Making Penna. Unsafe for Corn Borer.

America's $10,000,000 national caterpillar, the European corn borer, is finding western Pennsylvania an unsafe place to live and rear its progeny. Farmers in the clean-up area have declared a relentless war on the foreign invader. Every fair day is being used advantageously in plowing under or burning all corn stalks, stubble, cobs and trash. State College Agricultural extension workers throughout the area are very optimistic about the results. They have carried on an extensive educational campaign which has reached every corn grower in the eight counties. The European corn borer knows he is in a fight.

Brockerhoff Timber Sold.

The forty or more acres of timberland on the Brockerhoff farm, south of Old Fort, was sold by Dr. Brockerhoff, representing the owners, to Joseph Kelley & Sons, Reedsville. The firm has a mill at the Old Fort landing, near Centre Hall Station, and will manufacture the timber into merchantable lumber at that point. Morris Kelley is manager. Since beginning operations in this section the firm has cleaned up tracts on the Dr. A. G. Lieb, Benner, Homan and Gfrerer farms.

Broyles, State College, the county president of the organization, will be present and speak. Some of the junior members will offer entertainment, and at the close light refreshments will be served.

Wind and Lightning Damage.

The storm accompanied by rain and lightning on Thursday did some damage in various parts of the valley. The home of Charles Bierly, at Smullton, where Mrs. Bierly lay seriously ill at the time, was struck by lightning, the electricity following the chimney to the floor, where it split the linoleum for a considerable distance. A nurse had just left the kitchen a few minutes before the crash.

Wind did considerable damage to the roof on the Clayton Eiters flouring mill at Oak Hall Station. The silo at the barn on the Colyer farm east of town gave way to the wind pressure and collapsed. Ploughed fields were washed in many sections by the heavy fall of rain.

MERGER'S FOES NOT RESPONSIVE TO OLIVE BRANCH

United Evangelical Group Shows No Enthusiasm for Peace Proposal—Albright College Decision Calls Forth Statement.

An irreconcilable attitude toward the Evangelical church is apparent in the anti-merger faction of the former United Evangelical church.

The recent decision of the supreme court upholding the legality of the merger of the United Evangelical church and the Evangelical Association into the Evangelical Church was followed by renewal of overtures on the part of the Evangelicals, but the United Evangelical group, which is confined to several counties in the southeastern part of the State, has indicated no desire to respond to peace proposals.

An official statement issued Sunday by leaders of the anti-mergerites follows:

"It is exactly thirty-five years ago that the Evangelical people of Pennsylvania were compelled to give up Schuylkill Seminary at Frederickburg, Lebanon county. Losing that institution by legal proceedings, we established beautiful Albright College at Myerstown, also in Lebanon county. Now we are compelled by court decision to give up Albright College to the same persons who took Schuylkill Seminary from us.

"Schuylkill Seminary was abandoned by our opponents, after taking it from us, and converted into a factory. The same people now also propose to abandon Albright College.

"Also, thirty-five years ago, all of our churches in Pennsylvania were taken from us by the same faction. We built new and better churches and gave them local, congregational control. We are advised these churches cannot be taken away from the congregations.

"The colleges and churches our opponents seized years ago proved a source of weakness instead of power to them and past history will repeat itself. How can a church prosper, occupying property taken from the rightful owners on legal technicalities? We have received peace proposals but these are largely attempts to get control of our property by the same methods used in accomplishing the merger. Our people are standing firm as a rock."

WRECKING OF YACHT SHOT AT NIGHT FOR SENSATION SEEKERS

Sensational Scene in Coming Biheleu Feature Was Exciting to Actors.

The sensation seekers found their big sensation during the making of the Universal-Jewel "The Sensation Seekers." Lois Weber's thrilling story which has its local premier at the Biheleu theatre, on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday of next week.

The three leading characters, Billie Dove, Huntley Gordon and Raymond Bloomer, underwent all the thrills and perils of being lost at sea, the gripping final sequence of the picture in which a beautiful private yacht was sunk without a trace.

Miss Weber, noted as a daring director, threw all motion picture precedent aside and sank the yacht at night by artificial light.

Besides the beautiful yacht which was sunk, Miss Weber used a tug boat from which the wreck was filmed.

The yacht was run on a rock five miles from shore off San Pedro harbor while an immense generator and huge sun arc are played on the sinking boat while Billie Dove and Huntley Gordon leaped off to swim to safety. Had the lights failed the ship would have sunk in vain for it would have been impossible to film the wreck in the dark.

An unusually spectacular sequence for the climax was filmed which added the final touch to a perfect picture.

In the supporting cast are Peggy Montgomery, Phillips Smalley, Edith Yorke, Clarence Thompson and Nora Cecil.
