Fisher, Misses Verma Rowe and Fay Bradford, Louise Smith, Algie Emery, and Catharine Goodhart. Millheim was represented by W. S. Gramley, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Stover and Mrs. Griesing.

Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Gutelius, of East Orange, New Jersey, were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. J. Shannon Boozer, at Sunset Club house. Seven Mountains, for a few days last week. Mr. Gutelius is a member of a firm engaged in the sale of music. Mrs. Gutelius is a daughter of Dr. Fred Gutelius, of Millheim, where she and her husband visited before coming to Centre Hall.

Harry Cooper, of Westmont, Johnstown, put in a few days last week along streams in Seven Mountains, stopping the while with Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Fye, near Colyer, as he has done on frequent previous occasions. Mr. Cooper is an angler of some note and when work at the great roller mill where he is employed becomes slack, he entertains himself along brook trout streams.

J. Hobart Barger, of Penns Cave Station, had a herd of eight or ten cattle tested for t. b. Six of the animals reacted, and were sold to a Lock Haven party, who conveyed them to that place where they were slaughtered in the presence of Mr. Barger and Fred Slack, who also accompanied the stock to the slaughtering pen. From six to twelve cents was paid for the animals, depending on their condition. Veterinary surgeon Nissley tested for t. b.

Mrs. Thomas L. Moore is attending the graduating exercises at Dickinson College, Carlisle, this week, her son, Rev. J. Frederic Moore, being one of the graduates. From there she will go to Shippensburg and attend the June commencement exercises at the State Normal where her daughter, Miss Miriam, is a student. Following this, Mrs. Moore and her daughter will go to Lewisberry, York county, and assist Mrs. Moore's son in establishing himself in the parsonage on his first ministerial field.

Mrs. Myra Kerr arrived in Centre Hall on Friday and will make her "home" for a month with Mrs. Margaret Strohm. She came here from Chicago with her daughter, Mrs. (Rev.) Elmer Williams, who went on to Carlisle to attend the twenty-fifth annual reunion of the class in which she graduated from Dickinson College. She will spend some time here after the activities of her alma mater incident to the closing of the school year are over.

Mrs. Kerr related that she had a letter from her daughter-in-law, Mrs. William B. Kerr, Ogden, Utah, stating that their section was having unseasonable weather along with all other sections of the country and that there had been a snowfall of three inches.

The former is being sent to the gathering as a delegate from the Woman's Government Association and the latter as a delegate from the college. The convention will have about six hundred delegates, made up almost exclusively of college students.

Many of the Reporter readers will recall to mind mention in these columns about two years ago of Fred Brown picking up a little fawn on Tussey Mountain while fighting forest fire and later carried it to his farm home near the base of the mountain. Like some little fawns do, it developed into a sleek doe, and although it has long had its freedom, it hung around the Brown home where it was petted by the children. The little doe of times appeared for a week or more, but again and again returned. Last fall it went to the mountains and mingled with its kind, but again returned. During the winter months it stayed pretty close to its adopted home, and when spring came it again went out into the wilds of Old Tussey. One day, not so long ago, the little doe came back, but not alone—it came back the mother of the cutest little buck fawn that ever shook its tail.

John Detwiler made to good use a portion of his farm shaded by a narrow strip of sturdy oaks bordering the farm on the north. A few years ago the strip was set to Norway spruce, larch and pine—about fifteen hundred were needed to fill up the place. In addition to this many of the same varieties of trees were set among the oaks. All the young trees are doing fine, many having made remarkable growth.

Rev. W. E. Smith, pastor of the Evangelical church, on Wednesday morning, went to Smithburg, Maryland, to remain until Saturday. Smithburg is the home of his youth. He was accompanied as far as Harrisburg by his second daughter, Miss Laura, who went on to Goodyear, Cumberland county, where she will remain for the summer with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Deik.
