SCRUB BULLS ARE SENTENCED TO DEATH

Jefferson, Susquehanna, Crawford and Montgomery Counties Take Measures to Supplant Scrub Bulls With Purebreds.

Scrub bulls in six Pennsylvania counties are facing sentences to death. It has been found that they have robbed their owners year after year. At first the evidence was circumstantial, but recently accurate records have revealed enormous losses.

In McKean county, following the organization of the seventh bull association in the county, an extensive effort is being made to replace every grade and scrub inside of the county boundary lines with a purebred sire.

On October 1, 1927, there were 144 purebred and 147 grade bulls in the 15 townships of the county. A survey on February 1 showed 160 purebred sires and 123 scrubs, a substantial change already. Cameron county is working along this same line to improve its dairy herds.

Jefferson, Susquehanna, Crawford and Montgomery counties have certain townships and communities in which the extension program includes the replacement of all scrubs with purebred sires.

"Inventories of all herds are taken at the beginning of the year," says says County Agent R. C. Haney. "Then at the end of each year inventories are taken again. In this way results can be measured in actual figures. Bulls selected must be from dams known to produce 400 or more pounds of butterfat. In many cases sons of the cows in the cow testing associations are being used to replace the scrub bulls. Some farmers are organizing bull associations to take care of their breeding program."

What has long been known as "acid" phosphate will hereafter be known as superphosphate. "Acid" is a misnomer for this phosphate. It was named "acid" because sulphuric acid is used to make the phosphorus in the rock available, but the acid does not remain as such in the finished fertilizer.

PERFORMANCE as different as the car itself

Were greater beauty their only advantage, the new engineering principles of Dodge Brothers Victory Six would still be revolutionary.

Were greater safety The Victory's only advantage, it would still command the gratitude of a life-loving world.

Were greater economy its paramount feature, the fact would still remain that The Victory has made possible 21 miles per gallon at 25 miles per hour FOR A SIX.

But these are incidental to the basic Victory achievement. You must DRIVE the car to know about that!

You must take a corner faster than you ought, a cobble pavement faster than you thought, before The Victory secret begins to reveal itself.

And you must unleash the full, sustained speed of the car before the idea takes full hold!

Victory design is unlike that of any other vehicle in the world—and Victory performance is equally radical and remarkable.

To examine the one and experience the other will prove an event that we urge you not to postpone.
