Sixteen pure-bred calves were received by members of the Boyer Calf Club of Logan Grange, Pleasant Gap, this week. The plan is that the young farmers deposit $10.00 of the cost of the animal, which is $120.00, and give to the association the first calf born to the cow.

Hunters are not at all enthusiastic over the Game Commission's rules governing the time, number and kind of game that may be killed next fall. The commission now is going the extreme in killing deer, just like it went to the extreme in preserving it a few years ago. There ought to be a happy medium that could be struck.

The replacing of the damage by fire to the George Searson house is progressing nicely, and by the beginning of June it is planned to have it ready for occupancy. During the month of April more than three thousand sacks, pouches and individual pieces of mail were carried by the mail messenger between the Centre Hall post office and railroad mail car. In making repairs to the farmers' telephone line leading out from State College a wire came in contact with a live wire of the electric line and came near electrocuting Foster Musser and Arthur Witmer.
