DARROW IN FAVOR OF HOSPITALS TO TREAT CRIMINALS

Chicago Lawyer, in Address at New York, Declares Law-Breaker Is Not Necessarily Wicked—Jury Should Decide Guilt or Innocence Without Sentence.

The criminal is not necessarily wicked in the opinion of Clarence Darrow, Chicago criminal lawyer, who believes hospitals should supplant prisons. After defining a criminal as one who has violated a law, Mr. Darrow in a lecture at the West Side Unitarian church, New York, declared "the mere fact that a legislature has seen fit to forbid a thing does not make it evil."

"Crime," he said, "is caused by poverty and by hate," and asserted if one-tenth of the money and effort now spent on punishment were devoted to a sincere effort to remove its cause, crime would practically be eradicated. "If I had my way, a jury would determine nothing except the guilt or innocence of the prisoner and there would be no sentence. The man who has been convicted would be isolated in a hospital under the close supervision of a board of wise, tolerant, humane men and women who would keep him isolated until he is cured."
