

Machine Aids Paralyzed Dog

A dog in Portland, Ore., whose hind quarters were paralyzed when he was run over by an automobile, with the frame constructed by a veterinary surgeon. The dog comes down the street just like a well one—except that he propels himself with his front legs only.

WHY WE HAVE PAIN

By M. K. Thomson, Ph. D.

PAIN is the signal of danger. Something is wrong. Without this warning we might persist and get hurt or killed. If you felt no pain by coming in contact with fire you might burn up before you realize what was happening to you.

Pain is not a feeling. It is a sensation. The distinction is that in case of a feeling you have a vague notion of pleasantness or unpleasantness whereas in pain you have a distinct sensory experience. Feelings are not localized and have no specific organs.

Another reason why pain has been confused with feeling is that most pains are unpleasant and unpleasantness is a feeling. Feelings of pleasantness and unpleasantness are the accompaniments of all sensory experience of everything we see, hear, feel or touch.

pleasant; scraping, shrill, loud noises are decidedly unpleasant; soft, smooth, velvety objects are pleasant to the touch; clammy, cold, ragged, sharp, uneven surfaces are unpleasant.

Although most pains are unpleasant, some are neutral and a few are positively pleasant. If you cannot think of a pleasant pain recall the sensation of poking a sore thumb to enjoy the pain.

"JOTTING IT DOWN" By JEAN NEWTON. THIS expression is commonly used of something which is to be written, where the implication is that it will take no time or effort, that the writing amounts to no more than a scratch or a "jot."

we must turn simply to the word "jot," derived from the Greek "iota." It means a little; the dot over the "i" or a mark over a letter to distinguish pronunciation, and its significance extends to anything of slight value or proportions.

"Paint can do wonders," says Mature Matilda, "but the most a middle aged woman can hope for is to be the picture of youth."

Children's Bedtime Story

MELLY had received a beautiful pair of blue slippers upon her birthday. Her mother had made them for her and they had been a great surprise as she had a pair which were still pretty good and she didn't expect another pair just yet.

for the time when they would be given. And her mother had a way of hiding the slippers and making them when no one saw her at it, so that they had always come as a surprise.

It was true that she hoped before another year she would have another pair of slippers, but she hadn't expected them so soon. It was so nice, too, to have a beautiful new pair before the others had quite worn out.

Now, if she went anywhere to spend the night with one of her school friends, or if one of her school friends came and spent the night with her—or if she felt she just wanted to dress up—she had a beautiful pair of slippers in readiness.

Oh, how soft they were! Oh, how warm they were! They were just right, warm and soft and comfortable and comforting.

The slippers were bedroom slippers and they were knitted ones. They were magnificent. They had fluffy, knitted borders, and beautiful blue bows with a little shining button in each bow.

Melly's mother couldn't have made slippers that weren't friendly. Melly knew that.

Well, several months had gone by and Melly had only worn her slippers once. She had put them away on the shelf with a big white handkerchief around them so they would keep clean until she began to really wear them quite often.

Mary's party will outdo All the other parties, too. Brother drove the car 'way out in the country, all about.

Mary's Party

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

MARY'S party's going to be wonderful, that's plain to see. Every evening father brings something home, a lot of things: candy, too, for one and all. Really father's spent a lot.

Mary's party's almost here. For a week, or very near. Mother's swept and cleaned the place. Washed the curtains, mended lace.

GOOD THINGS FOR THE FAMILY TABLE

By NELLIE MAXWELL

- Superstition is what prompts some people that a horseshoe over a door has more value than a lock and key. TO SERVE three attractive meals for seven days in the week the house mother must plan ahead to avoid monotony and be able to use up all food advantageously.

the fowl, add flour to the gravy in the pan, cook until well blended, add egg and cream and serve with the fowl.

Scalloped Fish. To any leftover fish add a few diced potatoes, peas and a cream sauce. Cover with crumbs well buttered and bake as usual.

Lettuce for several days may be prepared and wrapped in a piece of old lace curtain. Many cooks make bags of curtaining to drain washed lettuce; this may be tucked away into the ice chest and the crisp, clean, dry lettuce is always ready to serve.

Some time for supper or luncheon make sandwiches for the family and serve them with a hot drink of cocoa. This with a lettuce salad will make a satisfying meal.

Autumn Leaf Cookies. Cream one-half cupful of butter, add one cupful of sugar and one egg well beaten, then add three tablespoonfuls of milk, two cupfuls of flour sifted well with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder.

Oregon Has Plane-Motor Cycle Squad of Sheriffs

Here is a squad of the new plane-motor cycle sheriffs of Oregon, who specialize in capturing bandits fleeing in automobiles. The aviator sheriff flies, locates the escaping outlaw and signals directions to the motor cycle sheriff below, who follows in accurate pursuit. The scheme has worked out successfully.

Community Building

Color of Roofing Not of First Importance

Many miles away, as one approaches a town, we note how conspicuous are the roofs and church spires against an almost solid blue-green background.

These houses were built in a period of good, sound construction and these very buildings are standing today with their original roofs, beautiful in their quaint stanchness.

In some communities vivid penetrating color later found its way both in natural slate and in manufactured roofing materials. A choice of every known shade became available to appease the public taste, often with the result that the less scrupulous builder was tempted to give color, but unfortunately, disregard quality.

However, the fallacy of such practice is now being felt. The annoyance and expense of upkeep has injected much seriousness in the thoughts of the home owner or buyer.

Plan New Home With View to Environment

Of all the factors that must be taken into consideration in the purchase of a home, environment is one of the most important. All other things being equal—good transportation, frequent service, accessibility to schools, churches, stores, employment—these and many other elements may count for nothing if the immediate neighborhood and those who go to make up that neighborhood are not in keeping with the ideas and ideals of the prospective home purchaser.

Because of this the new home will either fulfill all the hopes and expectations of the newcomer in the neighborhood or it will fall short, resulting in dissatisfaction, discontentment and unhappiness, and the purchase, instead of becoming an investment, indeed becomes a cost.

Building Height Limit

Believing that a uniform height for buildings should be maintained throughout the metropolitan area of a city as well as within the city's territorial limits, the Los Angeles realty board, through its board of directors, will ask the county supervisors of Los Angeles county to adopt a height-limit ordinance for the county, a report to the National Association of Real Estate Boards states.

Garden Attractiveness

The difference between just a house and a really charming home—is the garden. Nothing can give you more wholesome pleasure than a distinctive, well-chosen garden.

Look Well to House "Lid."

One of the peculiar reports one hears about the Chinese is that they begin to build a house at the roof. How that can be done has always been a mystery. But there is no doubt that the roof is of first importance.

Birds Aid Gardens

Provide a bird bath and the birds coming for a drink or a bath will stop to help you with your garden work. Just the joy of watching the birds would amply repay you, but they are courteous guests and will eagerly eat weed seed, worms and insects that would otherwise menace your garden.

Leads in Town Forests

In Massachusetts, 79 towns have voted for town forests, making the state the leader in this work, says the American Tree Association. In certain places the land held for the protection of the town's water supply has been placed under the town forest act.
