

TWO HOMES MADE HAPPY

By Women Who Used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I think it is the most wonderful medicine I ever tried," is the statement made by Mrs. Goldie Shoup of St. Joseph, Illinois. She declares that after taking the Compound she is in better health than before.

Mrs. J. Storms of 29 Lane Street, Paterson, N. J., writes: "I can not speak too highly of your medicine and I recommend it to all my friends."

These statements were taken from two enthusiastic letters which tell of the help that has been received from using the Vegetable Compound. Both Mrs. Shoup and Mrs. Storms were in a run-down condition which caused them much unhappiness. When women are suffering from lack of strength and from weakness, their own life and that of their family is affected. When they feel well and strong and are able to do their housework easily, happy homes are the result.

Thousands of testimonial letters have been received from women in different walks of life, stating that the Compound has helped them.

Cheap Travel by 'Plane

The Jackman brothers of Slough, in Buckinghamshire, England, have two hobbies, aviation and swimming, which they sometimes combine. They take their airplane from the hangar mornings, and fly to Littlehampton, Sussex, 50 miles away. There they land on the shore, have their swim, and fly back to Slough, all in time for breakfast. The brothers make the round trip in about an hour, and say that the running expenses of their machine are lower than those of an average high-powered motor car.

One of the Board

A young minister, who recently had been appointed pastor of a church, was wont to preach long, tiresome sermons. One Sunday he had requested the members of the board to stay after services.

While he turned to speak to the board, he noticed an elderly man in the back of the church who had not left. Not wishing to discuss business before persons other than the board, the minister went to the man and asked, "Is there anything that I can do for you?"

The elderly man replied, "You asked that the board remain after services. Well, I certainly am one of the bored."

Mothers, Do This—

When the children cough, rub Musterole on their throats and chests. Not telling how soon the symptoms may develop into croup, or worse. And then's when you're glad you have a jar of Musterole at hand to give prompt relief.

As first aid, Musterole is excellent. Keep a jar ready for instant use.

It is the remedy for adults, too. Relieves sore throat, bronchitis, tonsillitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, chilblains, frost-bitten feet and colds of the chest (it may prevent pneumonia).

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

JOUNCING AUTOMOBILE DRIVEN OVERSEAS

The photograph shows a jouncing automobile driven by Claude Nolan and Kenneth Goodson bumping over the ties of the Overseas railroad connecting the Florida mainland with the city of Key West. In many places on the track shown there are but three or four inches clearance between the tires and the ends of the ties. The car was preceded by an emergency train filled with motion picture camera men, and an emergency crew was on the qui vive in case the automobile plunged into the water.

SLOW DRIVER IS HELD MENACE

Classed With the Willful Speeder on Busy Streets, Says Director.

That the slow driver is a menace to traffic quite as much as the fast driver is particularly evidenced on Washington's high-speed arteries, especially on Massachusetts avenue, which carries a large vehicular burden, says Oscar Coolican, one of the directors of the local automotive trade association. The narrowness of this thoroughfare, combined with its grade, makes it particularly fertile in proof of the slow driver's bad effect upon traffic, Mr. Coolican believes.

Traffic Slowed Down.
"There is no questioning the wisdom of traffic authorities in making this street one of the arteries of high-speed travel, but, by the same token, there is no questioning the fact that the motorist who wants to dally along frequently counteracts the ends to be served by the 30-mile limit," he says. "As he dawdles, traffic to the rear is forced to slow down and proceed in fitful jerks, as first one car and then another finds an opening through which to pass.

"The effect is a cutting in and out that is decidedly detrimental to the fast and free flow of traffic. In wet and slippery weather it may be well to forego the legal limit of the 30 miles an hour when congestion is great, but on almost any dry, clear day the slow driver can be found somewhere in the one-mile stretch doing his utmost to distort the traffic picture.

High Speed Wanted.
"It may be well to let any driver proceed as he wishes, as some traffic observers insist, but he should be forced at least to select a thoroughfare where his vagary will not hamper, restrict and endanger hundreds of other car owners. The majority wants to utilize the highest speed possible on such a street and traffic officials have found by analysis that such a speed is safe. The driver who interferes with this process should voluntarily go elsewhere or he should be forced to do so."

School Buses Travel Tax Free in Georgia

Buses used by counties or school districts for the transportation of children to and from school are exempt from the state license tax on automobiles, according to a ruling handed down by Attorney General George M. Napier of Georgia.

The question was propounded by Newton county officials, and the attorney general held that school buses are in reality agents of the state, as they are operated out of the funds used for school purposes and there would be no advantage in taking money out of one state department and turning it in to another department.

The Georgia legislature, according to Mr. Napier, in amending the motor vehicle law, made special provision exempting automobiles from license fees in cases where they were used by counties for highway construction, for which the license fees are collected. And the same ruling will apply to school buses.

Stop at All Railroad Crossings in Minnesota

Motorists who try to beat the train to the crossing will face a new risk under the new Minnesota traffic code. Even if they get across the track safely—which many do not—they may face a jail term or a fine, for the new law requires drivers to come to a full stop at grade crossings "wherever a clearly visible and positive signal gives warning of the immediate approach of a railway train of cars." The same law applies to motormen where a street car line crosses a railroad. Failure to stop is a misdemeanor.

This new provision is in addition to the old law requiring all drivers to stop at all times at designated "Stop" crossings. Another old law which is retained requires drivers of vehicles carrying school children, passengers for hire, explosives or inflammable liquids to stop at all grade crossings.

Eliminate Alcohol Odors by Use of Rubber Tubing

The odor of alcohol, when used as an anti-freeze solution in the winter, is more or less objectionable, especially in a closed car or in a touring car when the curtains are used. The odor is caused by the escape of vapor from the overflow pipe of the radiator. To eliminate this odor from the car, get a length of rubber tubing large enough to fit the lower end of the radiator overflow pipe and fasten it to the latter. Let the tubing extend under the front side member of the frame and for about six inches above the bottom edge of the frame side member, where it should be fastened to the front-fender support bracket with tape or a small clamp, as shown in the drawing. In this way the vapors will all be carried away into the outer air and will not reach the inside of the car.—G. C. Douglas, Raleigh, N. C., in Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Pedestrians Blamed for Many Street Accidents

Motor trucks though frequently involved in street accidents, actually caused only 56 per cent of those in which they figured, according to the report of accidents in Hartford, Conn., issued by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

It was found that of 400 accidents involving trucks during the first half of 1927, no fewer than 181 were the fault of pedestrians or of the drivers of other types of vehicles.

The figures obtained in the survey were compiled from the official records in the office of Commissioner Robbins B. Stoeckel of the Connecticut department of motor vehicles.

Accidents for which trucks were to blame were analyzed and remedies for them suggested, and are being distributed to operators of truck fleets in all parts of the country. Copies of this report may be obtained without charge by writing to the motor truck division, National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

Necessities Overnight on Average Automobile

It seems that yesterday when motor-dom was discussing air cleaners, gasoline filters and the many other refinements developed within recent seasons. It is proof of the progressiveness of the American public that in the specifications of a majority of American cars today the shopper will find engines equipped with air cleaner, oil filter, crankcase ventilation, thermostat heat control, gasoline filter and some form of vibration dampener.

The last-mentioned feature may take the form of a balancer, a dampener or tandem flywheels. These features have become necessities even while the public was trying to judge their merits.

AUTOMOBILE HINTS

Tide, taxes and automobiles wait for no man.

An optimist is the man who buys a second-hand car on the installment plan.

Prosperity is apparent these days in traffic activity, although the car may be mortgaged, the battery charged and the road bonded.

Practically all of the tires used by professional bicycle racers in this country are made by Mrs. Ernest Pye of Newark, N. J., the widow of an old-time bike rider.

Mary and Her Little Lamb

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

(Copyright.)

WHEN Mary arrived home from her work at the factory with a muddy little lamb tucked tenderly under her worn coat, Mrs. Thanelet was really cross.

"Now, Mary, this is going too far. Where do you think the food is coming from for three cats, two dogs, a thrush with a broken wing, six chickens and all the assortment of sparrows you've got about this place? I won't have it. You can just take that lamb back—"

"Oh, mother, dearie, I'll not eat a bite for lunch any day if I can just keep him—he's a poor little thing I found bleating near the railway track—he seemed all alone in the world." And Mary's tears splashed down on the wee lamb, and as usual, Mary's mother gave in. She was just as soft-hearted as her daughter when it came to dumb animals, but Mary's animal family was growing out of all proportion to the income earned by the Thanelet family.

But the younger children, three of them, went into ecstasies over the new arrival and if the animal family looked askance at the funny little wooden-legged woolly thing, it was not an unwelcome stare.

They had, one and all, been rescued from hedges, gutters, ash cans and other stray animal habitations by Mary, who had tenderly taken them in and nurtured them in her very heart. They loved her in consequence with a love that only dumb animals could know.

Out in the garden behind the house Mary had them stand on their heads, turn somersaults, sit up and beg. Even the six chickens would fly in a straight row to their perch when Mary ordered. The thrush with the broken wing loved to sit on Mary's shoulder and peck bits of bread crumbs from her lips.

When Mary came home a week or two later with a goat her mother just flopped into a near-by chair and said nothing. What could she say? The tiny goat's eyes were already gazing in complete adoration at its rescuer's face.

Suddenly Mary had a perfect brain wave about finances.

"Mother dear, couldn't we serve coffee and doughnuts to motorists on Saturday and Sunday, while I am at home to help? We are so close to the main road that I'm sure we could make some money."

"My darling girlie, you mustn't think of working every day in the week—it would be too much."

"But I should love it and the change from office work would do me good. Please let's have a try at it."

And it was no sooner talked of than started. An attractive little sign at the head of the lane pointed the way and Mary and her mother did the rest.

From the big old dining room that looked out on the garden to the front bay window, there were little tables and chairs, cheap but adequate, and the time came when these were all well filled with people who enjoyed a good cup of coffee and homemade doughnuts.

Mary's little lamb followed her in and out of the kitchen with each tray. Sometimes the thrush sat upon her shoulder and more often than not a cat or two strolled in with her. Sometimes the goat was seen gazing in at the window.

Then one sunny Saturday afternoon a great gray car drew up in front of the house and a party of six alighted in quest of coffee.

Mary served them all, then slipped out as was her wont to play with her pets. The young man seemed unable to keep his eyes off her as she put her cats, dogs, chickens, the lamb and the goat all through their daily tricks.

The thrush and the lamb had one little stunt of their own that both seemed thoroughly to enjoy. The thrush got a firm hold of the woolly back and together they had what looked like a private rodeo—the lamb's wooden legs kicking about in all directions and the thrush hanging on like mad.

The party inside having coffee were consumed with laughter.

"I say," said David Gregory, film producer, "if I could get an adorable kid like that on the screen in a series of pictures I'd make another fortune."

"You've said it, old man—never saw anything so cute in all my life—will you look at what that yellow cat's doing now!"

While the rest of the party were in fits of laughter, young David Gregory was talking seriously with Mary's mother.

"I'm afraid she wouldn't consent," Mrs. Thanelet was saying. "Mary wouldn't have a hair of one of those animals hurt."

"But I'll put up a studio in that field at the back and give her a salary that will enable her to feed all the stray animals in the world. Do try to talk her into letting me make just one as a starter."

Mary looked like a little girl of ten in the pictures when they were shown, but in reality she was a full-fledged married woman. For David Gregory had married her out in that garden with the lamb, the goat, the yellow cats and the thrush with a broken wing and all the rest of her pets as witnesses.

Keep Fit This Winter
Your Kidneys Must Function Properly For You to Be Well.

WINTER is hard on the kidneys. All too often colds and chills upset the action of the kidneys and allow poisons to remain in the system. That's why winter finds so many folks achy and tired; with backache, headache, dizzy spells and scanty, burning kidney secretions.

Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, increase the secretion of the kidneys and aid in the elimination of waste impurities. Are endorsed by users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

More Cars Than Phones
Statistics compiled by the Chrysler statistical division show that there are more motor cars than telephones in use today. The automobile industry now surpasses the steel business, the clothing and the telephone industry in size. It has become the world's most important commercial activity except providing food, clothing and shelter for humanity.

Labor-Saving Machines
Through the marvels of modern machinery only 67 men are now required, on the average, to do what was the work of 100 only 25 years ago, according to the National Industrial Conference board. At this rate 45 men will be doing the same work in 1950.

But machines have not thrown men out of work because as production has increased, so has the demand for additional commodities.
