MRS. ROGER BAYARD WRITES—INTERESTINGLY OF HOLY LAND

Visits Lands Frequented By Christ, and is Deeply Impressed With Hallowed Scenes.

Mrs. Roger T. Bayard, who is a member of the Church Touring Guild party in the Holy Lands, writes of Jerusalem, the Holy City, as follows:
JULY 26, 1927.

Grand Hotel, Jerusalem.—
We went from Cairo to Jerusalem on train via Kantara, and crossed the Suez Canal which is a sea level canal and at some places so narrow that our ship chugged up the sand on both banks in passing. There is no verdure on the banks, just sand, dryness and the desert, yet it has its own beauty.

We traveled through the desert of Sinai via Gaza to Lydda, to Jerusalem and I often thought of what this was like in the time of Moses, and in fancy I tried to follow his wanderings of many years, as we made the two-hour trip to the promised land. As the train wound its slow way up over the barren hills, we passed flocks of sheep, goats, camels and donkeys. Some carried heavy loads, and men and women with long white scarfs floating from their heads followed them and brought to our minds the Bible pictures of this country.

This was the very road over which the Holy family passed after the angel told them to take the young child into Egypt.

We were in Jerusalem which has a charm no other city on earth possesses. The Holy land is holy because of the holy things which happened here, and we are reminded at every turn of the footsteps of the Savior. While the streets may be changed, we know that the natural features of the surrounding country remain the same. We know our Savior drew his help and strength from the surrounding hills. The chief glory of Jerusalem was its religious culture. Its history is so fascinating that we shall leave it with regret. If we have gained in a small measure that which we came for, our lives must be fuller and better. The old part of Jerusalem has narrower streets and seems a city of churches mosques and synagogues, though of course it has its pleasant residential sections also.

At midday the sun shines with a hard glare and it was weary walking on the stone pavements where we could not ride.

The city is also a place of lovely arches and carved doorways, and columns. Every stone seems to tell some interesting story. We first visited the Church of the Holy Sepulchre which marks the site of the sepulchre of Christ. One is a bit disappointed that it is not a beautiful church. Next was the Tomb of Joseph of Aramathea and Nicodemus. As we recall their association with Jesus we begin to fasten our train of thought on his followers and how each one came under his influence. The sight of Calvary brought a load of sadness to our hearts that our Savior had suffered so much for us. Whether these spots are authentic or not, they represent those holy facts to us, and we need not trouble ourselves about the other side. We saw portions of the old walls of Jerusalem and the gates through which Jesus passed when carrying his cross to Calvary.

We then started for the City of the Star. We passed on the way the Star well where the star reappeared to the wise men on their way to Bethlehem, and also the tomb of Rachel where Benjamin was born. The tomb is protected by a great dome and is opened only once a month on the eve of the new moon. In the distance we saw the fields of Boaz. Bethlehem is a happy Christian village untouched by the tragedy of Jerusalem. The Church of the Nativity is the oldest Christian church still in use. The nave and aisles are divided by beautiful Corinthian columns and the entire edifice is very impressive. To enter the grotto of the Nativity one must descend stone steps behind the choir. It is very dark, relieved by a flickering light from the golden hanging lamps. A golden star marks the place of the nativity. This stable cave is a shrine for all the world.

We returned to Jerusalem by the Tomb of the Kings and the Mount of Olives, which was regarded as the scene of our Lord's ascension as early as 315 A. D. From the Minaret of the Mosque we had a magnificent view of the Holy City. The scene brings to our mind many sacred and sad thoughts. On the summit of the hill a Russian church and Hospice are built in which are many fine specimens of ancient mosaics.

Our next visit was to the mosque of Omar. The noble sanctuary on the summit of Mount Moriah. During the crusades of the Templars the mosque was used as a Christian Church and a rock which is placed here is said to be the one upon which Abraham prepared to offer his son as a sacrifice. It is also the site of the temple of Solomon, and in the courtyard the columns of the temple of Herod still stand, and in this same place the child, Jesus, remained behind, "sitting in the midst of the doctors," and where He later drove the money changers from their seats.

We next turned toward Jericho, Jordan and the Dead Sea. On the way we visited the Garden of Gethsamane. A large church takes up so much room that it seems crowded, but we had a few minutes of quiet meditation among the remaining olive trees. We passed Bethany, the home of Mary and Martha, where the tomb of Lazarus still stands. The inn of the Good Samaritan is also on the road. The river Jordan is a swift flowing muddy stream, and of the ancient city of Jericho only a broken fragment of the wall remains. But what we tried to see was Jesus walking there and John baptizing him. Many times our Sunday school lessons come back to me and I thought of Joshua at Jericho and pictured him there when the walls fell. Time was given us to bathe in the Dead Sea. The valley of the Jordan is 1200 feet below sea level and is said to be the deepest depression existing on the face of the earth's surface not covered by water. We saw the place where the Israelites crossed on dry ground and where Naaman was healed of leprosy. This spot is also said to be the scene of the Savior's baptism. On our way back to Jerusalem we passed through Gilgal where Saul was made king.

CHEMISTS CREATE DUSTLESS TRACKS

Horses Run Under Ideal Conditions, Thanks to Science.

"TAKING the other horse's dust," a phrase immortal in the racing world and run-ding back to the time when the memory of man runneth not to the contrary, seems destined to be obsolete soon, race goers say.

Gradual improvement in caring for the big metropolitan tracks near New York and Chicago, as well as others in various sections of the country, is responsible for the change.

Landscape gardeners have wrestled with the problem for years, not for the benefit of helping the "students of form" but for purely aesthetic reasons. Dustless race tracks, it was agreed, would add greatly to the comfort of the spectators for the best race finish in the world holds no thrills if only the judges can see it.

Today chemicals are freely used in keeping the dust from rising. Chemists had to find something that would not injure the horses' hoofs and at the same time permit thoroughbreds to use their maximum speed.

Calcium chloride, a chemical that absorbs many times its own weight of water, has been used for some years on the smaller tracks at county and state fairs and now is coming into wider employment on the larger tracks.

FOR SALE—A 1 1/2 horse-power water motor in good condition, is offered or sale. Motor was in use in Reporter office until electric motor was installed. Apply at this office.
