The local Y. P. B. held its July meeting at the home of one of its members, Miss Elizabeth Bartholmes, on Monday evening. The delegates who attended the state convention at State College gave their report. Many new ideas and plans of work were brought to the branch through it. The social hour was devoted to singing songs and playing games. Refreshments were served later.

The large barn being rebuilt by Charles Crust, east of town, although being interfered with by bad weather conditions, is well on toward completion. The new structure is 50x85 ft., the former barn having been but 32x 78 ft. Some of the old timber is being used. From the square up the frame work is all plank. Both expect to complete their courses this year.

The "thumb tourists" are more and more coming into disrepute. Today it is not only the college student who begs for a ride, but the traveling salesman has joined him, too. Just the other day one of this class was seen standing on the diamond here working his thumb over-time to go in the direction a train would have taken at the same instant. It would be interesting to know whether our fare was charged up to the company that employs him.

The new barn on former Sheriff A. B. Lee's farm along Sinking Creek, is completed and crops are being stored in it now. The new barn built of plank is 48x88 feet and the straw shed is 35x 40 feet. This is the second barn built by Mr. Lee since he owns the place. The original barn was burned about three years ago. A plank frame barn slightly smaller than the present barn was then built, and this was burned last fall. Both the barns were erected by Samuel Richards, of Martha.

Among the vacationists in the valley from a distance are Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Fleisher, of Buffalo, N. Y., who are spending out a two weeks' period from work at Potters Mills, with Mr. Fleisher's father, Thomas Fleisher, and other relatives. His company recently secured an order for a number of planes from the U. S. Government. One plane of the bomb type will cost close to $150,000. The festival held by the local ball club recently was well patronized. The gross receipts of which were $247.00. The net returns will be close to forty per cent of this amount. The weather conditions induced the boys to experiment in the selection of a new location for holding the festival and their judgment proved good. A skeleton booth was brought in from the park and this was covered with canvas and used for vending.
