

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

A large number of trees of various kinds were planted on Grange Park within the past few weeks.

Forrest Wingert, assistant track foreman to Levi Hartley, at Centre Hall, was laid off duty on Saturday.

The Penns Valley Ministerium will meet on Monday, May 2d, at 1:30 P. M., at the Evangelical parsonage at Spring Mills.

House roofs and protected places were covered with snow on Monday morning. The air during Sunday and that night was decidedly chilly.

W. S. Williams, under contract to erect a dwelling house on West Church street for Mr. MacMorron, began excavating for the foundation a few days ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Zettle, of near Milroy, were in town on Sunday. They are both looking fine and apparently enjoying life. They were former residents here.

John H. Detwiler had his lunch counter and confectionery stand on Nittany Mountain top open on Sunday. Hot coffee was the popular beverage sought by the auto traveler.

Earl Lutz and family ask the Reporter to extend thanks to their friends and neighbors for kindnesses extended at the time of the death and burial of the former's father, Aaron Lutz.

Mrs. Margaret Strohm, whose illness was previously mentioned in these columns, has recovered to a very large extent. Her son, Rufus Strohm, and his wife, arrived here from Scranton the beginning of the week.

William J. Day and a friend, Mr. Buddlow, of Brooklyf, N. Y., were entertained at the A. S. Allen home on Wednesday evening. The trip was made by auto, and is the first time the young men were in this section.

Mrs. Harold O. Alexander, of Wencnah, New Jersey, has been at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Huyett, for the past week.

A Star-6, self-dump, one and one-half ton truck was purchased by John H. Durst from James Fetterolf, the local Star dealer and distributor.

R. P. Campbell, one of the Penna Cave preppers, asks the Reporter to state that the delayed dynamite explosion that resulted in the death of Lloyd Grubb, was not in the cave but in a passageway then under construction from the cave proper to an artificial lake below the cavern.

Mr. and Mrs. Clement Stewart, of New Bloomfield, were guests over Sunday of Mrs. Lucy Henney, an aunt of the young man, in Centre Hall. Mr. Stewart holds the clerkship in the Department of Labor, at Harrisburg, made vacant by the death of Clement Deisinger, an uncle, late of Centre Hall.

The "White House" station, at Grange Park, mention of the intended razing of which by the P. E. R. company was made in a recent issue of the Reporter, has been sold to Forrest E. Wingert, a local trackman under Levi Hartley. The material will be used by him in the construction of a dwelling house at State College.

Seventy inmates at Rockview Penitentiary on Tuesday night received special certificates from the engineering extension department of the Penna. State College at exercises marking the close of the night school educational classes conducted for them by the college. Most of the seven hundred prisoners attended the exercises. The principal address was given by Mrs. E. Grace McCauley, secretary of the State Department of Welfare. Certificates were presented by Prof. J. G. Keller, head of the extension department.

Persons from out of town who attended the funeral of Aaron Lutz were Mrs. James Fish, Miss Geraldine Fish, Mrs. Charles Woods, Mrs. George Wagner, Mr. and Mrs. John Lutz, Lewis-town; Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Stover, Elvin Stover, Coleville; John Stover, Houseville; Mr. and Mrs. John Tate, Mrs. Harry Hoy and son, Pleasant Gap; Mr. and Mrs. John Potter and son, Hubbersburg; Mr. and Mrs. Clark Korman and family, Mrs. Mary Dunkle, Samuel Burris and daughter, Mrs. Louis Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Lutz and Nevin Lutz, Zion; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sunday and daughters, Milroy.

With a view of looking up the abode of an early settler near Linden Hall, William Irvin King, 630 Frick building, Pittsburgh, made a trip to Centre Hall where he called on the Reporter and from here went on to Boalsburg. William King was the grandfather of the Pittsburgh Mr. King, and history tells us that he lived one and one-half miles south-east of Linden Hall. He was located there in 1811, and later helped to construct Old Fort hotel. The probability is that the elder Mr. King established the King tannery, now obliterated except as to faint marks of the lines of the foundation walls, located on the McFarlane farm now owned by Col. Theodore D. Boal, near Boalsburg. The location would correspond to that given in Linn's History of the holdings of Mr. King.

On his way from near Detona, Florida, to his home at Ann Arbor, Mich., Howard Harkins and wife stopped for a day in Centre Hall. Mr. Harkins was a boy here, a son of William Harkins. More than forty-five years ago he left here, locating in Clearfield, and then went westward, finally locating at Ann Arbor, his present home, although he lives much of the time during the summer months on a lake farther north, and during the winter goes to Florida where he built a summer home on an island along the east coast. Since leaving here, Mr. Harkins has followed various pursuits, farming on a rather large scale being among them. After locating at Ann Arbor he has been erecting dwellings and business places, which find a ready sale. He was accompanied by his niece and her son, Ralph Struble, who are living at Bellwood. Mr. Struble is railway mail clerk between Altoona and Punxsutawney.

Special Court.

At a special term of court on Friday morning, Judge Furst sentenced Annie Sokolowsky, of the Phillipsburg region, to one year in jail and $100 fine. She entered a plea of guilty to a charge of manufacturing liquor. The court characterized her as a female nuisance and regretted he could not eliminate her bad example from the county.

The special session of court held Tuesday, brought sentence to Grant Miller, an escaped convict, who was captured west of Centre Hall, across Nittany Mountain from the Rockwell pen. His companion, John Harrison Knapp, made a dash for underbrush and got away. He has not been heard of since.

Alexander Rowell, of Phillipsburg, who some time ago in a drunken brawl, shot the fingers off a companion, was given a three and one-half years penitentiary sentence. Both men were taken to the Pittsburgh pen on Tuesday.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Harry E. Fye, employed at the Sheffield Farms milk plant, has been ill for about a week.

Harrison Grove, who had been in Florida for several months, returned to his home near Centre Hall last week.

FARM CALENDAR.

Timely Reminders from The Pennsylvania State College.

Prepare for Plant Enemies—Have you provided the proper equipment and materials needed for insect and disease control? Do not wait until the pests begin their destructive work to obtain the fighting apparatus.

Cultivate the Garden—Give the garden shallow cultivation often enough to keep the weeds down and the soil loose.

Litter for Poultry House—Straw is a material which is very satisfactory for litter in the poultry house. It must not be musty or moldy. When used in the brooder house, it should always be cut in short lengths, about two inches long. Oat, rye, or wheat straw may be used.

Forest Is Benefactor—This week, April 24 to 30, is American Forest Week. We pay tribute to the trees which help to make our homes, give fuel to keep us warm, contribute the paper for our magazines, books and newspapers, and provide many other things necessary in our daily lives. From babyhood to old age we all need timber and wood.

Prevent Forest Fires—Fire is the great enemy of the forest. It injures or destroys timber, kills the young trees, burns plant food in the forest floor, causes the soil to wash, dries up the streams, runs out the game, and ruins the forest camping places.

"THE SENSATION SEEKERS"

with Billie Dove, Huntly Gordon and all-star cast. From the story "Egypt" by Ernest Pascal.

An epic of the wise youth of today! A mad carnival of smashed commandments and startling frankness! Powerful drama! Smart society! Sensational scenes! Gripping Intrigue! Thrilling suspense! Tense action! Wonderful heart appeal! In fact everything a picture could have; it's the greatest super production this year.

SEE this thrilling story of youth, borne along on the never ending tide of excitement and sensations! Wild, wise and attractive youth with an eternal fund of nervous energy. Parties and chances. A gay laugh, a cynical nod for the conventions and romances of the past. Where ends this mad parade? Remember, this is the most picture produced this year, and due to the great cost of same, we are forced to raise our prices to 15 and 35c.

IN ADDITION—First Run International News (See the great damage wrought by the Mississippi); Aesop's Fables, Special Comedy and Special Music Week Program. A REAL TREAT. DON'T MISS IT.

THE SOUL OF OUR HOSPITAL.

A vacant house is little more than a pile of cold stone—it takes people to make it a home. Likewise, a hospital depends upon its personnel to make it a live and effective institution. In proportion to the enthusiastic, forceful service of the people who man and operate an institution of this character its vital influence and power will be felt in the community. Those who visit the Centre County Hospital on Florence Nightengale Day, will be surprised and pleased with the dexterous activity and cheerful atmosphere of philanthropic service displayed in every department. It is a real pleasure to see the eighteen attractive young ladies, arrayed in neat uniform of white and blue, gliding noiselessly here and there, throughout the various halls and wards, intent on their errands of mercy. These young ladies are under the direction of Miss A. E. Eckert, Superintendent, and Miss Helen Neese, Night Superintendent of Nurses. Whether you visit the hospital in the day time or in the wee hours of the night you will find the same rhythmic and silent activity together with careful and meticulous attention necessary to render it an efficient, life-saving institution. It operates twenty-four every day with clockwork precision, and Miss Eckert's careful and systematic organization is very much in evidence everywhere.

It must be remembered, also, that these young ladies are students in the school of nursing and are pursuing a course of scientific and technical study under the direction of Miss V. Jane Hartman, Instructress of Nurses. They must find time somewhere in the course of their busy hours to delve into the intricacies of anatomy, materia medica, bacteriology, therapeutics, gynecology, obstetrics, anaesthesia, surgery and other branches of medicine contiguous to the art of practical nursing, so that when they have finished their course they are prepared to take their places in the most up-to-date hospitals in the land, or to render the most efficient service to the public in private nursing. Miss Hartman is regarded as one of the best instructors of nurses in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. She has a long list of applicants who are anxious to take her course of training and is extremely rigid in her selection of candidates as to personal qualifications. In appearance, health, mentality, education and adaptation to the profession of nursing. This largely accounts for the high grade quality of nursing at the Centre County Hospital. Miss Hartman has the assistance in this splendid work of Miss Helen E. Neese, Night Superintendent; Miss Margaret Knapp, Private Floor Superintendent, and every person serving the institution, all of whom have the single goal to make the Centre County Hospital as nearly perfect as possible. Their patience and efficiency constantly attest this fact.

One of the most important departments which has to do with the life-saving qualities of the hospital, also, is that of dietetics, which is headed by Miss Helen E. MacLean. The physicians depend largely upon the character and quality of food served in the dietary department for the improvement of their patients. Their surgery and medicine may arrest the disease, but healthful metabolism and convalescence depend upon their proper nourishment. This art has become definitely scientific in its application during recent years. A properly balanced ration, studiously adapted to the disease and condition of the body has been found to be the most essential part of medical treatment. Miss MacLean takes a personal interest in each patient, providing a suitable dietary, carefully observing the case for improvement in health, making out all menus and supervising the preparation and serving of foods, insisting that they be served in a dainty and attractive manner, with the result that the patients are almost unanimous in their praise of the dietary.

There are several other important members of this organization who contribute incalculably to the success of the hospital. There is the pathologist and X-ray technician whose valuable services have been described in these columns and which is so essential in the diagnosis of disease. There are the faithful physicians of the Medical Staff, some of whom are on hand practically all of the time, passing in and out among the various wards, with a word of medical wisdom here and the searching scrutiny of a clinician chart there, making sure that every patient is responding properly to the treatment he has prescribed, and that every department is operating as efficiently as possible.

Not least among this company of busy people is W. H. Brown, business manager, who not only attends to the business end of the hospital, but as chief executive is very much in evidence everywhere, co-ordinating the various departments and rendering the entire organization a smooth-running piece of machinery. It is surprising how much real effectual service is performed by this hustling business manager in the mere 12 to 15 hours he spends daily in the hospital. There is the buying to be done, the equipment to look after, repairs to be made, the accounts to be attended to, reports galore to be compiled, bills to collect, letters to be written, patients to receive and discharge, errands to run, visitors to conduct through the hospital, and, if he has a few minutes to spare, there are multitudinous office details which would ordinarily consume the entire time of an executive. The manager makes it his business to get acquainted with every patient and is deeply interested in their welfare. He visits their bedside and has many a confidential talk with them when it becomes necessary to straighten out a tangle which seems to be militant to their recovery. He does this not by cajolery and flattery but by taking a real helpful interest in their personal affairs whenever they show a disposition to confide in him. Their peace and contentment of mind has much to do with their recovery. Many interesting cases of this kind are fresh in the memory of the Board and Medical Staff in which some nervous and irritable patients were pacified and later became enthusiastic admirers of the methods and service of the hospital.

ty will be conducted by the Ladies' Auxiliary and will begin on Florence Nightengale Day, May 12th.

Over 400,000 Property Owners Have Saved Their Roofs With

SAVEALL LIQUID-ASBESTOS ROOFING.

There is no greater proof that Save-All Roofing will do all we claim for it than the reports received from property owners who have used it and speak from actual experience.

This one letter is typical of hundreds we have received from all parts of the country:

HAZELTON, PA.

The Franklin Paint Company, resealed the one barrel of SAVE-ALL ROOFING cement together with the PLASKITITE CEMENT and brush and have applied it to the rubberoid roof on my garage. It certainly has had a good tryout with several rains we have had during the past few weeks. I wish to say that it did the trick in all respects and have no leaks since it was applied. I feel that the money spent for the SAVEALL has saved me the price of a new roof. You may use my name as reference at any time. I know it has given me a 100 per cent job of satisfaction.—J. F. McCullough.

4 Months Free Trial

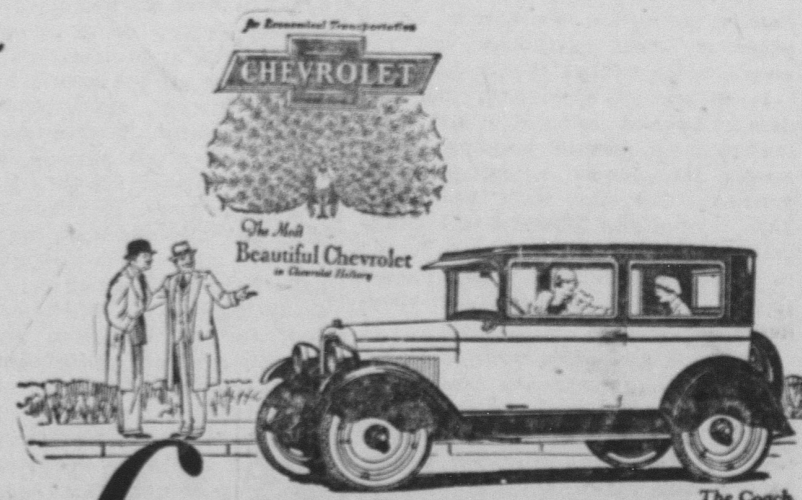

You take no risk when you order SAVE-ALL. It is sold on the most liberal "4 Months Free Trial Terms" ever offered.
