

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Last week Mr. and Mrs. George O. Benner were among friends in the Pittsburgh district.

Roland Zettle and assistants are doing the carpenter repair work on the W. A. Homan residence.

Miss Jessie Morrow, of New Castle, Delaware, was at the home of her uncle, Dr. Hugh Morrow, during the past week.

Warren A. Homan is about to improve his dwelling house by re-roofing it and erecting a large front porch, after which the whole will be painted.

The Ercey Sisters will start a religious tent meeting on McClellan's lawn, Linden Hall, Sunday evening, August 7, to which all are invited.

Mrs. Robert E. Snyder and daughter, Maudeella, and Miss Mildred White, of Altoona, and C. K. Stahl, of Philadelphia, were guests of Mrs. Mary Stahl.

Miss Fern Hoover, after a month's visit with her sister, Laura Runkle, left for Danville, Virginia, where she is assistant superintendent in the hospital at that place.

Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Bloom, of Williamsport, and Mrs. Hufkman, and the latter's daughter, of Brooklyn, N. Y., were week-end guests of Miss Laura Runkle, at the Centre Hall hotel.

Mrs. R. H. W. Potter, who had been threatened with a very serious illness following a series of chills, is much improved. She is being cared for at the home of her sister, Mrs. F. V. Goodhart.

The Fresh Air children leave Centre Hall at 7:04 a. m. and Spring Mills at 7:15 a. m. on Friday. Those having the children in charge should see that they are at the station and have with them their tags and tickets.

Last Friday, July 29, it was thirteen years since the work was begun. A month prior to that time, Archduke Franz Ferdinand, heir to the Austrian Empire, was assassinated by a Serb in the little village of Sarajevo, and this kindled the flame.

The fourteen young girls comprising the class in the Reformed Sunday school taught by Mrs. F. M. Fisher, will hold their annual picnic in Kishacoquillas Park, near Burnham. The swimming pool there is probably the drawing card for this particular aggregation.

The I. O. O. F. Orphans' Home band of Sunbury was scheduled to give an open-air concert between 11:00 and 12 o'clock Sunday morning, but rain prevented the musical organization from doing so, much to the regret of many of the townspeople and those from nearby points.

Farmers out from Centre Hall who have arranged for electric service are having their houses and in some instances their barns wired in advance of the pole line and wire construction. The district covered lies mostly east of Centre Hall, along the Brush Valley road and farther south in the Ketter district.

Early Tuesday morning a large barn belonging to Clarence A. Yearick, located below Howard, was totally destroyed by fire following a stroke of lightning. The loss is heavy. Almost $5000 insurance was carried, $2200 of which was in the Farmers Mutual Co., and the remainder in the Sugar Valley company.

J. W. Wolfe and daughter, Miss Emma Wolf, and son, William Wolf, also the latter's wife and daughter Betty, all of Ardmore, drove here on Friday in the Junior Mr. Wolf's new Pontiac sedan, and were guests of Miss Grace Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Smith. The Junior Mr. Wolf, who is a dealer in optical supplies, and family returned home Sunday, while the others are here for the week.

On Saturday morning Mrs. Sallie Rubie left here for a visit to her daughters, Ruth, now Mrs. Dumas, and Miss Gertrude, in Chicago. The daughters are financing the trip. Mrs. Dumas for a number of years has been a cashier in the Loren-Miller department store and Miss Gertrude is in a bank, having had several years' experience here in that line of work and before going to the western metropolis further fitted herself for the banking business.

On Tuesday evening of last week Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Sharer held a party at their home at Spring Mills. Those who attended were Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Runkle and son John, Mr. and Mrs. John Runkle, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Sharer and children, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Delaney and daughter Agnes, Daniel Delaney, Winifred Delaney, from Lock Haven, Miss Mildred Palmer, Miss Helen Palmer, Franklin Sharer, Benjamin Gentzel, Mrs. John Decker, Phyllis Wagner, Jasper Wagner. Ice cream and cake were served.

Harry F. Hubler, of Lock Haven, true to his promise, appeared in the local Reformed church Sunday evening and delighted a large audience with two vocal solos of a sacred nature. He is the owner of a beautiful baritone voice and his range is remarkable, taking the high notes with ease, and with equal facility descending well down the bass scale. His voice possesses great volume also, and the general opinion of those musically inclined is that Mr. Hubler is altogether an A1 singer, and his many friends in Centre Hall, his former home town, will always look forward with great pleasure to his future coming.

Rain fell during much of Saturday afternoon and evening, the time of the Odd Fellows' picnic on Grange Park, and seriously interfered with the gay time anticipated. In spite of the unfavorable weather conditions the attendance was very fair, especially so in the evening, at which time the carnival concessions and other attractions were busy. The I. O. O. F. Orphans' band, of Sunbury did their share to enliven the occasion. The members of the organization are well trained musicians, and rendered their selections in fine style. The net proceeds from the whole affair were much reduced from what could reasonably be expected under more normal conditions.

LETTER FROM MRS. R. T. BAYARD

Visits Many Points of Interest in England; Also Battlefields in World War—Sees Field in Which "Lindy" Landed.

The Reporter is pleased to publish another letter this week from Mrs. Roger T. Bayard, who is with a party of friends on a tour of the Holy Lands:

Out from London 120 miles is Coventry. During the conquest the Romans had a camp here and it is here gloves were first manufactured, the first pair made having been presented to Queen Elizabeth. Those who have read Scott's "Kenilworth," will recall much about the castle, which is now in ruins, but its grandeur is yet beyond description. These castles were first built for fortresses but later were converted into castles for royalty.

We visited the homes of Shakespeare and Ann Hathaway. Parts of the original houses are still preserved, indeed the Hathaways occupied their home until recent years and there are many of their furnishings left in the house. There are a few of Shakespeare's possessions and many of his manuscripts in his home. We also visited their graves in a nearby church yard.

Warwick castle continues to be occupied by the family, although they are very poor now. In order to keep up the large estate last year they lived elsewhere and rented the castle. This year they live in the upper floors and for an admission fee allow tourists to go through the lower floors. Of course the furnishings are magnificent, and many paintings and much armor may be found in the rooms. The Warwick family has lived in the castle for hundreds of years and the armor has all been used by members of that family.

Rural England is very beautiful. There seems to be no waste places or patches of weeds anywhere. On the large estates there is much grazing land and on the small ones every foot of ground is cultivated with every form of vegetation which seems to grow luxuriantly. In the very small yards every inch is filled with very beautiful flowers. You will find flowers everywhere, more, I believe, than in California.

Stoke Poges and the churchyard where Grey's Elegy was written, were next seen. The yew tree, under which he wrote much of the Elegy, still thrives. The oldest part of the church was built in 600. This was where the Penns lived, although William Penn is not buried in this graveyard. Grey is buried here in the same grave with his mother, and Pennsylvania, all spoke of Penn and Pennsylvania, (and there is a goodly number) gave a great cheer. The folks from every State do it when their State is mentioned in connection with any great Englishman. We also visited the house and Runnymede where the Magna Charter was signed. A ride on the River Thames was another treat, and we sailed past Maiden Head, a great watering place.

Our trip through Windsor Castle was like a fairy dream. The King and Queen live at the Castle only eight weeks before Easter and two weeks in June, during the Ascot races. We were taken all over the main floor and through the drawing rooms, and the royal closets, which are as large as an ordinary house. Here they go for a last few minutes before receiving guests. The state dining room is 180 feet long. One room had old rose walls and was upholstered in the same color of silk, another was worked out in royal purple. There were many wonderful paintings and tapestries on the walls and lots of gold, especially carving on the wood work.

Hampton Court palace was built by Cardinal Wolsey for a home along the river. When Henry the VII asked him what he was doing, Cardinal Wolsey fearing that he might lose his head, meekly said that he was building a summer palace to present to Henry the VIII. Wolsey was afterwards beheaded by the King.

When we came back from our trip of more than one hundred miles, two good letters and a Herald were waiting for me. They looked the best of anything I have seen in England.
