

DRY OFFICERS TO BE MOVED TO LEWISBURG

Colonel Wynne, Prohibition Administrator for Eastern Penn'a. Decides to Have Headquarters of His Force at Union County Town Because Judge Johnson Maintains Office and Residence There.

Colonel Samuel G. Wynne, prohibition administrator for Eastern Pennsylvania, confirmed a report that the principal office of his organization in the middle district of Pennsylvania would be located at Lewisburg after July 1. Offices are now maintained at Harrisburg and Wilkes-Barre.

In view of the fact that the home and office of Federal Judge Johnson of the middle district are at Lewisburg, Colonel Wynne said he had decided for purposes of efficiency and economy to remove the principal office there. Deputy Administrator Col. Everett Wilson, now at Wilkes-Barre, will move his office to Lewisburg.

Colonel Wynne said he is making arrangements to have a room in the federal building at Harrisburg and in the federal building at other Wilkes-Barre or Scranton as a branch office when his men are operating in or near those offices.

Two More $500 Prizes.

Through an additional gift of $25,000 two more $500 fellowships for advanced study will be available to seniors of the Pennsylvania State College. For many years the biggest scholastic prize at Penn State has been a fellowship carrying $500, known as the John W. White Fellowship, given by James G. White, class of 1882, in memory of his father. Donation of sufficient funds to provide two more fellowships has just been made by Mr. White. The awards go to the seniors having the best scholastic record and who are likely to make the most of the opportunity offered.
