The work on the defense by the local team was a thing of beauty. Goodhart at third and Martz at short cut down hits, the pair being credited with fifteen assists to first base between them. At the initial corner, "Doc" Crawford hung up a record, too. Think of 29 put-outs, without an error. "Doc" scooped 'em out of the dirt and pulled 'em out of the air-it was all the same. Keller, in left field, retired the side in the 16th inning by capturing three fly balls. Albert Emery, in center field, saved the day in several instances by making star catches. In fact, the entire team never played a better brand of ball. Only two errors were chalked up. One of these was responsible for that neither run was earned. Centre Hall was due to win n the 10th. Goodhart was resting on which have representation in some ed to try for home when there was no possible chance to make it. The secand haseman's throw caught him ten feet from the plate.

From then on the game proceeded with clock-like regularity. Batted balls were cleanly fielded; double plays cut down runners in pairs; an occasional batter struck out.. Everyone was looking for the "break" which never came The tension was apparently reaching the snapping point, but both sides and this in the face of the fact that hung on with bull-dog tenacity, and the Honorable Harry B.
