The dump of a car loaded with hard coal became loosened some time ago at a point west of Centre Hall station, and dropped several tons of coal on the track. The trackmen hauled the anthracite to the station cellar, but here remained scattered about several hundred pounds of the fuel, and this was picked piece by piece into sacks by R. I. Smith's children, who had been bribed to do so. Three sacks were gathered in this way and left overnight. The next morning two of the sacks had been carried away.

MRS. BAYARD'S LETTER.

bright sunshine teeming with such a variety of sights and interests that it charms the stranger. We visited the museums and saw a great collection of Egyptian antiquities, including some of King Tut's treasures. We saw the actual features of Rameses II, also the Pharaoh who opposed the children of Israel and many other things connected with that period.

In the bazaars where everything imaginable is offered for sale, we were jostled and crowded and were asked double what things were worth, but after some protesting, mostly with our hands, we got what we wanted for what they were worth. Tiny thoroughfares, hardly more than a path divide the two rows of small, glowing shops. We were imperturbed at every step to buy. The fine residences are in Garden City and Gezireh and are surrounded by beautiful flowers and trees, and large palaces are set in the midst of private parks. The broad avenues are bordered with Jacaranda trees. The narrow, ancient streets of old Cairo wind their way under carved arches between the tiny open shops of ten makers and vendors of priceless rugs, the Nile flowing through its midst is fringed with house boats.

We also went to the spot where Moses was found on the island of Rhoda, in the bulrushes; also the spot where Mary, Joseph and Jesus took refuge after the flight to Egypt, and the Celtic church, said to be one of the oldest Christian churches. We saw the old quarries from which the stones for the pyramids were taken. We saw the Mosque of Sultan Hassan and visited the citadel from which there is an extensive view of Old Cairo and the Libyan desert with its numerous pyramids. This view once seen will never be forgotten. Near the citadel are the Alabaster Mosque and the tomb of Mohamed Ali. A short motor ride across the Nile brought us to the Great Pyramid, built 3733 B. C. We seemed to suddenly realize that the noise of the city had ceased and the desert was at our feet. When the car could go no further we got out and sank ankle deep into the clean, warm sand and the immensity and antiquity of the place engulfed us. From the slopes beside the Sphinx we could see the Giza Pyramids, the three large pyramids which were the tombs of kings, and the three small ones which were the tombs of the queens, and in the distance we could see other pyramids, small, perfect, black cones rising clear cut. Obeying tradition, we whispered to the Sphinx our question upon which depends our greater happiness, and as ever the Sphinx left us unanswered, and we were soon back in Cairo. We saw many graceful, black-clad women with the transparent veil fastened over the nose by a golden ornament, but there are many now who do not wear the veil. The men with the turbans and flowing robes added romance to the scene.

FARM CALENDAR.

Timely Reminders from The Pennsylvania State College.

SPRAY FOR BLIGHT.—Continue spraying the potato crop with Bordeaux mixture to keep the late blight away. The longer the vines are green the more the tubers can grow and the better the harvest.

GROW GOOD FLOWERS.—Dahlias are the show flowers for this month. Water the plants freely and fertilize well to produce strong roots and perfect flowers.

PICK FRUIT RIGHT.—Pick fruit according to the market, not too green but if the market is distant, not too ripe, say horticulturists of the Penna. State College. Well-matured, firm fruit carries better than green fruit and is infinitely superior to it on reaching the consumer.

ALFALFA GOOD HAY PASTURE.—For hogs, alfalfa is the best pasture obtainable, furnishing a maximum supply of ideal forage throughout the season, even in dry weather. As many as 20 shoats per acre can be carried. Better plant some for pasturing next year.

EXHIBIT AT THE FAIR.—Have you picked out those good animals for the fair exhibit this fall? Don't be the fellow who says, "I have better stock than those prize winners at home." A good exhibit will advertise your business.

PREPARE PULLETS FOR LAYING.—Give the early pullets proper care and feed now to fit them for the best possible production next winter. You cannot fill the egg basket when prices are high by stunting the pullets and delaying their production period.

Why Experiment?

It has been conclusively demonstrated that in Judge Furst, Centre County has a thoroughly qualified Judge.

Why experiment?
Why take chances in making a change?
The Judge is elected for 10 years.
It is a too serious matter to experiment with.

Judge Furst needed no outside assistance when he went upon the Bench. He stands squarely on his own feet. He disposes of business promptly and efficiently without fear or favor.

His record in presiding over the Centre County Courts has commanded State-wide favorable mention. His work in the Courts of Clinton and Elk Counties has been equally brilliant.

Leading lawyers, irrespective of political affiliations, have endorsed him.

Keeping court business up-to-date means a saving to every taxpayer in the county. It means avoiding unnecessary, costly delay to litigants.

Judge Furst is fearless, honest, efficient.

With a Judge of this type on the Bench, why take a chance that might affect every home in Centre County?
