural districts for one year Mr. Keller began the study of law under his father's tutelage. This was partially interrupted from 1887 to 1890 by a term as clerk in the Adjutant General's office at Harrisburg. On his return he was admitted to the Bar in 1891 and immediately began to practice with his father. Since the latter's death in 1894, from tuberculosis resulting from a wound received at Chancellorsville during the Civil War, Mr. Keller had continued alone, while making a specialty of practice in the Orphans' Court. He had also a large general practice.

In 1891 he was married to Miss Anna Orvis, daughter of Judge John H. Orvis, and a sister of Judge Ellis L. Orvis. Five children were born to them: John Orvis, Professor of Industrial Engineering at Penna. State College; Martha E., who died in infancy; Henry Jr., head of Department of Agricultural Economics at Rutgers College, N. J.; Ellis Orvis, vocational instructor, located at Erie, who was former instructor of history and social science at the Bellefonte High school, and William H., a senior in the pre-legal course at Penn State College. The three older boys all served in the late war, the second (Henry Jr.) receiving a shrapnel wound in the right leg during the fighting along the Vesle river.

Politically Mr. Keller had always been a steadfast Republican, and served several times as County Chairman of the party. Following the death of Judge Quigley in November, 1924, many prominent citizens of the county urged Gov. Pinchot to appoint him to fill the unexpired term, which the Governor refused to do. Then it was that Harry Keller announced his candidacy for he Republican nomination for Judge of the Courts of Centre county, and was elected in 1925, assuming the duties of the office in January, 1926.

Heads Chamber of Commerce.

Guy W. Jacobs, a former Centre Hall boy, now manager of the Steubenville (Ohio) Ice Company, was a short time ago elected to the presidency of the Chamber of Commerce of Steubenville. Mr. Jacobs is a popular young man in that bustling Ohio city, and the Reporter congratulates him on the new honors conferred upon him.

One Grouse Costs $75.00.

Fines totaling $75.00 were collected last week by Game Protector Miles Reeder, for the illegal killing of a single grouse. The grouse was killed in the vicinity of Woodward by a party of three men who later had the bird cooked and served for dinner. A Burton Snyder, of Conyngham, near Berwick, was fined $20 for not wearing his hunting license while hunting deer, and $25 for consuming illegally taken grouse. Harry Farnsworth, of Northumberland, and William Orndorf, of Woodward, were each fined $25 on the latter charge.

W. Neil Baker has been appointed postmaster at Lewisburg.

IMPORTANT TO FARMERS.

Who Move Herds Into Quarantined Tuberculin Tested Townships.

The following from the Bureau of Animal Industry will be of great importance to some farmers obliged to change locations in April:

If tenant or other farmers who are obliged to move their herds into quarantined tuberculin tested townships will file with the Bureau of Animal Industry at Harrisburg, Pa., an area application blank (Form AI-19) and will agree to pay the local accredited practicing veterinarian for applying the initial test, also retest of infected herds, the Bureau will promptly authorize the tuberculin testing of such tenant owned herds and will pay indemnity for any cattle that may react.

It must be distinctly understood: First—That herds must be tuberculin tested before being moved into the quarantined tested townships.

Second—That in order for the tuberculin test to be official the owner to receive State and Federal indemnity the tuberculin test must have been authorized in writing by the Bureau.

Third—That each tenant farmer must file an area application blank (Form AI-19) with the Bureau of Animal Industry at Harrisburg, before the tuberculin test will be authorized by the Bureau.

Fourth—That each owner (tenant farmer) must agree to pay the local accredited practicing veterinarian for the tuberculin test and retest for infected herds.

Area application blanks may be procured from the Bureau of Animal Industry at Harrisburg, Pa., the Bureau District agent in charge, any local accredited practicing veterinarian or the County Agent.

Persons who move untested cattle into tuberculin tested quarantined areas will be vigorously prosecuted by the Bureau for violation of the State Quarantine Law.

T. E. MUNCE,
Director Bureau of Animal Industry.

Report on Siren.

The members of the local fire company held a regular meeting in the council room, Thursday evening of last week. The principal business was a report of a committee instructed some time ago to confer with the Bell Telephone company to ascertain whether arrangements could be made to operate a siren from the telephone exchange, provided one were located conveniently by the borough. The report was not satisfactory from the standpoint of accomplishment. The question will be taken up further with the Bell company.

Grandly Home Sold for $3750.

The T. M. Gramley home, at Spring Mills, was sold recently at public sale to Harry Corman, for $3750. Mr. Corman is a farmer, living on the Andrew Corman farm near Farmers Mills and has not made known what disposition he will make of the place, which is a very desirable one.

Entertained Class-Mates.

Jean Jodon, a member of the sophomore class of the local High school, entertained her classmates and some friends at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. V. Jodon, near town, last Friday night. Refreshments served consisted of sandwiches, pickles, candy, cake and ice cream. The following were present: Sarah Runkle, Dorothy Emerick, Gladys Heckman, Myla Spyer, Bertha Sharer, Kathryn Goodhart, Cella Delaney, Dorothy Garbrick, Ethel McClenahan, Mary Garver, Marion Corman, Margaret McClenahan, Eugene Colyer, Russell Colyer, William McCormick, Paul Palmer, Emory Floray, Bruce Knarr, Elwood Smith, Robert McClenahan, Bud Colborn, Glenn Corman, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Confer and daughter Myra, Emma Jodon, Geraldine Jodon, Isabel Jodon, Edgar Harter.

Comet Due in June.

Rare as are days in June, a night in June this year will be rarer, for about midnight, on or about June 26, mortal eye will see unaided what it never saw before except through telescopes, the Winnecke or Pons-Winnecke comet.

The comet at present can be discerned only through the most powerful instruments of astronomers, according to Prof. George Van Biesbroeck, of Yerkes' observatory of the University of Chicago.

More Licensed to Drive.

The Bureau of Motor Vehicles at Harrisburg announced that up to March 1 it had issued 1,267,098 operators' licenses for 1927, an increase of 188, 223 from the total which were issued up to the same date in 1926.

The Grange Encampment and Fair Association will hold a committee meeting in Centre Hall this (Thursday) evening, when matters pertaining to the 1927 fair will be taken up.

A music class under the instruction of Mrs. Alberta Krader, of Bellefonte, opened in Centre Hall Monday evening with about forty pupils, the majority being of mature years. Meetings are being held in the High school building.

Officer James J. Noland, representing the Phillipsburg headquarters of the Salvation Army, was in town Monday gathering funds for the organization. His credentials bore the signature of Bruns Hall, officer in charge.
