LYMAN L. SMITH

When it comes to setting forth what political candidates have done in their lifetime, in order to array their qualifications before the voters, we might say that Lyman L. Smith, of Centre Hall, Democratic candidate for county treasurer, like John S. Spearly, Democratic candidate for county commissioner, has had perhaps the tough-"survival of the fittest."

Mr. Smith was born at Centre Hall going, the following financial report is in 1870, a son of Israel and Mary M. Luse Smith. His father died when he his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Smith, at Farmers Mills.

There "Smithy," as he was dubbed, attended country school in the winter dividuals, and $172.45 from nursing and helped his grandfather on the fees. the summer. Subsequently his grandparents moved into Centre old, his grandparents died, leaving him one. alone. Fortunately for him, his widowed mother was again married and A CLARION CALL TO THE she settled in Centre Hall, and henceforth "Smithy" had a home. At the age of twenty-one years, he had visions of becoming a carpenter and sei Homan and remained three years.

At the age of twenty-three 'years Mr. Smith was married to Edith S. fonte "that Walker's name was men-Foreman, sister of David Foreman, former Prothonotary of Centre county, and went to housekeeping at Centre business and this led to a traveling agency for the International Harvester Co. which he represented success fully in all parts of the county.

At present Lyman is a commission merchant in hay, straw, potatoes and other farm products. Four years ago the Democrats nominated him to the candidacy for the office which he now seeks but at the general election he was defeated. That he is now deserving of some recogni tion is beyond question. That he is well qualified is also undenied. Four years as councilman at Centre Hall has given him the confidence necessary in a public office. He is a member of the Reformed church, where for several years he has held the office of deacon. He is the father of one daughter, who is a graduate of Bloomsburg Nomral. She has Burning of Cross at Howard Meets taught in the schools of Boalsburg. Spring Mills, and is on her seventh consecutive term at State College, in a grade school.

If it rains on Tuesday, we will win, hands down.

Vote for Lyman L. Smith for county treasurer.

Twenty-two votes more was all that was needed four years ago to elect Sinie Hoy recorder. If one-third of the districts had gotten ont one additional vote Mr. Hoy would have been Witt, both of Milesburg, were united in elected. You see the importance of that counts. A vote for Spearly and Parrish for county commissioner will aid in electing commissioners who will keep the expenses of the county down to the minimum sum and consequently lessen the burden on tax payers.

Go to the polls, rain or shine. Democratic victories are usually won ion rainy days, but this year you cannot afford to let sunshine keep you at home. There is too much at stake.

Centre Hall borough should hand Lyman L. Smith a near-perfect (100 per cent.) vote next Tuesday. He has always been a good citizen and will make a good public official.

The records show that during the past fifty years Republican county commissioners have been extravagant during their administrations, and that every Democratic board that sat during that period has been economical in the expenditure of taxes. History repeats itself. Vote for Spearly and
